Foreword to First Edition

The aim of this e-book is to publish genealogical data on all members of the Sackett family, wherever possible identifying individual members within families, and placing families in related lines or trees.

The focus is strictly on the Sackett name. Therefore, full entries are made only for persons who were born Sacketts. Children of female Sacketts are listed, where known, under their mother's genealogical sketch, but their lines are not continued.

This is the first attempt to document the Sackett family in book form since Charles Weygant published The Sacketts of America in 1907. It is also the first comprehensive publication in book form of the genealogy of the English Sacketts. Entries are fully sourced.

Genealogical sketches are presented in the usual genealogical sequence, starting from the earliest known Sacketts, born in the late 1200s. To respect the privacy of present-day Sacketts, there is a cut-off of about 100 years.

For the convenience of presentation, generations are identified alphabetically. However, in the case of Sacketts who are not identifiable with family groups, the allocation to a particular generation should be taken as a best estimate only.

Tracking family groups through several generations reveals several lines or trees. These are denoted numerically and are described in the chapter on Sackett lines. The separation into distinct lines does not necessarily indicate that those in different lines were unrelated; rather, it is usually the case that it has not proved possible to establish what those relationships were.

Additional information, which might otherwise make a genealogical sketch overlong, is provided in text notes, indicated by . Some data, for example maps, charts, etc., cannot be rendered well in an e-book. Such data is available on the websites of The Sackett Family Association at https://www.sackettfamily.info/index.htm and https://sackett-tree.org/index.php. In many cases, these sites include more information than is contained here, and, in particular, non-Sackett descendant lines are often given.

The first edition of this e-book has genealogical sketches for 664 Sacketts, being all those found so far who were born with the name, down to Generation M. This generation includes the 4th great-grandchildren of Thomas Sackett the elder of St Peter in Thanet (many of these are 2nd great-grandchildren of Simon Sackett the colonist), the great-grandchildren of John Sackett of New Haven, and other Sacketts in the English lines.

Foreword to Second Edition

This second edition of The Book of Sacketts adds genealogical sketches for a further generation of Sacketts, increasing the number of individual sketches from 664 to 1,151. This includes all those found so far who were born with the Sackett name, down to Generation N. This generation includes the 5th great-grandchildren of Thomas Sackett the elder of St Peter in Thanet (including the 3rd great-grandchildren of Simon Sackett the colonist), the 2nd great-grandchildren of John Sackett of New Haven, as well as Sacketts in other lines.

Continuing research has revealed some additional information for persons included in the first edition of this book, and that is included in this edition. Sacketts for whom parents have not been identified are included as "Unlinked Sacketts" in their presumed generation. Research continues to try to link them to the relevant line. The compiler welcomes information and suggested solutions from other researchers.

Foreword to Third Edition

This third edition of The Book of Sacketts adds genealogical sketches for a further generation of Sacketts, increasing the number of individual sketches from 1,151 to 2,062. This includes all those found so far who were born with the Sackett name, from the earliest years (Generation B, 1300s|1400s) to Generation O, 1700s|1800s, this last generation centered on birth years from the 1780s to the 1820s, but with some variation as the years covered by each generation expand. This generation includes the 6th great-grandchildren of Thomas Sackett the elder of St Peter in Thanet (including the 4th great-grandchildren of Simon Sackett the colonist), and the 3rd great-grandchildren of John Sackett of New Haven, as well as Sacketts in other lines.

Continuing research has revealed some additional information for persons included in earlier editions of this book, and that is included in this edition. Sacketts for whom parents have not been identified are included as "Unlinked Sacketts" in their presumed generation. Research continues to try to link them to the relevant line. The compiler welcomes information and suggested solutions from other researchers.

Notable Sacketts included in Generation O are: (1541) Judge Gary V Sackett of Seneca Falls, New York; US Congressman (1548) William Augustus Sackett; and convicted highway robber (1961) Thomas Baker Sackett of Essex and London.

The numbers of Sacketts born in Generation O, six generations on from Simon Sackett's immigration to the New World, show the dramatic difference in birth rate between England and America. In this generation, there were 185 Sackett births in England, but nearly four times as many in America, with a total of 726. (The family expands rapidly in America)

Present-day researchers of the Sackett family were given a head start by Charles Weygant, who published The Sacketts of America in 1907. He conducted his research largely by correspondence, with limited access to historical records. Now that so many original documents are conveniently available on the Internet, it is remarkable to find how extensive and accurate his work was.

The first comprehensive study of the English Sacketts was carried out by Marion Sackett, of Reading, England, in the 1980s and 1990s. Much of the detail in this volume on the English lines is the result of her painstaking research.

With the arrival of the Internet, Thurmon King, of Pasco, Washington State, began compiling a comprehensive database of American Sacketts, adding to and updating Weygant's record. Following Thurmon's retirement, this huge task is continued by Ted Smith, of Oak Harbor, Washington State.

Since the start of the Sackett family mailing list, set up by Nancy Siders, of Roswell, New Mexico, in 1997, and then the formation of The Sackett Family Association in 2003, more than 800 members have contributed to the Sackett story.

Detailed Sackett research is contained in two websites: The Sackett Family Association website, maintained by Chris Sackett, and Thurmon King's New Sackett Family Database, maintained by Ted Smith.

The Sackett name

An unusual name

Sackett is an unusual name. Those of us born with it were probably teased at school, but not too hurtfully. Typically, the teasing related to dismissal from a job. A recent delivery of timber for a project at home, with Sackett written in chalk on the outermost plank, had the words, "He got the..." added before the name, doubtless to the considerable amusement of some wag in the timber yard.

But, mostly, perhaps because of its comparative rarity, we wear the name with pride. Maybe we feel just a little bit special.

The name's rarity, and its distinctiveness, are helpful in the research process. Although much work remains to be done, the task of researching and documenting all known holders of the name is manageable.

Where did the name come from?

Several theories about the origin of the Sackett name have been advanced, the most common being that it is something to do with little sacks. Despite the sometimes erudite "evidence" for these theories, they are all considered by this compiler to be unlikely.

It has been proposed that the Sacketts were of Norman origin arriving in England with William the Conqueror, the name beginning as "le Sackere", meaning one who sacks wool. A variation suggests descent from Adam Le Sackere, a Norman knight in the Conqueror's army.

Continuing the warrior theme, a further version, said to have been researched and authenticated by genealogical historian Sir Charles Empson, is that the Sacketts were archers (from the Latin Sagittarius, an arrow) who came to Britain with Julius Caesar.

A book of surnames researched by H Gilbert Sackett (1918–1999) attributes the meaning to a "manufacturer of sacks", offering the scholarly proof that the "name is job descriptive and a patronymic or diminutive form of either the Old English pre-7th Century 'sacc' or the Norse-Viking 'Sekkr', describing a manufacturer of sacks and bags from coarse cloth, hence 'sack-cloth'. In this case we have 'the son of sacc' with the suffix 'petit', shortened to 'et' or 'ett' showing the medieval French influence onto an early 'English' metonymic."

In another book, Surnames of the UK, by Harrison, "Sack" is held to mean "adversary", with "-et" as a diminutive suffix, implying presumably that the Sacketts were small enemies!

Sackett family historian, Alfred Barrett Sackett (1895–1977), wrote that he believed that "the name originates on the analogy of Beckett which is known to derive from bee and cot and to mean a cottager or dweller who keeps bees." He explained further that, "the earliest form of Sackett is Saket and this almost certainly means therefore a cottager by the sea, which in Chaucer's time would be pronounced 'Say'."

Charles H Weygant, in his introduction to The Sacketts of America, linked the Sackets and Sacketts with the Sackvilles, proposing that all three of these branches were descended from Adam le Sackere, a purchaser and exporter of wool in the 14th century. Later research, however, has found no evidence of a relationship between the Sacketts and the Sackvilles.

The word "sacket" has two dictionary definitions: a bag; and a term of reproach or abuse.

So, were the first Sacketts makers of sacks, sackers of wool, Norman knights, or Roman archers? Or, were they seaside cottagers? One answer is that all these theories are likely wrong. Had any of these been the case then the name would surely have arisen independently in several places. But the concentration of the name in the early records in a small area of Thanet points to a single-family origin. Certainly, the surname, first found (as Saket) in 1317 in a list of tenants of the Abbot of St Augustine, is seen to predate the earliest recorded use (c1440) of the word "sakett" meaning a bag.

Spelling and pronunciation

The only extant spellings of the name are Sackett, Sacket, and Sackitt, with Sackett by far the predominant form, but with some one-T Sackets and an -itt Sackitt family proudly clinging to their versions. Little or no significance should be read into the variant spellings found in documents in earlier centuries although, as an aid to identification, earlier spellings such as Saket, Sakett, are used in this text. Generally, it may be assumed that these spellings were at the whim of the writer of the original record. It is not at all unusual to find the name spelled several ways in the same document, for example in some early wills.

The only known example of a variant spelling being preferred by the family, other than present-day Sackets and Sackitts, is that of Samuel Sackette (1793–1855) whose family of daughters also appear to have insisted on such a spelling in all their records.

As far as is known, the name is pronounced by all present-day Sacketts and Sackets to rhyme with "Packet", and this is assumed to have been so from the earliest times. Whether Samuel Sackette and his family emphasized the second syllable rather than the first, as is implied by this variant spelling, we cannot know.

How many Sacketts are there?

Although the name originated in England, there are now many more Sacketts in the United States. The great majority of these are in the line of Simon Sackett the colonist (1595–1635).

Sacketts in the UK number just over 600, giving a frequency of 10 per million, and a surname ranking of 9,322. There are about 5,900 Sacketts in the USA, a frequency of 19 per million, and a ranking of 5,994.† Canada has about 120 residents with the name and Australia about 80.

The ten-fold prevalence of the name in America compared with England is remarkable, especially as nearly all present-day American Sacketts are descended from just two original colonists. The rapid expansion in America is seen from the earliest generations there, with larger families and lower infant mortality leading to more children reaching maturity and themselves accelerating the expansion. A table showing numbers of Sacketts by generation appears later in this text.

The above figure of about 6,700 living Sacketts would include women marrying into the name and exclude Sackett-born women marrying out of the name. This statistical population does not, therefore, match the definition of Sacketts used in this book—that is those born with the name. The figure is, however, a reliable approximation.

The number of identified deceased individuals born with the Sackett name is about 9,000. It may then be concluded that the known all-time number born with the name is about 16,000 (as of 2023). In addition, there would have been a number of unrecorded Sacketts in the period between the 1200s, when surnames began to be used, and the late 1500s, when parish records began to be kept. Working backwards from the numbers recorded in the late 1500s and in the 1600s, there would have been several hundred, but surely fewer than a thousand, born in the preceding centuries. This would take the total all-time number born with the Sackett name to say 17,000.

Are all Sacketts related?

Surnames which originated as trades (Smith), places (Lee), patronymics (Johnson), or nicknames (White), generally arose independently in several places. Such names were adopted by, or given to, any number of unrelated people in many localities when surnames were first used in the 13th century.

One of the curiosities about the name Sackett is that it appears not to fit any of these standard origins. Instead, there is every reason to suppose that it derived from a single family in north-east Kent, quite probably at Sackett's Hill. The concentration of the name in such a small area of early Thanet points to a single-family origin, and it is a reasonable conclusion, therefore, that all Sacketts could be related.

Sackett origins

Map The Isle of Thanet in Roman times

Origin in the Isle of Thanet

The roots of the Sackett family lie deep in the soil of the Isle of Thanet in the north-east corner of Kent. Generations of yeoman farmers of the name are found in the records.

The earliest Sacketts are found concentrated in a relatively small area, mostly in the Isle of Thanet in the north-east corner of Kent. Thanet, no longer an island, was in early times separated from the rest of Kent by the Wantsum Channel. Early Sacketts would have needed to cross this sea channel by boat if journeying to Canterbury, a land crossing not being possible until the mid-1600s when the river had largely silted up, helped by centuries of land reclamation by neighbouring landholders.

The original epicentre of the Sackett family may be taken to be St Peter in Thanet, with large numbers of early parish records found there. Of the ten earliest Sackett wills, from the 1400s, seven were made by Sacketts living in St Peter in Thanet.

The ancient parishes of St Peter in Thanet, St John in Thanet, St Lawrence in Thanet, and Minster in Thanet feature throughout the Sackett history. All are inland, although the first three are only slightly so and they have been largely absorbed by, respectively, the growing coastal towns of Broadstairs, Margate, and Ramsgate. Minster, further inland, remains Minster.

Other Thanet towns featuring largely in this history are Birchington, St Nicholas at Wade, and Monkton.

The Sacketts gradually spread farther afield in Kent, and are recorded south of Thanet, in Sandwich, Great Mongeham, and Ringwould, and west in numerous villages, leading to Canterbury where, because of its significance, there are large numbers of records.

Tax lists and wills are earliest records

As if to prove Benjamin Franklin's aphorism "In this world nothing can be said to be certain, except death and taxes", the earliest records of Sacketts are found in tax lists and wills.

Records earlier than the late 1500s, when parish registers began to be compiled, are fragmentary. However, some "sightings" of Sacketts from the early 1300s have been found. These Sacketts would have been born in the late 1200s, at about the time that surnames generally became hereditary.

All of these early records are found in Kent, and nearly all in the Isle of Thanet. More than seven hundred years later, Thanet remains the predominant dwelling-place of English Sacketts.

Early records of the Sackett name appear in the Lay Subsidy (tax) rolls for Kent of 1327 (William Saket and John Saket in the hundred of Ringslow) and 1334/35 (Thos Saketh and Rd Saket' in the hundred of Ringslow, and Wm Saket in the bailiwick of Kay in Middeltone). The 1327 records are taken from *Archæologia Cantiana (*vol. 12, 1878, Kent Archaeological Society). The 1334/35 records are published in book form as Kent Lay Subsidy of 1334/5 (H A Hanley and C W Chalklin, editors, Kent Archaeological Society).

The Ringslow hundred was part of the Lathe of St Augustine and comprised most of Thanet, including Minster, Monkton, and St Nicholas at Wade. The bailiwick of Kay in Middeltone (Key Street in Milton) is now the village of Milton Regis within the town of Sittingbourne, some forty miles west of Thanet along the north coast of Kent. The route between Ringslow and Middeltone in medieval times is more likely to have been by sea than by land.

In the 1334/35 list, the transcribed Saketh name is assumed to be the same as Sakett, no other references to the name Saketh having been encountered to distinguish it as a distinct name. The name Saket', transcribed by the compilers with a single following inverted comma to denote a contraction the extension of which is doubtful, may also have been Saketh, or both instances may have referred to the name Sakett.

Earliest known Sacketts

The earliest records, of (1) William Saket in 1317 and of (3) John Saket in 1327, are found in St Peter in Thanet. Both were "assessed for considerable sums" on the subsidy roll of the Ringslow Hundred.

A William Saket is recorded in Late Mediaeval Thanet and the Cinque Ports (David Oliver, published by the author, 1997) as a tenant in dispute with the Abbot of St Augustine in 1317. James Bird, in The Story of Broadstairs and St Peter's (Lanes, East Kent), has a record of William Saket's appointment as the constable of Southborough, St Peter in Thanet, in 1318. These two records and the 1327 tax list are assumed to refer to the same William Saket.

Sacketts of yeoman stock

Most of the early Sacketts of whom we have knowledge were yeomen farmers. Surviving records are mostly of their wills, and these reveal not only family relationships but much detail of their landholdings and way of life. Those making wills in the early years were the more prosperous individuals who owned their tenements and farmlands and had property that they wished to leave to their successors in an orderly way.

There would also, of course, have been other, landless, Sacketts in the early years. These would have earned their living as farm labourers, working on the farms of the yeomen or the demesne lands of the lord of the manor. In the earliest years, these labouring Sacketts would have worked under the manorial system, tied to a single feudal lord, and eking out a meagre living on their own assigned strips of land.

Following the Black Death (1348–49), the consequent shortage of manpower meant that such labourers were in great demand and could command higher money wages. As free labourers, they could move to other villages to improve their lot. With land more plentiful because of the suddenly reduced population, some of them would have themselves acquired farms and joined the ranks of the yeomen.

Early Sackett wills

Information gleaned from wills forms the basis of the genealogical sketches of early Sacketts from the 1400s, before church records were kept. As only a small proportion of people left wills and in the absence of other data, the compiled records are inevitably fragmentary.

The earliest will of which we have a record (found in The History & Antiquities of the Isle of Thanet by John Lewis, published in 1736) is that of (7) John Sakett of Sandwich, Kent. In his will, made in 1444, John left £5 to buy ornamental altar cloths for St Peter's Church in Sandwich.

The earliest original surviving will is that of (8) Thomas Sakett of Minster in Thanet who made his will in January 1473/74. Thomas named his wife Alice, three sons, two brothers, and his executor, also a Sackett.

Cross-referencing the names, dates, and places with those in other wills helps form family groups into trees, a task made much easier when Sacketts were given interesting names such as Hugo or Solomon, but less easy when so many were named John, William, or Thomas. Readers may like to try their hand at unravelling more of the relationships from clues in the wills. The compiler will be pleased to receive new insights or further suggestions.

The will of (21) Solomon Sackett made in 1490 gives an interesting insight into the feudal system of land tenure in the late middle ages.

The will refers to feoffees, effectively trustees, who held the land in their names for the benefit of the landholder appointing them. This legal device allowed the avoidance of some feudal dues, particularly on inheritance, and allowed a landholder to leave his land to anyone, not only to his eldest son.

Solomon's feoffees were requested in his will to sell an acre of land, paying the money to his executors to cover his debts and bequests. He also requested them to enfeoff, that is to transfer ownership of, a further two acres of land to a Thomas Spraclyng.

At this period, transfers of tangible property, i.e. land and buildings, had to take place not by a document but by an act representing the passing of property. A key in the case of buildings or a turf in the case of land would be handed over in the presence of witnesses. This handing over would then be documented in a feoffment, this document being not the instrument of transfer itself but merely a record that the transfer had taken place.

Parish registers

Church records of baptisms, marriages, and burials in England began to be kept from the mid-1500s. The earliest Sackett church records, from the 1560s, are concentrated in the ancient Thanet parishes, the great majority in St Peter, with some in the neighbouring parishes of St John to the north, St Lawrence to the south, and Minster to the west.

While there may be some gaps in the records, and records of other parishes may not have been made available for publication, the data that are available show clearly that the origin of the Sacketts may be pinpointed to St Peter in Thanet.

The earliest records of Sacketts in London are found in parishes in the City of London and in Westminster in the late 1500s.

(52) William Sackett was buried in Westminster in 1559, and (53) Edmond Sackett and (54) Peter Sackett were buried in the City of London in 1569 and 1572 respectively. (63) Katerin Sackett married in the City in 1570.

No other records have been found. It has therefore not been possible to determine their origins or link them to other Sacketts.

Sackett's Hill

Sackett's Hill lies within the parish of St Peter in Thanet, just off the Dane Court Road, about a twenty-minute walk from St Peter's Church along part of the thousand-year-old path that connects the ancient churches of St Lawrence, St Peter, and St John—the same path trodden over the centuries by many generations of Sacketts.

The "hill" rises only slightly above the surrounding countryside. It was described by family historian Alfred Barrett Sackett in 1962 as "a treed oasis in a plain land of bare houses and fields."

Sackett's Hill today is home to about a dozen households, a market gardening business, and a waste sorting plant. The remains of the once-proud Sackett's Hill House, a fine Georgian mansion burnt to the ground in 1942 are long-gone, the stone and brick reused in a modern bungalow on the site.

Still there, however, is Sackett's Hill Farmhouse, a grade II listed building dating from about 1680. This house was empty for many years and in a dilapidated state when members of the Sackett Family Association visited Thanet at the 2008 reunion. The house was then being offered for sale and has since been restored to a high standard.

The earliest Sackett known to have occupied the hill (although there were surely earlier generations of Sacketts there) was (39) Richard Saket the younger who, by his will of 1545, left his lands and tenements at Sackett's Hill to his wife Crystian until their son John reached 21 when he would inherit. Son John continued to live and farm at Sackett's Hill and was described in his will of 1590 as a husbandman of Sackett's Hill. The last Sackett to own the hill was (355) Richard Sackett (1717–1789), a yeoman farmer and wealthy landowner who owned not just Sackett's Hill but also the Manor of Dane Court, as well as a fine mansion at East Northdown, and several other houses and farms in the area.

Robert Sakett of St Peter in Thanet (Line 1)

The line of (39) Richard Saket the younger of Sackett's Hill goes back to his grandfather (14) Robert Sakett of St Peter in Thanet. Robert is the earliest Sackett whose line can be traced over several generations. The line extended over five generations, with 17 identified Sackett descendants, but daughtered out in the early 1600s, the children of (55) John Sacket of Sackett's Hill being the last known Sackett descendants of the line.

William Sackett of St John in Thanet (Line 2)

The earliest Sackett whose line extends to the present day is (32) William Sackett of St John in Thanet. William made his will in 1511, leaving his estate to his wife Alice during her lifetime, and then to his son John. He also had a daughter, Alice. The son John died in 1529, leaving a wife, two sons, and two daughters.

Working backwards, it may be deduced that William was born in the mid-1400s.

A number of William's living descendants have been identified. However, none bears the Sackett name, the last of the name having "daughtered out" in the 1800s, with the daughters of Samuel Sackette (1793–1855)—the Sackett who adopted and apparently insisted upon the variant spelling.

A total of 628 descendants of this line have been identified of whom 249 were born with the Sackett name.

Thomas Sackett the elder of St Peter in Thanet (Line 3)

The progenitor of the vast majority of Sackett descendants is (59) Thomas Sackett the elder of St Peter in Thanet (say 1530–1595). Some 33,000 descendants (30,500 American and 2,500 English) have been identified of whom 8,100 (6,800 American and 1,300 English) were born with the Sackett name. Thomas was the grandfather of (117) Simon Sackett the colonist (1595–1635) who emigrated from Thanet to the Massachusetts Bay Colony in 1631.

Thomas was described in his will as a labourer, implying that he was not a wealthy man. However, he did own land and a tenement in St Peter's, which he passed on to his first son, Thomas Sackett the younger, Simon's father. He also left sums of money and livestock to his other children.

Thomas the younger, Simon's father

Simon Sackett the colonist's father, (82) Thomas Sackett the younger, was a yeoman farmer in the Thanet parish of Birchington and was a churchwarden at Birchington Church. He held a lease on his house and land at Birchington and also owned a house and land at St Peter's. He left instructions in his will for his properties to be sold, and for each of his sons to receive a sum of £10, each daughter £5, and each of two grandchildren fifty shillings, all at age 21.

Thomas died in 1615. His son Simon was then 20 years of age, so would have received his inheritance soon after.

Thomas the younger’s brother George

All present-day English Sacketts born with the name are descended from (85) George Sackett (c1565–1612), younger son of Thomas Sackett the elder and brother of Thomas the younger. George would appear not to have had lands of his own. He had inherited £12 from his father who died in 1595, but his father's tenement had gone to George's elder brother Thomas. George died in 1612 and was described in the burials register at St Peter in Thanet as a "poor man", presumably indicating that he had been maintained by the parish.

Relative prosperity of the Sackett lines

It is evident that, from an early date, there was quite a disparity in the prosperity of the two main English lines, with line 2 headed by (32) William Sackett (mid-1400s–c 1511) of St John in Thanet being significantly wealthier than line 3 headed by (59) Thomas Sackett the elder (say 1530–1595) of St Peter in Thanet.

The difference is seen to continue through the succeeding generations, with the Sacketts in William's line being more likely to be landowners and therefore more likely to make wills, more likely to be of the yeoman class or to enter the church, and, in later generations, more likely to run their own businesses.

The wealthier Sacketts were also more likely to need recourse to the courts to settle disputes. Court records are often a rich source of historical family detail.

In William Sackett's line, we have records of lands passed on by will through several generations: William, the head of line, to son John; John to his sons, John and William; William to sons, Robert, Edward, and John. And these three also made wills.

In the period before the keeping of church records, the wills enable us to build a genealogy (although a wider choice of first names would have been helpful) and to learn a little of their lives. In the cases of Robert and his brother John of the fourth generation in this line, further historical "flesh on the bones" is also available in court records.

Gentlemen in the family

A few Sacketts in past centuries styled themselves as "gentleman", ranking themselves in the English social hierarchy below an esquire but above a yeoman. The term was loosely defined but would generally indicate the lowest rank of the landed gentry. They would typically be landowners of sufficient means, usually inherited, such that they need not work.

An early claimant to the rank of gentleman was (43) Thomas Sacket of St Peter in Thanet. He was so described in his will made in 1545. Despite the "gentleman" tag, he appears not to have been particularly wealthy. He was unmarried and left a house to his brother-in-law. But, apart from the house, monetary bequests stated in his will were small.

Later gentlemen in the next century, (168) Nathaniel Sackett of Canterbury and his brother (172) Samuel Sackett of Braunston, Lincolnshire, were men of means, both having inherited land and other assets from their wealthy father, (107) the Rev John Sackett, rector of Great Mongeham, Kent, and master of Eastbridge Hospital, Canterbury.

The Court of Chancery, London

The Court of Chancery was the principal court of equity from the late 14th to the late 19th centuries and had jurisdiction in civil disputes in England and Wales. Appeals from the Court of Chancery were made to the House of Lords. The Court became the Chancery Division of the High Court of Justice in 1875.

Cases brought to court were often disputes between members of the same family over, for example, land, trusts, marriage settlements or wills. The documents therefore often contain useful genealogical information.

The main pleadings in the Court were a plaintiff's Bill of Complaint and a defendant's Answer. The Court took depositions from witnesses attending in person, either in the Court or, often, at other places more convenient to the witness. Bills of Complaint, Answers, and Witness Statements were all recorded by Clerks to the Court. Decisions of the Court were recorded as Decrees and Orders.

A number of members of the Sackett family found themselves involved in Chancery Court hearings.

Robert Sackett's disputed estate

Making his will in 1622, (77) Robert Sackett, a yeoman of St John in Thanet, left land in St John and in Ickham and Wingham, Kent. The land in Ickham was the subject of a long-running dispute over ownership, involving his son (96) Paul Sackett. Paul's brother, (91) William Sackett, also gave evidence.

Robert had bought the lands in Ickham and Wingham in 1609 for £60 from William Parker, the parties agreeing that Parker would continue to occupy the lands upon payment of an "annuity" of £6—effectively a sale-and-leaseback arrangement.

A few years later, William Parker, claiming that he had bought out the annuity, sold parts of the lands to various purchasers.

Robert Sackett died in 1622 and left the residue of his estate, including the deed of annuity, to his son Paul. Inclusion of the deed in his will implied that Robert believed it was still in force, although it appears that no rent had been received for some years.

Paul Sackett sought, through an action at common law in the Palace of Canterbury and under threat of repossession, to recoup twelve years' rent arrears from Richard Hurlston, who was now in possession of some of the land.

The dispute remained unresolved for some years until, in 1632, Richard Hurlston sought to bring the matter to a conclusion by actioning Paul Sackett in the Court of Chancery in London, Hurleston claiming that William Parker had discharged the annuity in 1612 by paying to Robert Sackett in the North porch of the parish church of Ashe, as required by the deed of annuity, a capital sum of £63.

Hurleston disputed that he owed anything to Paul Sackett, but that if he did it would be only his fair share with other holders of the lands once owned by William Parker.

This failed to resolve the dispute and the matter rested for several more years until, in 1638, Paul Sackett actioned, again in the Court of Chancery, William Jones, Henry Austen, Edward Hubberd, Simon Hurlestone, and William Brewer, the then holders of the William Parker lands, for enforcement of the deed of annuity.

Paul Sackett claimed that William Parker had not only failed to pay the rent due under the deed but had conspired with others to subdivide and sell the lands, rendering some of the lands unidentifiable through change of use and through merging with other landholdings.

The case became acrimonious, with each side accusing the other of behaving fraudulently.

Unfortunately, the crucial document giving the Court's decision has not been found, so that the outcome of the case is unknown. However, it must have been the cause of a major rift for a very long time, not least because Paul Sackett's older brother William Sackett was married to Joan Parker, a cousin of William Parker.

The period between the original purchase of the land and the court case was nearly thirty years.

Robert’s brother John

Another Sackett of some social standing in this period was Robert's brother (81) John Sackett (1564–1623/24), of St Peter in Thanet. He is memorialised on a brass plate, prominently displayed on a pillar in St Peter's Church, and much photographed by members of the Sackett Family Association attending the 2008 reunion in Thanet.

Here lyeth interred the corps of John Sackett
late of this Parrish who yelded his Spirit into his Saviours hands in the 59 yere of his age upon the 24 of February Anno Dn'i 1623.

John had inherited lands from his father, including land at Church Hill, St Peter in Thanet. His prominence in the community is illustrated by his listing in militia muster rolls for Thanet. In 1599 he furnished arms for one of the St Peter's armed men and for one of the calivers (bearers of portable firearms), and he was a member of the St Peter's Pikes.

The muster rolls give a clue to John Sackett's status and prosperity. In 1614, St Peter's parish as a whole furnished 25 corslets (soldiers' body armour). Of the parishioners bound to furnish them, one provided three corslets, and two parishioners, of whom John was one, provided two corslets each, the remainder being furnished one per parishioner so bound.

Sacketts spread out from Thanet in 1600s

During the 1600s, the majority of Sacketts were still to be found in the Isle of Thanet, although several families were becoming established in other parts of eastern Kent. The roots of most of these families may be traced back to Thanet.

Those who did move beyond the Thanet area did not move far. All remained within eastern Kent and nearly all were established within 20 miles or so, about a day's walk, of St Peter in Thanet.

Notes

†These figures are the numbers of events having a person named Sackett as the principal or, for marriages, one of the principals. The numbers of baptisms and marriages (except possibly for a few second marriages) relate to individuals born with the Sackett name. There is an evident discrepancy in the number of burials relative to baptisms, probably due to unrecorded burials at a time of high infant mortality. Also, the burials figures include women with the married name of Sackett but exclude women born Sackett but with different married names. The figures, therefore, do not relate strictly to the same statistical populations. However, they may be considered sufficient to give a fair representation of the extent of the spread of the Sackett family during the 17th century.

Sackett events in the 1600s

Sackett clergy were early migrants

The Sacketts removing furthest from the Thanet area during the 1600s were two of the sons and one of the daughters of (81) John Sackett of St Peter in Thanet (1564–1624), the well-to-do Sackett whose memorial brass is mounted at St Peter's Church. The two sons were members of the clergy and the daughter married a clergyman. Son John, (107) Rev John Sackett (1596–1664), took a living at Great Mongeham, Kent, 15 miles south of Thanet, while his brother, (111) Rev Stephen Sackett (1605–1678), moved to Blean, Kent, 20 miles west of Thanet. Their sister (104) Margaret Sackett (1589–1647) married Rev Thomas Cleybrooke who had a living at Swalecliffe, 17 miles west of Thanet and five miles from Blean.

So started a dynasty of vicars, with five Sackett men (three of them unhelpfully named John) entering the church. Of the first Rev John's ten children, two became priests, (166) Rev John Sackett (1631–1680), and (171) Rev George Sackett (c1642–). Another son of the first Rev John, (168) Nathaniel Sackett (1636–1682), was to have a son, another John, (270) Rev John Sackett (1670–1753).

The first in the line of vicars, (107) Rev John Sackett, was the rector of Great Mongeham for 36 years. He was also master of Eastbridge Hospital in Canterbury, in which role he was involved in a case at the Chancery Court in London concerning a disputed lease of houses and a shop owned by the hospital. As a result of his church living at Great Mongeham and as master of Eastbridge Hospital and by inheritance, Rev John Sackett was a wealthy man. He left some £900 in money as well as several landholdings.

John's brother, (111) Rev Stephen Sackett, was vicar of Blean for 47 years from 1631 until his death in 1678. He was also involved in the Eastbridge Hospital court case.

Both John and Stephen were awarded BA and MA degrees at Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge, and both were subsequently awarded their Bachelor of Divinity degrees at Oxford University.

John's son, (166) Rev John Sackett, followed in his father's and uncle's footsteps, being awarded BA and MA degrees at Sidney Sussex College. He became Prebendary of Lincoln. His brother, (171) Rev George Sackett, took the same route, with degrees at Sidney Sussex College, then becoming ordained a priest in Lincoln.

Neither of the brothers, John and George, of Lincoln, was married, so there were no further Johns in their lines. However, their brother Nathaniel, a gentleman of Canterbury (who also owned lands at Sackett's Hill in St Peter in Thanet), did have a son, John.

This John, (270) Rev John Sackett was awarded his BA and MA degrees at Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, and was ordained deacon in Lincoln in 1693 and priest in London in 1696 before becoming vicar of Folkestone, Kent, serving there for 54 years from 1699 to his death in 1753. He benefitted from multiple livings, being also rector of Hawking and vicar of West Hythe, also in Kent, and he succeeded his grandfather as master of Eastbridge Hospital, Canterbury.

It was this Rev John who earned a footnote in history by writing to the Royal Society with an account of "a very uncommon sinking of the Earth, near Folkestone in Kent", a detail picked up by Charles Weygant and related in his Sacketts of America. A copy of his letter has been obtained and may be viewed on the Sackett Family Association website. In the letter, he described a "remarkable" phenomenon, "known to almost all hereabouts, concerning the pressing forward of the Cliffs, and sinking of the Hills in the Neighbourhood of our Town of Folkestone."

Emigration to the New World: Simon Sackett the colonist

Undoubtedly, the most significant event in the Sackett story is the emigration from Kent, England, to the New World.

The Sacketts were among the early colonists of America, with (117) Simon Sackett arriving at the Massachusetts Bay Colony in about 1631, shortly after the Winthrop Fleet of 1630 and just ten years after the Pilgrim Fathers sailed in the Mayflower. (201) John Sackett, allegedly a nephew of Simon's, arrived in New Haven sometime before 1641.

We do not know why they decided to emigrate, nor exactly how they got there. The first "sightings" in America were of Simon in a list of the first eight inhabitants of Newtown, Massachusetts, recorded in The Towne Book of Newtowne in 1631 or 1632, and of John as a servant in New Haven in 1641.

Neither of the colonists features in the histories as a significant member of the religious community in New England. It seems likely that their decisions to emigrate were more to do with the prospect of a better, more prosperous future. Neither was a man of means. Simon was a descendant in the less well-to-do Sackett line. He did not own land and was in debt to his brother. As noted above, John of New Haven was a servant.

Although there have been some later arrivals, nearly all American Sacketts can trace their line back to one of these two men. More than 30,000 descendants of Simon have been identified, some 7,000 of them born with the Sackett name. John's known descendants number more than 5,000, of whom 1,100 were born Sacketts. (Figures at October 2023).

Given the prolific expansion of his line in later generations, it is a bitter irony that Simon did not himself survive long in the New World. He was probably not yet forty when he died in Newtown in 1635.

Simon's origin in the Isle of Thanet is well documented, with records found for his parents, Thomas Sackett the younger and Martha Strowde, and grandparents, Thomas Sackett the elder and Joane. By contrast, the ancestry of John of New Haven remains a tantalising mystery.

Another Simon Sackett

The name Simon is rare among the Sacketts. In contrast to the Johns, who number more than 300 and cause frequent confusion, there are only four Simons in American records besides Simon the colonist, all of them his descendants. In English records, only one other Simon has been found. (60) Simon Sackett was a contemporary of the colonist's grandfather Thomas Sackett the elder. All we know of him is that he baptized a son Barnabus at St Peter in Thanet in 1569. It is a reasonable guess that he fits into this line somewhere.

John Sackett of New Haven (Line 4)

The family tradition, as retold by Charles Weygant in The Sacketts of America, that Simon and his brother went together to America, in company with Roger Williams, the Puritan minister and theologian, while not to be entirely dismissed, cannot be substantiated and a significant item of "evidence" relied upon by Weygant is found to be flawed.

Weygant's interpretation of the tradition, supported by a mistaken reading by one of Weygant's correspondents of a 1684 inventory of estate, led him to conclude that John of New Haven was the son of another John who would be Simon's brother. The inventory is of the estate of John of New Haven but the name in the heading of the inventory was read wrongly as John Sackett Junior, thereby implying the existence of a John Sackett Senior. The inventory is in fact headed John Sackett Senior, John of New Haven by then also having a son John.

Simon Sackett did have a brother John (why are there so many Johns?) and it is actually possible that he could have gone to America and then gone back again. However, recent DNA studies of the test results of descendants of both major American Sackett lines suggest that the two lines are not related, throwing up yet more questions.

Various possibilities for the origin of John of New Haven are discussed in his detailed genealogical sketch.

The family expands rapidly in America

The Sackett colonists and their children became quickly and firmly established in America and the family expanded rapidly. Within just a few generations, the numbers there exceeded those in the old country. The expansion continued so that there are now about ten times as many Sacketts in America as there are in England.

The following table shows the numbers of known persons born with the Sackett name in each generation.

Birth (baptism) records were not kept until about the mid-1500s. Simon Sackett's generation (he was born in 1595) is the first in which we can identify Sacketts from that source. Record-keeping was at first patchy.

Some records will have been lost. Children of dissenters may have been baptized privately, or not baptized. Records are therefore incomplete. Gaps in the records are often found when trying to correlate baptism, marriage, and burial records. Using a combination of these sources, as well as wills, we have found 43 Sacketts in Simon's generation. For the reasons given, this is very likely an undercount.

Records of known Sacketts in earlier generations are derived mostly from wills. The numbers are quoted here partly as an aid to progress in the compilation of this genealogy. They should not be relied upon as a demographic analysis. The best that can be said regarding the numbers of Sacketts in the generations up to and including Simon's generation is that there would have been several tens of persons per generation, but almost certainly well below a hundred.

From Simon's generation onward, with more and better records to refer to, the figures become more reliable and may be taken to provide good demographic data. An accurate comparison may then be made of the growth of the family in England and America. The number of English Sackett births grew in the next few generations and had reached 109 by the fourth generation after Simon's departure. However, this number was already exceeded by American Sackett births with 126 in that generation. This difference in birth rate was to grow exponentially in succeeding generations.

In Generation O, six generations on from Simon Sackett's immigration to the New World, there were 185 Sackett births in England, but nearly four times as many in America, with a total of 726. This would have reflected the increasing prosperity, easy availability of land, and the go-getting optimism of the early American settlers, as well as religious and social encouragement of large families, earlier marriage, and lower infant mortality.

Early Sackett settlements

The Sacketts in America became established in three main settlements during the early years—in Westfield, Long Island, and New Haven.

After his death, Simon's widow Isabel and her young sons, Simon Junior and John, moved from Newtown, near Boston, to Hartford, Connecticut, making the 100-mile westward trek with the Hooker congregation. She married William Bloomfield, also a member of the congregation. As adults, brothers Simon Junior and John moved from Hartford 25 miles north to Springfield, Massachusetts.

The elder son, (190) Simon Sackett (1630–1659), married his stepsister Sarah Bloomfield, daughter of William Bloomfield, in Springfield. Simon died aged 29, but his son, (283) Joseph Sackett (1656–1719), later Captain Joseph, moved sometime before 1678 from Springfield to Newtown, Long Island (not to be confused with Newtown, Massachusetts, by now renamed Cambridge), where his eleven children were born. It would appear that, his father having died at a young age, Joseph remained close to his Bloomfield grandparents. They had removed from Hartford to New London, Connecticut, in 1659 and from there to Newtown in 1662. Joseph's mother Sarah, after her husband Simon's early death, had remarried, to Lambert Woodward. William Bloomfield deeded to his daughter in 1663 his homestead in New London, to be held until her son Joseph came of age when it would go to him. It is unclear whether Joseph's mother and stepfather also moved to Newtown. In any event, he was there by 1678. Joseph Sackett, later Captain Joseph, was the progenitor of the large Long Island branch of the Sackett family.

The younger son, (191) John Sackett (1632–1719), after marrying Abigail Hannum in Northampton, Massachusetts, in 1659, moved from Springfield to nearby Westfield in about 1670. He died there in 1719. Of his nine children, seven lived to adulthood, married, and had children of their own, most of them remaining in the area. Westfield was to be a major location for generations of Sacketts until modern times.

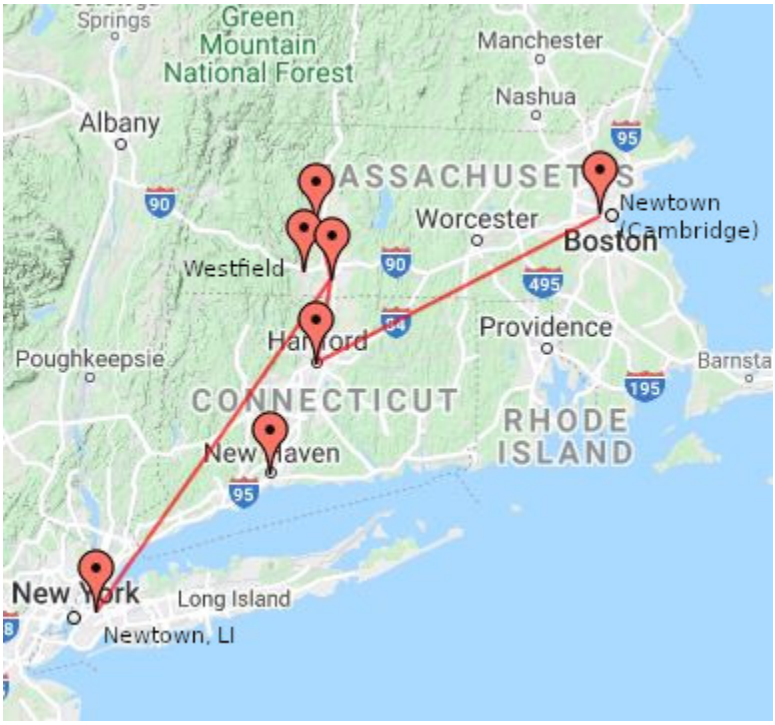
The New Haven branch, headed by (201) John Sackett of New Haven, remained settled there for several generations.



Early Sacketts were in Newtown MA, Westfield MA, New Haven CT, & Newtown LI

Jeffery Sackett, Mayor of Sandwich

While the early American Sacketts sought to carve out a living in the New World, Sacketts in the old country continued to pursue their ambitions, especially those in the more well-to-do Sackett line. Not all were of the highest virtue.

Records of a case in the Court of Chancery, involving (146) Jeffery Sackett (1617–1695), Mayor of Sandwich, Kent, reveal much detail of domestic disharmony and serve as a reminder that human nature is not much changed down the centuries.

Jeffery, a cousin of the reverend Sacketts, was a son of (91) William Sackett, who had been involved in the long-running dispute over the ownership of lands in Ickham and Wingham.

Evidently an ambitious man, Jeffery became a freeman of Sandwich in 1639 by marriage (he was not a native of Sandwich, having been born in St John in Thanet), was elected a common councillor in 1660, and was mayor of Sandwich no fewer than three times—in 1674, 1687, and 1693.

Jeffery started the action in the Court of Chancery in 1677 when he sued his stepson for the costs of his maintenance and schooling, claiming that the costs should be met from an inheritance from the boy's father. It was counterclaimed that he had been paid what was due. That seemed to resolve the matter but, five years later in 1682, the stepson actioned Jeffery for an alleged debt under a bond that Jeffery had entered into when he married the boy's mother.

Jeffery responded by resurrecting the claim for maintenance costs against his stepson and other "confederates". The court action dragged on for two years with each side producing witnesses. The whole episode became a long-running sore, blighting Jeffery's marriage, with acrimony on all sides.

Resentments bordering on vindictiveness came to the surface, with one of Jeffery's witnesses even presenting to the court the information that the young stepson "by reason he was duringe that time troubled with a flux of urine whereby he did rott and spoile the beddinge and linnen whereon he lay" caused Jeffery to incur a maintenance cost of £14 in the year instead of £12.

This literal airing of dirty linen in public, the idea that a man would record the extra costs caused by a child's bedwetting, and the testimony of other witnesses to his unkindness and cruelty mean that Jeffery does not emerge well from this case.

There are, of course, two sides to an argument, and we should hesitate to condemn.

However, a much earlier judgement of the man appears to have been made by his father William. He died when Jeffery was still a young man of 22. William effectively cut Jeffery out of his will, leaving him a derisory one shilling while leaving substantial sums to the other children. He also specifically excluded Jeffery from a share of any proceeds of the annuity which was then the subject of the dispute over land being heard at the Court of Chancery.

Perhaps at that early stage, William had the measure of his son. But perhaps, too, it was this early setback that gave Jeffery the drive to pursue a course to high office.

Was Elizabeth Sacket kidnapped by the Indians?

While Mayor Jeffery was complaining to the English court about his excess laundry bills, his American cousins in Westfield, Massachusetts, faced a threat on an altogether different scale—that of Indian raids. Town records there include the death of a four-year-old girl, (291) Elizabeth Sacket (1677–1682), a daughter of Westfield settler John Sacket and a granddaughter of Simon the colonist.

Deaths in childhood were then sadly a commonplace and such an event would normally go unremarked in a genealogical history. But Elizabeth became the subject of an extraordinary claim—that the record of her death in Westfield in June 1682 was in error and that, instead, she had been taken by the Indians in a raid on the family farm. She was then, according to this version, brought up by the Indians in the north-west part of New York State, marrying into the tribe and bearing a son, later identified as Chief Sackett.

Like all good stories, this has elements of fact, but there is an appearance of later historians embellishing the work of their predecessors, and there are significant inconsistencies.

It would appear from reliable histories that there really was an Indian chief named Sackett. He was said to be a half-blooded Indian descended from a captive white mother taken in a raid at Westfield.

However, evidence to support the claim that his mother was this Elizabeth Sacket has not been found. It seems improbable, had Elizabeth been abducted in a raid, that she would have been recorded in the Westfield register as having died. There were no other unaccounted-for Sackett daughters in Westfield at the relevant time. And a record in Westfield histories of an Indian raid in 1682 has not been found.

Chief Sackett's parentage remains a mystery.

Brick walls

Orphan line of Captain Richard Sackett of New York

Among a number of brick walls in the Sackett tree is (395) Capt Richard Sackett of New York (late 1670s–1746). He was stated in The Sacketts of America to be the son of (298) Jonathan Sackett and grandson of John Sackett of New Haven. However, further research has failed to find any evidence linking him to the New Haven line.

Some 3,600 descendants of Captain Richard have been found, just over 500 of them born with the Sackett name.

Another brick wall: Thomas Sackett of Hopewell, New Jersey

(607) Thomas Sackett of Hopewell (say 1720–) was stated in The Sacketts of America to be the son of (356) Simon Sackett and Mary McGraw. However, later research, specifically the detail of Simon's will, has disproved this link.

Although Thomas's parents have not yet been identified, DNA test results indicate that he was almost certainly a descendant of Simon Sackett the colonist. He is accordingly identified with Line 3 and is shown in this genealogy as head of orphan line 3.2.

Records of nearly 1,500 descendants, including nearly 500 Sacketts, have been found in this line.

Captain John Sackett of Margate: Adventures of a sea dog

It would be expected, given Thanet's coastal location, with significant seaports at Margate and Ramsgate and nearby Sandwich, that numbers of Sacketts would have earned their livings as seafarers. In fact, few did. Simon the colonist's brother, John the fisherman, was one exception. Another exception, but on a more adventurous scale, was (445) Captain John Sackett (1697–1753), mariner of Margate, Kent.

Captain John was master of several ocean-going ships and some of his adventures would not have been out of place in the pages of Boy's Own Paper. He survived storms and shipwrecks and, on one return voyage across the Atlantic from America, escaped after being captured by French Men of War.

He regularly ran cargoes of tobacco from Virginia to England. One such voyage, in 1733, resulted in a court action when Captain Sackett sued his American producers for failing to supply an agreed 150 hogsheads of tobacco. The defendants claimed that Sackett's ship, the Bedwell, was late in arriving at Virginia because he had called first without agreement at Lisbon in Portugal, a charge refuted by Sackett who claimed the Lisbon diversion was agreed and that he had arrived in Virginia in good time.

In the following year, 1734, the Bedwell, laden with wheat, and with John Sackett as master, foundered on the coast of Cadiz, Spain, the newspapers reporting that the ship "is intirely lost, and only a few Sacks of her cargo is saved."

Surviving an Atlantic storm a few years later, in 1738, Captain Sackett left a vivid account of the damage caused to his ship Prince William when "he met with a Storm of Wind at W.N.W. and S.W. which lasted for six Days, by which he shipp'd a great Quantity of Water; and on the 24th of November he shipp'd a Sea, which fill'd his Decks fore and aft; stav'd both his Boats, and wash'd them over-board, broke the Stancheons between Decks, stove a Hogshead of Rum in the Hold, tore up the larboard Gunnel fore and aft, broke several Top-timbers, wash'd away the Fire-place, Hen-coops, Water-casks, Binnacle, two Compasses, Spare-yards, Top masts, Booms, Fore-tops, Tarpawlins of five Hatches; so much Water fell between Decks as stove and wash'd overboard the Mens Chests, broke the Tiller, knock'd the Man down at the Helm and bruis'd him very much, and the Ship lay Gunnel under Water for two Hours."

In 1746 Captain Sackett's ship Sarah and Elizabeth was captured by French Men of War while returning to England from Antigua in company with the West India Fleet. His ship was subsequently retaken by British privateers and he was able to sail to safety in southern Ireland.

Essex Sacketts

A line of English Sacketts (identified here as Line 6), with about 200 identified descendants, is found in Essex from the late 1600s. It is assumed that this line is related to the Thanet Sacketts although a link has not yet been made. It is also assumed that these Sacketts would have become established in the Hornchurch area of Essex after moving from London, rather than in a direct move from Kent.

The line is headed by (304) Richard Sackett of South Weald (say 1670–). Richard is described for purposes of identification as "of South Weald" as he had a son, Thomas, baptized there. We know nothing more of Richard. His children are all identified with events in Hornchurch, five miles away.

One son, another Richard, (409) Richard Sackett (c1696–1758), was, unusually, married at Fleet Prison in London. So-called irregular or clandestine marriages were performed without the formality of banns or a licence by some clergymen, often those imprisoned for debt, who used the fees to pay for privileges such as the right to live outside the prison gates. Quite why Richard and his bride Mary Baker sought such a no-questions-asked marriage is not known.

Another Essex line (Line 7) is found in Childerditch a couple of generations later from the mid-1700s. Childerditch is just a few miles from both Hornchurch and South Weald. This line has 88 descendants and is headed by (638) Martin Sackett of Childerditch (say 1730–1785). Lines 6 and 7 almost certainly have the same origin, but the link has not yet been found.

Nathaniel Sackett, Washington's spymaster

During the American War of Independence, (499) Nathaniel Sackett served as a spymaster in the revolutionary cause. He was appointed by George Washington in February 1777 to obtain intelligence on the plans of the British enemy forces. His work involved the recruitment of agents and informers behind the enemy lines, if necessary paid from a purse of $500 sanctioned by Washington.

Nathaniel set up an intelligence-gathering network in the New York area and was soon reporting information gathered in the field to Continental Congressman William Duer, who had recommended him to General Washington. Nathaniel evidently had the ear of Washington, making recommendations for the deployment of troops as well as running the spy network. He was also an influential member of the General Committee of Safety, effectively an executive governing power authorized to act during the emergency.

The family spreads through New England

During the 1700s the Sacketts began to spread out from the early settlements in the Westfield/Springfield area of Massachusetts, New Haven in Connecticut, and Long Island, New York. There was a significant expansion into upstate New York, in particular into Dutchess and Albany counties. Some Sackett families had moved by the end of the century into Pennsylvania.

The map below shows the locations of Sackett households recorded in the first federal census in 1790.

Augustus Sacket of Sackets Harbor

(711) Augustus Sacket (1769–1827) was a New York lawyer and businessman who achieved fame when he acquired substantial tracts of unimproved land on the south-east shore of Lake Ontario and, in 1801, founded what was to become the strategically-important village of Sackets Harbor.

Augustus Sacket's mansion, built 1802

Sackets Harbor is the best known of Sackett places. Because of its sheltered position in Black River Bay, on the south-east shore of Lake Ontario, it was of major strategic importance during the War of 1812 as headquarters of the Northern Army and Fleet.

The village is a New York State Heritage Area with exceptional historic attractions. Augustus Sacket's mansion is now the Visitor Center.

The Coats of Arms myth

Several coats of arms and crests for members of the Sackett family have been claimed. All are entirely bogus. No individual Sackett has ever been entitled to an achievement of arms. And there is no such thing as a coat of arms for a family name.

The publishing of fake or counterfeit coats of arms is nothing new. The most repeated so-called Sackett arms, comprising a chevron and three six-pointed stars, began life in a book published in 1815. The arms were stated to have belonged to Sir William Sackett who had received a baronetcy in 1673.

Research reveals that the real baronet was Sir William Blacket. The Sackett claim was a deliberate forgery.

Having debunked the concept of a Sackett coat of arms, it must be admitted that some of the designs are ingenious, with apparently persuasive descriptions. As novelty items, they are not without interest; they should not, however, be taken seriously. The following are illustrated at the end of this section.

- The East India Register for 1815 has an illustration of the arms of an alleged but imaginary Sir William Sackett, noted above. Charles Weygant included the illustration in The Family Record, which he published in 1897, but it is interesting to note that he dropped it from his 1907 The Sacketts of America, perhaps having come to doubt the authenticity of the item.
- Crozier's General Armory (1904) has details of entitlement to arms claimed by brothers Charles Woodward Sackett (1845–1917) and Colonel Henry Woodward Sackett (1853–1929), citing their descent from Simon Sackett the colonist and John Sackett, Simon's son. There is no evidence to support a claim that Simon Sackett had an entitlement to arms. The same claim to entitlement appeared in Matthews' American Armoury (1907). It would appear that it would have been Charles and Henry Sackett themselves who had submitted the information in order, presumably, to document their claim to the arms.

- The World Book of Sacketts (c 1960s) has a version of the arms as "officially documented in Crozier's General Armory", repeating the heraldic description and adding an explanation of the terms. The arms are not attributed to a named Sackett and, in describing them as "the Sackett coat of arms", the publishers are propounding the myth that arms can belong to a family name.
- HouseofNames.com offers for sale "The Ancient Arms of Sackett", accompanied by historical details which, in their almost complete inaccuracy, are testaments to the bogus nature of the product. They place the English Sacketts in the wrong county, Worcestershire instead of Kent, claim wrongly that they were Lords of the Manor, and have the migrants settling in five wrong places in America, but not in the right ones.
- The bulls' heads coat of arms and an accompanying "Family Name History" were received as a gift by a Sackett Family Association member.
- The little sacks version of the coat of arms is perhaps a favourite, the symbolism echoing a bizarre theory about the meaning of the name.

Notable Sacketts

Famous and infamous

No Sackett has achieved prominence to the point of becoming a household name, although some have come close. The Sacketts have been adventurers, ambassadors, churchmen, colonists, generals, historians, inventors, newspapermen, sea captains, settlers, spymasters, and war heroes, as well as countless farmers of all ranks—from wealthy yeomen to aspiring husbandmen and struggling agricultural labourers. The family even boasts a town mayor, a bigamist, and a highway robber, and has its fair share of eccentrics.

Selected notable Sacketts—some famous, some infamous, and some just interesting

Notables having sketches in this edition

- (1) William Saket (late 1200s–after 1327), of Southborough, St Peter in Thanet, is the earliest recorded Sackett. He was involved, with other tenants, in a legal dispute with the Abbot of St Augustine in 1317. The Justices of Eyre found in favour of the tenants, determining that horses and cows distrained from the tenants by the Abbot as surety for fines must be returned, and cancelling the fines.
- (113) John Sackett (1585–1634), fisherman of St Peter in Thanet, was the brother who, according to family tradition, would have accompanied Simon Sackett the colonist to the New World and been the father of John Sackett of New Haven. John the fisherman died in St Peter in Thanet, so that, if he did accompany his brother, he must have returned. His will makes no mention of any children, making it very unlikely that he was the father of John of New Haven.

- (117) Simon Sackett the colonist (1595–1635). Undoubtedly the most significant migration in the history of the Sackett family was that of Simon Sackett who, with his wife Isabel and their infant son Simon, emigrated in about 1631 from St Peter in Thanet, Kent, England, to the Massachusetts Bay Colony in America. Despite a short life—he had probably not reached forty when he died in 1635—Simon Sackett the colonist enjoys a pivotal position in the history of the Sacketts, becoming the progenitor of the major part of the American branch of the family.
- (146) Jeffery Sackett (1617–1695), was three times Mayor of Sandwich, Kent, in 1674, 1687, and 1693. His reputation was tarnished by a damaging court case involving a family dispute, which dragged on from 1677 to 1684. Although Jeffery does not emerge well from the record of the case, it evidently did not impede his later election as Mayor.
- (201) John Sackett of New Haven (1620s–1684) migrated sometime before 1641 to New Haven, Connecticut, presumably from Thanet, Kent. He is the progenitor of the second line of American Sacketts. According to family tradition he would have been a nephew of Simon Sackett the colonist, but further research makes this unlikely. His origin remains a tantalizing mystery.
- (445) Captain John Sackett (1697–1753), mariner of Margate, Kent, was master of several ships plying the Atlantic between London, Virginia, and Antigua, among other places, was once captured by the French but freed by British privateers, and survived shipwrecks.

- (499) Nathaniel Sackett (1737–1805) was George Washington's spymaster during the American Revolutionary War. He set up an intelligence-gathering network, recruiting agents and informers behind the enemy lines, to discover the plans of the British forces.
- (1095) John Sackett (1757–1834) was the owner of the hoy Margate which was shipwrecked in a storm in 1802 with great loss of life while en route from Margate to London. The disaster made nationwide headlines and a public fund was set up to help bereaved families.
- (711) Augustus Sacket (1769–1827) was a New York lawyer and businessman who achieved fame when he acquired substantial tracts of unimproved land on the south-east shore of Lake Ontario and founded what was to become the strategically-important village of Sackets Harbor.
- (971) Ann Sackett (1779–after 1851) and her husband John Cook had a then-record number of twenty-one children, a feat shared with the wife of a solicitor of Geneva. Ann had the 21 children at 20 births, the last two being twins.
- (1541) Judge Gary V Sackett (1790–1865) was a judge, farmer, and businessman who developed much of Seneca Falls, New York. Among those entertained at his large residence (which still stands) were Abraham Lincoln, US Secretary of State William Seward, Seneca Chief Red Jacket, and Joseph Smith, founder of the Church of Latter-Day Saints.
- (1548) Hon William Augustus Sackett (1811–1895) was a lawyer and a United States Congressman. He was earnestly antislavery and opposed the admission of any more slave states. His third wife, Mary Louise (Marvin), is commemorated in the so-called Sackett Gate at the Lincoln Avenue entrance to Greenridge Cemetery, Saratoga Springs.

- (1961) Thomas Baker Sackett (c1796–1837) was convicted of highway robbery on the streets of London and was sentenced to death by hanging. But at the eleventh hour, following frantic efforts by a number of concerned worthies who petitioned on his behalf, he was granted a reprieve from execution, the sentence being reduced to transportation for life to the convict colony of New South Wales.

Some other notable Sacketts whose detailed sketches will appear in a future edition.

- General Delos Bennet Sacket (1822–1885) was a career soldier promoted to Brevet Major General for gallantry during the American Civil War, and later appointed senior Inspector General of the United States Army with the rank of Brigadier General.
- Orsemus Sackett (1826–1896), the Yankee card-writer, lecturer, concert and lecture tour manager, inventor, and newspaper vendor, made, lost, and made again his fortune, and was a well-known if eccentric character in Grand Rapids, Michigan.
- Jacob Thomas Sackett (1833–1904) of Saegertown, Pennsylvania, described modestly in census records as a blacksmith, was, more significantly, a skilled gunsmith, and, rather surprisingly given the delicacy of craftsmanship required, a violin maker.
- Colonel William Sackett (1838–1864), son of Hon William Augustus Sackett (see above), served in the American Civil War, rising to the rank of Brevet Brigadier General. He fought in the Battle of Gettysburg in 1863. He was mortally wounded in the Battle of Trevilian Station, Virginia, in 1864.

- Jabez Sackett (1840–1925) was a schoolmaster, preacher, and temperance campaigner. He was a schoolmaster in Kent and Yorkshire before moving to Guernsey where he was a lay preacher in the Wesleyan Methodist circuit and became a leading light in the temperance movement.
- Lyman Belcher Sackett (c1840–before 1894) served as a soldier in the American Civil War before deserting and working his passage as a seaman to Australia. He settled in India and was the progenitor of several generations of Sacketts born there.
- Augustine Sackett (1841–1914) was the inventor of drywall (known in the UK as plasterboard), which he patented in 1894 as Sackett Board. It is used today to clad walls and ceilings in virtually all new buildings. He was inducted in 2017 into the United States National Inventors Hall of Fame.
- Samuel Arthur Sackett(1841–1932), a Mormon, fathered 24 children by polygamous marriages to sisters Mary and Laura Peterson. He left a fascinating account of life in the Old West, including details of religious discrimination suffered, particularly because of his polygamy.
- Myron Ward Sackett(1841–1916), was for 37 years the Supreme Recorder of the Ancient Order of United Workmen, a mutual protection society having some half a million members. He was also secretary-treasurer of the National Fraternal Congress and editor of the Keystone Workman.

- William Edgar Sackett (1848–1926) was a journalist and political author who made an unsuccessful bid for the Governorship of New Jersey in 1913. He founded the daily Jersey City News but was best known for his book The Modern Battles of Trenton, a political history of New Jersey which was placed in every school library in the state.
- Jacob Edwin Sackett (c1850–1898), son of Orsemus Sackett (see above), was a flamboyant impresario and theater and museum proprietor with a talent for sensational publicity who sought his fortune by entertaining the masses with everything from freak shows to opera.
- Henry Sackett (1851–1928) emigrated in 1870 from Essex, England, to Texas, USA, and became a member of the Texas House of Representatives. Henry became suddenly wealthy when, in 1924, he leased a large tract of land to an oil company. Not having ever paid income tax before, he paid tax in that year of $57,000.
- Henry "X" Ackley Sackett (1859–1938), son of Orsemus Sackett (see above), was a talented silhouette portraitist, but achieved notoriety as an adventurous eloper. He travelled widely in the United States, courting publicity for his business of making silhouettes. Yet greater publicity was to attend his elopement, which caused a sensation, with newspapers making no attempt to conceal their excitement.
- The Revd Alfred Barrett Sackett (1862–1951) was a Methodist minister and Chaplain to the Forces in Gibraltar during the First World War and was subsequently appointed an officer of the Order of the British Empire.

- Frederic Moseley Sackett Jr (1868–1941) was the US Ambassador to Germany in the critical early 1930s when Hitler and the Nazi party were rising to power. He foresaw the threat to peace in Europe and supported German Chancellor Heinrich Bruning's attempts to avert the collapse of the Weimar Republic.
- Judge Homer Eddy Sackett (1875–1966) rose from an upbringing in a log house on an impoverished farm to become a Judge of the Superior Court. He famously grappled with a defendant in a divorce case who had struck a woman witness, throwing the defendant to the floor, then returning to the bench and sentencing the man to 90 days for contempt of court.
- Carl Leroy Sackett (1876–1972), frontiersman, US district attorney, and the oldest practicing attorney in Wyoming, remembered the days of stagecoach robberies, the James Brothers Gang, Colonel "Buffalo Bill" Cody, and Calamity Jane.
- Julia Ellen Sackett (1888–1975). Taking her mother's maiden name as her stage name, Julia Sanderson was a singer and actress who achieved stardom in both New York and London. The Julia Sanderson Theater (now the Paramount Theater) in her home town of Springfield, Massachusetts, was named in her honor.
- Herbert Leyland Sackett FRCS (1893–1924) was a brilliant young surgeon who died in a London hospital from the same infection and on the same day as his father Reverend Walter Sackett who Herbert was treating.
- Alfred Barrett Sackett MC (1895–1977) was awarded the Military Cross for gallantry in the First World War and later became a distinguished headmaster, also serving on the World Methodist Committee.

- Rear Admiral Earl LeRoy Sackett (1897–1970) served in both World Wars and was awarded the Navy Cross for heroism in the Second World War as commander of the USS Canopus in the Philippines, enduring horizontal and dive-bombing attacks by Japanese aircraft.
- Ivy Florence Annie Sackett (1907–2015) emigrated as an orphan at age 14 from England to Canada under a Dr Barnado's Homes resettlement scheme. She died aged 108 years 12 days in Ontario, Canada, and is the oldest recorded Sackett.
- Benjamin Edwin Sackett (1911–2002) was an FBI special agent who cracked a German spy ring in New York in the lead-up to the Second World War. He served as a Lt Colonel in the US Army during the war.
- Rear Admiral Albert Monroe Sackett (1920–2016), served in the US Navy for 40 years and fought in three wars: World War II, Korea, and Vietnam. He was a member of the Sackett Family Association.
- David Lawrence Sackett (1934–2015) was a Canadian medical doctor and a pioneer in evidence-based medicine who proved that aspirin helps prevent heart attacks. He founded the department of clinical epidemiology at McMaster University, Ontario, and was later awarded a professorship at Oxford University, England. He was inducted in 2000 to the Canadian Medical Hall of Fame.

GENEALOGICAL SKETCHES

The following genealogical sketches are presented in order from the earliest known records of the name. A separate sketch is provided for each individual identified from the records, regardless of whether they survived to adulthood, or married and had children.

This genealogy has a strict focus on the Sackett name. Children of married female Sacketts are listed where known under the mother's sketch but their lines are not extended. Non-Sackett descendants may be found on the Sackett Family Association website.

A separate chapter is devoted to each generation. Chapters are further subdivided into the various Sackett lines, followed by entries for individuals whose data is insufficient for them to be identified with particular lines. Presentation of the data in distinct lines does not indicate that the lines are unrelated; rather, it is probable that the lines are related but it has not been possible from available information to identify what those relationships are.

Heads of lines

Sackett descendants are, whenever possible, identified with one of the following ancestral lines. Presentation in separate lines does not mean that the lines are unrelated. Rather, it is entirely possible that the name originated in a single family, suggesting that all Sacketts could well be related. The named heads of lines may also be thought of as brick walls where the data to provide further links runs out. Lines are used where significant numbers of linked descendants are found over several generations. Family groups spanning only two or three generations are shown in this genealogy as Unassigned Sackett lines. Those for whom parents have not been identified are listed as Unlinked Sacketts.

Line 1 (English)	(14) Robert Sakett of St Peter in Thanet (say 1440–1498|1499). Robert's line, with 24 known descendants (17 born with the Sackett name), extends over five generations and includes his grandson Richard Sacket the younger (say 1505–1545) who is the first identified Sackett occupant of Sackett's Hill.
Line 2 (English)	(32) William Sackett of St John in Thanet (mid-1400s–in or after 1511). William's line extends to the present day although not in the Sackett name, the last identified Sacketts having "daughtered out" in the thirteenth generation in the 1800s. A total of 628 descendants of this line have been identified of whom 249 were born with the Sackett name.

Line 3 (English)	(59) Thomas Sackett the elder (say 1530–1595) of St Peter in Thanet. Thomas Sackett is the progenitor of the vast majority of Sackett descendants. Some 37,000 descendants (34,400 American and 2,600 English) have been identified of whom 8,700 (7,400 American and 1,300 English) were born with the Sackett name.
Line 3 (American)	(117) Simon Sackett the colonist (1595–1635), grandson of Thomas Sackett the elder, is not strictly a head of line. He is included here as the progenitor of the major American line, with 34,400 descendants, 7,400 of them Sacketts.
Line 3.1 (American)	(395) Capt Richard Sackett of New York (late 1670s–1746) has been identified by DNA testing as a descendant of Simon Sackett the colonist although identification of his parents remains unresolved. 3,900 descendants, of whom 550 are Sacketts (included in count for Simon).
Line 3.2 (American)	(605) Thomas Sackett of Hopewell (say 1720–) has been identified by DNA testing as a descendant of Simon Sackett the colonist. 1,770 descendants, of whom 520 are Sacketts (included in count for Simon).
Line 4 (American)	(201) John Sackett of New Haven (1620s–1684) is recorded in New Haven from 1641 and is the progenitor of the second American line. Some 6,100 descendants in his line have been identified, about 1,200 of them born with the Sackett name.

Line 5 (English)	(303) Robert Sackett of Thanet (say 1665–before 1738). Small English branch not yet linked to main lines. 20 descendants over eight generations.
Line 6 (English)	(304) Richard Sackett of South Weald, Essex (say 1670–). 220 descendants, 150 of them Sacketts.
Line 7 (English)	(634) Martin Sackett of Childerditch, Essex (say 1730–1785). 99 descendants, 60 of them Sacketts.
Numbers of descendants are those identified to Oct 2025.

EARLIEST KNOWN SACKETTS, 1200s|1300s

Several Sacketts, who would have been born in the late 1200s, are identified from tax lists in the early 1300s and other sources.

1	William Saket, of Southborough, St Peter in Thanet, Kent, b. late 1200s, d. after 1327
2	William Sakekyn, of Northborough, St Peter in Thanet, Kent, b. late 1200s, d. after 1317

5	Richard Saket, of Thanet, Kent, b. late 1200s, d. after 1335
6	William Saket, of Milton, Kent, b. late 1200s, d. after 1335

1 William Saket

William Saket, of Southborough, St Peter in Thanet, Kent, was born presumably in the late 1200s. He appears in records dating from 1317, 1318, and 1327.

William is the earliest Sackett so far discovered. In 1317, he was one of a number of tenants of the Abbot of St Augustine. The tenants refused to recognize a court convened by the abbot on 8 October 1317 to hear charges of lawbreaking. Each of the men was fined ten shillings and each was to supply a horse or cow as surety for payment.

A regular biannual court of the King's lathe of St Augustine had been held for centuries and, although the abbot had the right to convene a special court, this was not approved by the tenants. Their action in refusing to recognize the court was vindicated when Ralph, Abbot of St Augustine, and his bailiff Michael Baskerville were summoned before the Justices of Eyre to answer for unlawfully distraining from each of several tenants of the abbot either a horse or a cow as surety for fines imposed upon them.

The Justices determined that the horses and cows must be returned to their owners and the fines were cancelled.[1]

In the following year, 1318, William Saket was included in a list of borsholders of Southborough.[2]

The duties of a borsholder, or constable, included:

- ensuring the upkeep of means of punishment such as stocks and a cage
- inspecting alehouses and suppressing gaming-houses
- apprenticing pauper children

- supervising the settlement or removal of itinerant strangers and beggars
- seeing to the welfare of the poor
- collecting the county rate and acting as agent for the collection of special national taxes
- managing the parish economy
- supervising the military arms supply and the provision of training for the local militia
- convening parish meetings
- assisting the churchwarden in presenting those parishioners who did not attend church regularly
- caring for the parish bull
- helping at shipwrecks

Not surprisingly, in view of the wide-ranging and onerous nature of these duties, the position of constable was not welcomed by parishioners whose turn it was to be appointed and there was a widespread practice of paying someone else to do the job.

In 1327, William Saket (presumably the same William) and John Saket were "assessed for considerable sums" on the subsidy roll of the Ringslow Hundred.[3, 4]

4. The Ringslow Hundred was a subdivision of the Lathe of St Augustine and comprised essentially the same land area as the Isle of Thanet.

2 William Sakekyn

(late 1200s - after 1317)

William Sakekyn, of Northborough, St Peter in Thanet, Kent, was born presumably in the late 1200s.[1]

This William, whose surname may indicate kinship to the Sackett family, was another of the tenants (with William Saket) involved in the dispute of 1317 with the Abbot of St Augustine.[2]

1. The "kyn" suffix in this surname probably indicated "son of", suggesting a possible relationship to Saket. No other records of Sakekyn have been found.

3 John Saket

(late 1200s - after 1327)

John Saket, of Thanet, Kent, was born presumably in the late 1200s. He was listed in the 1327 Subsidy Roll of the Hundred of Ringslow when William Saket and John Saket were "assessed for considerable sums."[1]

5 Richard Saket

(late 1200s - after 1335)

Richard Saket, of Thanet, Kent, was born presumably in the late 1200s.

He was listed in the 1334/35 Lay Subsidy Roll of the Hundred of Ringslow when he was assessed for tax of 4s 2¼d.[1]

6 William Saket

(late 1200s - after 1335)

William Saket, of Milton, Kent, was born presumably in the late 1200s.

He was listed in the 1334/35 Lay Subsidy Roll of the Bailiwick of Kay in Middeltone (Key Street in Milton, now Milton Regis) when he was assessed for tax of 1s 3d.[1]

GENERATION B, 1300s|1400s

Following the several records of Sacketts found in tax lists in the 1320s and 1330s, no further "sightings" have been made in that century. There is then about a 100-year gap before the record of a will made by John Sakett of Sandwich, Kent, in 1444. This is the only record found for a Sackett who may have been born in the late 1300s.

7 John Sakett

(late 1300s - after 1444)

John Sakett, of Sandwich, Kent, was born presumably in the late 1300s. In his will made on St Thomas's Day (21 December) 1444, he left £5 to buy three ornamental altar cloths for the side altars in St Peter's Church, Sandwich.[1]

GENERATION C, 1400s

The following Sacketts are identified from wills made in the late 1400s.

8	Thomas Sakett, of Minster in Thanet, Kent, b. early 1400s, d. in or after 1474	m. Alice ___
9	John Sakett, of Thanet, Kent, b. early 1400s, d. after 1474

12	Hugo Sakett, of St Peter in Thanet, Kent, b. early 1400s, d. in or after 1479
13	Richard Sakett, of Thanet, Kent, b. early 1400s, d. Thanet, in or after 1485

(early 1400s - in or after 1474)

Thomas Sakett, of Minster in Thanet, Kent, was born in the early 1400s. He died after 14 January 1473/74 when he made his will at Minster. The will was proved at the Archdeaconry Court, Canterbury, but the probate date is not recorded. The will names his wife, Alice.

Thomas left his lands and tenement to his wife Alice until his children had attained the age of 20. The will mentions his eldest son Thomas and two other sons, William and John. Also mentioned are two brothers: John Sakett and Helbe Sakett. Thomas's wife Alice and Hugo Sakett were appointed executors of the will.[1]

An Alice Sakett made her will at St Peter in Thanet on 13 July 1476. She died before 6 November 1476, when the will was proved at the Archdeaconry Court.[2]

She was presumably the widow of a Sakett, but whether this was Thomas Sakett is not clear. They made their wills at different places, he at Minster in Thanet, and she at St Peter in Thanet. However, there is mention of St Peter in Thanet in Thomas's will, and he may have had lands there. Although he made his will at Minster, and requested to be buried there, he had a tenement at "Nich", taken to be St Nicholas at Wade, and had other scattered land holdings, the whereabouts of which have not been identified. His will provided that, should reversion to his brothers John and Helbe become effective, they were to make payments to the churches of Minster, St Nicholas at Wade, and St Peter in Thanet, thus establishing a connection with St Peter, where Alice made her will. Thomas's appointment of Hugo Sakett as an executor with Alice provides a further link with St Peter in Thanet as Hugo made his will there a few years later.

There is a mismatch in the wills in the names of the beneficiaries. Thomas's will named his sons, Thomas, William, and John. Alice's will named John and Solomon, but it is not clear whether these were her sons. The John in Alice's will may have been the same as Thomas's son or Thomas's brother, or another John Sakett.

(early 1400s - after 1474)

John Sakett, of Thanet, Kent, was born in the early 1400s. He was named as the brother of Thomas Sakett in Thomas's will made at Minster in Thanet on 14 January 1473/74.

10 Helbe Sakett

(early 1400s - after 1474)

Helbe Sakett, of Thanet, Kent, was born in the early 1400s.[1] He was named as the brother of Thomas Sakett in Thomas's will made at Minster in Thanet on 14 January 1473/74.

11 John Sakett

John Sakett, a smith, of St Peter in Thanet, Kent, was born in the early 1400s. He died between 15 August 1479 and 28 September 1479.

John made his will at St Peter in Thanet on 15 August 1479. He named his sons, John, Edward, and [perhaps] Richard as beneficiaries. Also named in the will were Hugo Sakett and Solomon Sakett. The will was proved at the Archdeaconry Court of Canterbury on 28 September 1479.[1]

12 Hugo Sakett

(early 1400s - in or after 1479)

Hugo Sakett, of St Peter in Thanet, Kent, was born presumably in the early 1400s. He died in or after 1479.

He was appointed executor of the will of Thomas Sakett made at Minster in Thanet in January 1474. He was also named in the will dated 15 August 1479 of John Sakett, smith of St Peter in Thanet. The naming of Hugo in John's will and the fact that they made their wills within a day of each other suggests that John and Hugo would have been closely related.

Hugo made his will at St Peter in Thanet on 16 August 1479. Named in the will were Solomon Sakett (as a beneficiary), William Sakett (relationship unknown), and Johanne (not identified.)[1, 2]

Generation D Line 1
Head of line Robert Sakett of St Peter in Thanet

Robert Sakett of St Peter in Thanet, Kent, is the earliest Sackett whose line can be traced over several generations. The line extends over five generations, with 17 identified Sackett descendants, including his grandson Richard Sacket the younger (say 1505–1545) who is the first known Sackett occupant of Sackett's Hill in St Peter in Thanet.

14 Robert Sakett of St Peter in Thanet

(say 1440 - between 1498 and 1499)

Robert Sakett, of St Peter in Thanet, Kent, was born say 1440. He died between 22 November 1498 and 7 January 1499.[1] He married Joan ___.

Robert made his will in St Peter in Thanet on 22 November 1498, naming as beneficiaries his wife Joan, his sons Richard, Robert, and John, and his daughters Alice, Katherine, and Helen.[1] He left his land and tenement to his son Richard, the use of half being retained by Robert's widow while she remained unmarried. Richard's inheritance was conditional upon his paying to his brother John £1 each year for five years. Robert left cows, sheep, and grain to his wife. He left eight sheep to his daughter Alice, and two quarters of grain to his daughters, Katherine and Helen. The will was proved in the Archdeaconry Court of Canterbury on 7 January 1498/99.

It is assumed from the will that Robert’s children were then of age, there being no indication to the contrary. His daughter Alice is known to have been married by then, being named in the will as Alice Walter. On the assumption of his having six adult children, Robert is reckoned to have been at least in his fifties at death; his birth date is accordingly estimated at say 1440.

Robert witnessed the will of Solomon Sakett, made at St Peter in Thanet in November 1490. He was also a feoffee (trustee) of the real property of John Sakett of St Peter in Thanet and was executor of the will of William Sakett made at St Peter in 1498.

21 Solomon Sakett

(mid-1400s - in 1490 or 1491)

Solomon Sakett, of St Peter in Thanet, Kent, was born in the mid-1400s. He died between November 1490 when he made his will and February 1490/91 when the will was proved. He married Joane ___.

Solomon was named as a beneficiary in the will of 1476 of Alice Sakett of St Peter in Thanet (see Thomas Sakett.) He was also named as a beneficiary in the will of 1479 of Hugo Sakett of St Peter in Thanet, and was named in the will of the same year of John Sakett, smith of St Peter in Thanet.

Solomon made his will at St Peter in Thanet in November 1490.[1]

His will gives an interesting insight into the feudal system of land tenure in the late middle ages.

The will refers to feoffees, effectively trustees, who held the land in their names for the benefit of the landholder appointing them. This legal device allowed the avoidance of some feudal dues, particularly on inheritance, and allowed a landholder to leave his land to anyone, not only to his eldest son.

Solomon's feoffees were required to sell land at Solys Hill, paying the money to his executors to cover his debts and bequests, and also to enfeoff (transfer ownership of) two acres of land at Solys Hill to Thomas Spraclyng.

At this period, transfers of tangible property, i.e. land and buildings, had to take place not by a document but by an act representing the passing of property. A key in the case of buildings or a turf in the case of land would be handed over in the presence of witnesses. This handing over would then be documented in a feoffment, this document being not the instrument of transfer itself but merely a record that the transfer had taken place.

He left his tenement and the bulk of his lands to his wife, but ordered his executors to sell land at Solys Hill to cover his debts and bequests and to transfer two acres to Thomas Sprakling. The only Sackett mentioned in Solomon's will is Robert Sakett of St Peter in Thanet, who witnessed the will. A Margaret Sprakling, a minor, was evidently living with Solomon and Joane in 1490 and she is named as a beneficiary in the wills of both Solomon and Joane.

Solomon's widow Joane made her will at St Peter in Thanet on 31 March 1501.[2] Her will is noteworthy for the care with which she distributed her household and personal effects. She made bequests to several Spraklings, including Thomas who was one of her executors and was to receive "a brasse pott, a ketill", other household items and "iii shepe", and Margaret to whom she willed, amongst other things, "a nother brasse pott" and her "best clok".

From their wills, Solomon and Joane would appear to have been childless.

22 William Sakett

(mid-1400s - between 1497/98 and 1498)

William Sakett, of St Peter in Thanet, Kent, was born in the mid-1400s. He died between 7 March 1497/98 and 24 April 1498. He married Margaret ___.

William was named in the 1479 will of Hugo Sakett of St Peter in Thanet.

William made his will at St Peter in Thanet on 7 March 1497/98. He left his tenement and lands to his wife Margaret during her widowhood, with reversion to his son Henry at 21, then to sons, in order, Martyn, and John.[1] One of the executors of his will was Robert Sakett of St Peter in Thanet. The will was proved at Canterbury on 24 April 1498.

(mid-1400s - after 1502)

Thomas Sakett, of St John in Thanet, Kent, was born presumably in the mid-1400s.

Thomas made his will in 1501/02. The will has not yet been transcribed.[1] This Thomas may have been the same as the Thomas Sakett who was named in the will of his father, also Thomas, made at Minster in Thanet in 1473/74.

(mid-1400s - before 1504)

Eleanor Sakett, of Kent, was born in the mid-1400s.

Letters of administration of Eleanor's estate were granted at Canterbury in 1503/04. The document has not yet been transcribed. It is not known whether she was a Sackett descendant or a widow of a Sackett.[1]

(mid-1400s - after 1512)

Johan Saget, of St Peter in Thanet, Kent, was born presumably in the mid-1400s.

Johan made her will at St Peter in Thanet in 1511/12.[1] It may be assumed that the name was Sackett although there are no clues in the content of the will to support this. As far as is known, there was not a separate name "Saget" (but see also John Sagett) and it is likely that this was how the writer heard the spoken name. It is not known whether she was a Sackett descendant or a Sackett widow. The detail of the will does not suggest that she would have been Jone the widow of John Sakett or Joan the widow of Robert Sakett of St Peter in Thanet.

Line 1 Robert[D]

Father 14 Robert Sakett of St Peter in Thanet b. say 1440, d. between 1498 and 1499

Mother Joan ___ b. say 1450, d. after 1498

Richard Sackett, of St Peter in Thanet, Kent, son of Robert Sakett of St Peter in Thanet and Joan ___, was born probably before 1477.[1] He died between October 1548 (when he made his will) and March 1549 (will proved.) He married Margaret ___.

Richard was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made at St Peter in Thanet on 22 November 1498. Richard is assumed to have been Robert's eldest son as he was left his land and tenement, subject to the use of half being retained by Richard's mother Joan while she remained unmarried. Richard's inheritance was also conditional upon his paying to his brother John £1 each year for five years.[2]

Richard made his will at St Peter in Thanet on 12 October 1548, naming as beneficiaries his wife Margaret and a cousin John Sackett.[3] The will was proved in the Archdeaconry Court of Canterbury, Kent, on 21 March 1549.[3] Margaret was left half his lands for her lifetime, with reversion to cousin John Sackett, and the residue of his goods after bequests of barley to unnamed godchildren, £1 in money or goods to his servant Joan Bennet, and sums of 3s 4d to Katherine Allyne and 12d to each of John Walter and John Spracklyne. It is presumed that Katherine Allyne was Richard's sister. John Walter may have been his brother-in-law, married to his sister Alice

(she was named as Alice Walter in her father's will), or he may have been a son of Alice's. Cousin John Sackett was probably John Sakett, son of William Sakett of the 1498 will.[4]

A "Richard Sackete the elder" is named as a witness to the will, made in 1545, of Richard Saket, husbandman of St Peter's. On that scant evidence it is deduced that this Richard and the Richard of the 1545 will were father and son, the son predeceasing the father by three years. This would explain the omission of a son Richard from the father's will. (Against this deduction, however, is the fact that the elder Richard did not provide in his will for John and Margery, the children of Richard the younger—an unlikely omission had these indeed been his young grandchildren who had lost their father just three years earlier.)

Richard's widow Margaret made her wiill at St Peter in Thanet on 28 December 1551.[5] She made a number of bequests to godchildren (it is not known whether these were family members) and left the residue of her estate to John Sackett who she also appointed as her executor. This would have been the same John Sackett who was described as "cousin John Sackett" in her husband Richard's will.

Generation E
Unlinked Sacketts

The following Sacketts appear in various records but sufficient data has not yet been found to identify their parents. All were living in the Isle of Thanet in the late 1400s and early 1500s.

36	Walter Sakett, of Minster in Thanet, Kent, b. mid- to late 1400s, d. in or before 1518
37	John Sagett, of St Peter in Thanet, Kent, b. late 1400s, d. St Peter in Thanet, in or after 1528
38	Edward Sackett, of St Peter in Thanet, Kent, b. mid- to late 1400s, d. in or after 1531	m. Johane ___

(mid- to late 1400s - in or before 1518)

Walter Sakett, of Minster in Thanet, Kent, was born in the mid- to late 1400s. He died in or before 1518. Letters of administration of his estate were granted at Canterbury in that year. The document has not yet been transcribed.[1]

37 John Sagett

(late 1400s - in or after 1528)

John Sagett, of St Peter in Thanet, Kent, was born presumably in the late 1400s.

John made a will at St Peter in Thanet in 1528. The will has not yet been transcribed.[1] It is assumed that the name was Sackett. As far as is known, there was not a separate name "Sagett" (but see also Johan Saget) and it is likely that this was how the writer heard the name.

38 Edward Sackett

(mid- to late 1400s - in or after 1531)

Edward Sackett, of St Peter in Thanet, Kent, was born in the mid- to late 1400s. He married Johane ___.

Edward made his will at St Peter in Thanet in January 1531. He left his tenement and lands at Church Hill, St Peter in Thanet, to his wife Johane during her lifetime. After her death, his son Richard was to inherit.[1]

Richard Saket the younger, husbandman of Sackett's Hill, St Peter in Thanet, Kent, son of Richard Sackett the elder and Margaret ___, was born say 1505. He died between 9 April 1545 when he made his will and 9 May 1545 when the will was proved.[1] He married about 1530, Crystian ___. Richard was an executor of the will of John Sackett of St John in Thanet, made in 1529.

Richard made his will at St Peter in Thanet on 9 April 1545. Named as beneficiaries were his wife Crystian, his son John, and his daughter Margery.[1] Both children were under twelve at the time of his death. Richard left his land and tenements to his wife Crystian until their son John reached 21 when he would inherit. The will was proved in the Archdeaconry Court of Canterbury on 9 May 1545.

Richard's will was witnessed by "Richard Sackete the elder". On that scant evidence it is deduced that Richard the elder was probably the father of this Richard. Against that, however, it is noted that the elder Richard, making his own will three years later, made no provision for the young children John and Margery who would, if the supposition is correct, have been his grandchildren.

The "Thomas Sacket of Sacketts Hill", named as an executor of Richard's estate, has not been positively identified. He may have been Thomas Sacket, gentleman of St Peter in Thanet, (who himself died at about the same time as Richard and was unlikely to have been able to have carried out the duties of executor.)

John was named in his father's will made at St John in Thanet in 1511.[1] He was to inherit his father's tenement and lands after his mother Alice's lifetime interest.

John made his will in St John in Thanet on 4 July 1529.[2] He named as beneficiaries his wife Johan and his sons William and John. His son John was under 24 at the date of the will, while no reference was made to William's age, implying that he was the elder son. Both were left lands. The will refers also to two unnamed daughters, both under 18, and to his sister Alice. The will was proved at Canterbury in September 1529. Richard Saket the younger was one of the executors of the will.

Richard was named in his father Edward's will made in St Peter in Thanet in January 1531.[1] He was to inherit his father's tenement and lands at Church Hill, St Peter in Thanet, after his mother Johane's death.

Richard did not long survive his father. He made his own will at St Peter in Thanet on 13 January 1532/33.[2] He requested his feoffees to sell his barn and land at Church Hill. He made bequests of ewes to two godsons and left money to the children of Robert Lidderard who, with Richard Aland, was executor of the will.

Generation F
Unlinked Sacketts

The following Sacketts were born in the late 1400s or early 1500s. Sufficient information to link them to the main trees has not yet been found. The deaths in London of three of these Sacketts are the earliest records found outside Kent.

43	Thomas Sacket, gentleman of St Peter in Thanet, Kent, b. say 1500, d. 1545
44	Margaret Sacket, of Thanet, Kent, b. say 1500, d. after 1545

54	Peter Sackett, d. City of London, 1572

Thomas Sacket, gentleman of St Peter in Thanet, Kent, was born say 1500. He died between 26 April 1545 when he nade his will and 20 May 1545 when the will was proved. The ages of Thomas's godchildren (see below) suggest that he was not an old man—perhaps in his forties—when he died.

Thomas made his will in St Peter in Thanet on 26 April 1545, naming as beneficiaries his sisters Margaret and Katherine.[1] It would appear that Thomas was childless. He left his house to his "brother" Richard Allen, brother in this context probably meaning brother-in-law, who he also appointed a joint executor of the will. He left an amount of 6s 8d to each of his sisters. They are referred to in the will only by their forenames. It would seem likely that one of them was the wife of Richard Allen. He left 10s to his goddaughter Tamsin Allen, and 5s each to John Allen, Margery Allen, and Katherine Cockling, all of whom were less than fourteen years of age at the date of will. These children may well have been nephew and nieces, the Allen children perhaps being the children of Richard Allen and Thomas's sister, Margaret, and, on the basis of their having the same forename, the child Katherine Cockling being the daughter of Thomas's sister Katherine. After these bequests, the residue of his estate was to go 'half to the poor people' and 'half to the foul highways where the most need is'. The will was proved in the Archdeaconry Court of Canterbury on 20 May 1545.

Thomas may have been the "Thomas Sacket of Sacketts Hill" appointed executor of the will made in 1545 by Richard Saket the younger. Both men died at about the same time, so that Thomas was unlikely to have been able to have carried out the duties of executor.

44 Margaret Sacket

(say 1500 - after 1545)

Margaret Sacket, of Thanet, Kent, was born say 1500.

Margaret was named as a beneficiary in her brother Thomas's will made in St Peter in Thanet on 26 April 1545.[1] She was left an amount of 6s 8d. Although the will does not state such, it is possible that Margaret was the wife of Richard Allen who was the main beneficiary, and that they were the parents of the Allen children, Tamsin, John, and Margery, who were named in the will.

(say 1500 - after 1545)

Katherine Sacket, of Thanet, Kent, was born say 1500.

Katherine was named as a beneficiary in her brother Thomas's will made in St Peter in Thanet on 26 April 1545.[1] She was left an amount of 6s 8d. Although the will does not state such, it is possible that Katherine was married to a Cockling, and that they were the parents of the child Katherine Cockling, who was named in the will.

47 Thomas Sackett

Thomas Sackett, of Minster in Thanet, Kent, was born say 1500. He was buried there on 10 April 1557.[1]

Thomas made his will at Minster in Thanet on 3 April 1557, a few days before he died. Beneficiaries were his brother Richard to whom he bequeathed ten acres of land in Minster and his chest, and his sister Alice to whom he bequeathed their mother's best girdle and her beads.[2] The will was proved in the Archdeaconry Court of Canterbury, Kent, on 25 September 1557.

48 Richard Sackett

(say 1500 - after 1557)

Richard Sackett, presumably of Thanet, Kent, was born say 1500. He may have been the father (or perhaps grandfather) of Richard Sackett who died at Minster in Thanet in 1604 leaving at least two tenements there, together with several land holdings.

Richard was named as a beneficiary in his brother Thomas's will made in Minster in Thanet, on 3 April 1557. He was left ten acres of land in Minster and a chest.[1]

John Sacket, husbandman of Sackett's Hill, St Peter in Thanet, Kent, son of Richard Saket the younger and Crystian ___, was born after 1533. He was buried at St Peter in Thanet on 8 April 1592.[1] He married say 1555, Margaret ___. She was buried at St Peter in Thanet on 19 December 1596.[2]

John was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made at St Peter in Thanet on 9 April 1545.[3] John was then under twelve years of age. He was to receive ten sheep and a cow when he attained that age. He was to receive a horse, cart, plough, wheat and barley at 21, and was then to inherit his father's lands and tenements at Sackett's Hill.

This John was probably the "John Sackett the elder" mentioned as a landowner in the will of William Sackett.

John made his will at Sackett's Hill, St Peter in Thanet, on 1 March 1590.[4] He named as beneficiaries his wife Margaret, his son Thomas, and his daughters, Joyce, Katherine, Judith, and Eve. He left his farm in the parishes of St Peter in Thanet and St John in Thanet to his daughters, Katherine, Judith, and Eve, who were also appointed joint executors. Two of John and Margaret's children, John and Mary, had died young. Of the remaining five, Katherine, Judith and Eve were charged with the maintenance of Thomas and Joyce. It is assumed that Thomas (for whom a birth record has not been found) was under age in 1590 but Joyce would have been nearly 29. As she was to be cared for by her sisters, it would appear that she was sickly by this date. She died at about the same time as her mother in December 1596. John's will was proved in the Archdeaconry Court of Canterbury in May 1592.[4]

Margery was named as a beneficiary in her father's will made at St Peter in Thanet on 9 April 1545, at which date she was under twelve years of age. She was to receive ten sheep and a cow when she attained that age and wheat and barley at marriage.[2]

John Sackett, yeoman of St Nicholas at Wade, Thanet, Kent, was born probably in the early 1520s. Although not proved, he was probably the son of John Sackett of St John in Thanet and Johan ___. He died at St Nicholas at Wade on 22 June 1588.[1] He married first Joane ___, and they had a daughter Martha.[2] Joane died at St Nicholas at Wade about 1570.[3] He married second at St Peter in Thanet on 26 July 1571, Johan (Allyne) Emptage, the widow of Richard Emptage, by whom she had had four children.[4] After John's death, she married Richard Knowler. She died on 6 January 1603/04.[5]

John was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made in St John in Thanet on 4 July 1529.[6] He was to inherit at age 24 the residue of his father's lands and tenement after reserving specified landholdings for his brother William.

John made his will at St Nicholas at Wade in 1588.[2] He left his farm to his wife Johan during her widowhood, with reversion to Johan's son Edward Emptage. He left his daughter Martha a fresh and salt marsh at Chamber's Wall, and Martha's husband John Foorde was left £60 "in addition to £60 I owe him". The will also mentions Edward and Alice Emptage, two of Joan's children by her former marriage. Stepson Edward Emptage was left £60 at 21, with the telling condition that "he shall hold himself full contented and not trouble my executor for any other demands."

John's will reveals him to have been a prosperous yeoman farmer, with bequests to "every man servant, every boy servant, and each maid servant" indicating his employing a number of staff. A Thomas Palmer buried at St Nicholas in 1583 was described as a servant of John Sackett.[7]

The identification of John Sackett who died at St Nicholas in 1588 with John Sackett who inherited lands from his father in 1529 is probable but not proved. The inherited lands were presumably in or near the father's home parish of St John in Thanet. St Nicholas is 7 miles west of St John. However, the reference on the memorial of John who died in 1588 to his having been "so' time" of St Nicholas suggests he was not a native of the parish and had moved there from elsewhere.

John Sackett's memorial[1] at St Nicholas at Wade reads:

Here lyeth buried the body of John Sacket so' time of the P'ishe of S. Nicholas at Wade, hou died the xxii daye of Juine A' Ve D'ni 1588, whose soule we hope God take to hys marcie

John's wife's memorial[5] at St Nicholas at Wade reads:

Line 2 John[F], William[E]

Father	40	John Sackett b. late 1400s, d. 1529
Mother		Johan ___ b. say 1480

William Sackett, yeoman of Jordan Dane, St John in Thanet, Kent, son of John Sackett and Johan ___, was born probably in the early 1520s.[1] He was buried at St John in Thanet on 31 December 1572.[2] He married about 1545, Johan ___, who survived him.

William was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made in St John in Thanet on 4 July 1529.[3] He was to have his father's tenement and lands for a period of four years after the expiration of fourteen years and after that four years he was to have several specified parcels of land totalling some fourteen acres.

William made his will at Jordan Dane, St John in Thanet, on 20 December 1572.[4] He named as beneficiaries his wife Johan, his sons, Robert, Edward, and John, his daughters, Helen, Joyce, and Alyce, and his grandchildren, William, Robert, and Joan Norwood. The will was proved at the Archdeaconry Court of Canterbury on 14 February 1572/73.

It would appear that William was a reasonably prosperous farmer, having sufficient lands to leave farms to each of his three sons. After providing for his wife during her lifetime, he left his tenement and lands at Jordan Dane to his eldest son Robert. He left a tenement and 20 acres of arable lands and pasture in St Peter in Thanet and 14 acres of arable land in St John in Thanet to his son Edward when he reached 20. (This land was presumably the same 14 acres that William had inherited from his father). The third son John was to receive, at age 20, a tenement and 7½ acres at Church Hill, St Peter's, 8 acres at Mill Down, and further land at Bennetts Hill. William had acquired these lands by purchase. The tenement and land at Church Hill would appear to be that previously owned by Edward Sackett, later requested to be sold by the will of his son Richard in 1533. After Richard's death, the land had passed out of Sackett ownership. The relationship, if any, between Edward/Richard of Church Hill and William of Jordan Dane has not been ascertained. William's will also refers to land owned by John Sackett the elder. This was probably John Sacket of Sackett's Hill.

Amongst his personalty, William left his corselet (body armour) to his son Robert, indicating that he would have been an officer in the militia.

1. The birth dates of William Sackett's sons Robert and Edward are based on the assumption that they would have been about 25 at the date of their respective first marriages. It is also noted that Robert, but not Edward, was of full age at the time of his father's death. Alyce's birth has been placed before Robert's on the grounds that she was married with two children in 1572. But, if married at 18, the order may be reversed. In either case, it may be inferred that William was born c1520.

Generation G Line 3
Head of line Thomas Sackett the elder of St Peter in Thanet

Thomas Sackett is the progenitor of the vast majority of Sackett descendants. Some 16,500 descendants (14,300 American and 2,200 English) have been identified of whom some 5,600 (4,400 American and 1,200 English) were born with the Sackett name. Thomas was the grandfather of Simon Sackett the colonist (1595–1635) who emigrated from Thanet to the Massachusetts Bay Colony in 1631.

Thomas Sackett, of St Peter in Thanet, Kent, was born say 1530. He was buried at St Peter in Thanet on 26 March 1595.[1] He married about 1555, Joane ___.[2] She was buried at St Peter in Thanet on 19 December 1593.[3]

Thomas made his will at St Peter in Thanet on 30 March 1594.[4] He named as beneficiaries his sons, Thomas and George, and his daughters, Anne and Mildred. Thomas's description of himself in his will as a labourer suggests that he was not a wealthy man. However, the fact of his making a will at all, and the bequests to his children, define him as a landowner and suggest that he was a man of some substance. He left his tenement and lands in St Peter's to his elder son Thomas. He left his younger son George a sum of £12. He left a cow to his elder daughter Anne and five ewes and a lamb to his younger daughter Mildred. Anne and Mildred were also left various specified household items which were to be valued, with additional sums of money to be paid to each up to a value of £5. Also named in his will was a godson, John Sackett, to whom he left £1. This was very probably his grandson, John the son of Thomas the younger. The will was proved in the Archdeaconry Court of Canterbury on 2 June 1596.

Thomas died in the same year as, but probably a few months before, the

Richard Sackett, yeoman of Minster in Thanet, Kent, was born in the mid-1500s. He died there between 31 May 1604 when he made his will and 12 December 1604 when the will was proved. He may have been a son, or perhaps grandson, of Richard Sackett of Minster in Thanet who was left land there in 1557 by his brother Thomas.

Richard made his will at Minster in Thanet on 31 May 1604.[1] By his will, he would appear to have been unmarried and childless. He named as beneficiaries his sister Alice Sackett (now Wildbore), her sons, Jeremy and Edward, and Jeremy's daughter Barbara.[1] He left to his sister Alice a tenement and lands at Totthill, Minster, with reversion to her sons Jeremy and Edward. He left £20 to Agnes Wildbore (this was probably his niece Anne) and £10 to Barbara Wildbore, daughter of Jeremy. Richard left his home tenement and lands at Minster to Denise, wife of John Peele, with reversion to Denise's sons William and John Peele. He left lands at Brooke, Minster, to Mary, wife of John Jancock [?Hancock]. The will was proved at the Archdeaconry Court of Canterbury on 12 December 1604.

(say 1540 - 1616)

Alice Sackett, of Thanet, Kent, was born say 1540. Her parents have not been identified. She was the sister of Richard Sackett. She was buried at Minster in Thanet on 3 August 1616.[1] She married first at St Lawrence in Thanet on 19 January 1563, Gilbert Pamflett.[2] He was buried at Minster in Thanet on 29 March 1571.[3] She married second at Minster in Thanet on 9 July 1571, George Wildbore.[4] He was buried at Minster in Thanet on 26 February 1606/07.[5]

Alice was named as a beneficiary in her brother Richard's will made in Minster at Thanet on 31 May 1604.[6] She was to receive the tenement and lands at Totthill, Minster, which she and her husband George were presently occupying, with reversion to her sons Jeremy and Edward.[6]

63 Katerin Sackett

(say 1545 - after 1570)

Katerin Sackett, of London, was born say 1545. Her parents have not been identified. She married at St Dunstan-in-the-West, Fleet Street, London, on 22 October 1570, Taddis? Glinne.[1] It is not known whether Katerin was a Sackett descendant or a Sackett spouse. She could have been the widow or the daughter of Edmond Sackett who was buried at St Dunstan-in-the-West in 1569.

Father	58	William Sackett b. early 1520s, d. 1572
Mother		Johan ___ b. c 1520, d. after 1572

Robert Sackett, yeoman of St John in Thanet, Kent, son of William Sackett and Johan ___, was born about 1550.[1] He died in Ash next Sandwich, Kent, and was buried at St Nicholas, Ash next Sandwich, on 23 December 1622.[2] He married first at St John in Thanet, Kent, on 9 November 1573, Faith Norwood.[3] She died a few months after the death in infancy of their daughter Katherine and was buried at Minster in Thanet on 18 April 1591.[4] He married second at Minster in Thanet on 12 July 1591, Margarita (___) Hart.[5] She was buried at Minster in Thanet on 2 November 1597.[6] He married third at St Nicholas, Ash next Sandwich, on 23 October 1598, Susan Harrison.[7]

Robert was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made at Jordan Dane, St John in Thanet, on 20 December 1572.[8] As eldest son, he inherited his father's tenement and lands at Jordan Dane and the residue of other land. He was the executor of his father's estate.

Robert made his will at St John in Thanet in October 1622.[9] He named as beneficiaries his sons, Robert, William, Edward, and Paul, his daughter Bennet, and his grandchildren Thomas, Henry, Edward, William, Faith, and Mary Sackett. He left a sum of £5 to each, except grandson Thomas who was to receive £10 and grandson William who was left £3. His son Paul was to receive the residue of money, goods, and chattels, and was appointed executor. It seems unusual that Paul, as a younger son, was made executor and was left the residue, but the will contains complicated arrangements for the land and it may be that the other sons benefitted through the inheritance of land holdings. It would appear from his will that Robert was a landowning farmer of reasonable means. The will was proved in the Consistory Court of Canterbury in January 1623.[9]

Robert's estate was the subject of actions in the Court of Chancery, London, in 1632 and 1638–39, involving the disputed ownership of some of his lands in Ickham and Wingham, Kent. The court proceedings are summarised in the entry for Robert's son Paul.

Line 2 William[G], John[F], William[E]

Father	58	William Sackett b. early 1520s, d. 1572
Mother		Johan ___ b. c 1520, d. after 1572

Edward Sackett, yeoman of Thanet, Kent, son of William Sackett and Johan ___, was born about 1555. He died aged about 74 and was buried at St Peter in Thanet on 4 February 1628/29, described in the burials register as "an old man."[1] He married first about 1580, Alice ___.[2] She was buried at St Peter in Thanet on 22 July 1594.[3] He married second at St Peter in Thanet on 23 December 1595, Johan (___) Sampson, a widow.[4, 5] She was buried at St Peter in Thanet on 11 May 1621.[6] He married third at St Peter in Thanet on 12 August 1622, Rebecca (___) Thatcher, a widow.[7] Rebecca died only a few days after their marriage and was buried at St Peter in Thanet on 25 August 1622.[8]

Edward was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made at Jordan Dane, St John in Thanet, on 20 December 1572.[9] He was to inherit, when 21, a tenement with arable and pasture lands at St Peter's and more arable land at St John's.

Edward may have been the godparent Edward Sackett named in the baptism record at Birchington in 1602 of Edward Sackett the son of William Sackett.

Edward made his will at St Lawrence in Thanet on 20 October 1624.[10] He named as beneficiaries his sons, Richard and Robert, and his daughters, Alice, Ellen, Elizabeth, and Margaret. Edward owned land in St John in Thanet and St Peter in Thanet, as well as, presumably, in St Lawrence in Thanet. He left monetary amounts to each of his daughters, money and land at St John in Thanet to his son Richard, and land at St Peter in Thanet to his son Robert, who was appointed executor and was to inherit the residue of the estate. The will was proved at the Archdeaconry Court of Canterbury on 21 February 1629.

Daughter Alice Dades, £3 per year for life.
Daughter Ellen Austin, £17.
Daughter Elizabeth Gillowe, £3.
Daughter Margaret [Jarvis], £16.
Son Robert, residue and land in St Peter in Thanet.
Executor: son Robert.

Father	58	William Sackett b. early 1520s, d. 1572
Mother		Johan ___ b. c 1520, d. after 1572

John Sackett, yeoman of St Peter in Thanet, Kent, son of William Sackett and Johan ___, was baptized at St Lawrence in Thanet on 22 October 1564.[1] He died aged 59 at St Peter in Thanet on 24 February 1623/24[2, 3] and was buried there on 27 February 1623/24.[4, 5] A memorial brass plate on a pillar in St Peter's Church reads

> Here lyeth interred the corps of John Sackett
> late of this Parrish who yelded his Spirit
> age upon the 24 of February Anno Dn'i 1623.

John married at St Peter in Thanet on 14 October 1588, Agnes Sampson.[6, 7] She was buried at St Peter in Thanet on 5 February 1630/31.[8] (Agnes was so named in her marriage record, but was Ann or Anna in John's will and in her will and in her burial record. The detail of the wills makes it clear that Ann and Agnes were the same.)

John was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made at Jordan Dane, St John in Thanet, on 20 December 1572.[9] John was just eight years old when his father died but his father created a Trust providing that, upon reaching 20, he was to inherit a tenement and lands at Church Hill, St Peter's, and other lands at Mill Dane and Bennett Hill.

John was listed on the militia muster roll for Thanet on 11 August 1599, having furnished arms for one of the St Peter's armed men and for one of the calivers. On the 16 August 1599 roll, he was listed as a member of the St Peter's Pikes.[10] On the muster roll for St Peter's on 12/13 October 1614, he was listed as John Sackett senior, bound to furnish two corslets (light body armour.)[11] He may have been the John Sackett listed as a corslet (armoured soldier) in Thanet on 1 April 1619.[12] (This John Sackett was not identified senior or junior. He would not have been Rev John Sackett who was at university, but may have been John Sackett (the fisherman).

The muster rolls give a clue to John Sackett's status and prosperity. In 1614, St Peter's parish as a whole furnished 25 corslets. Of the parishioners bound to furnish them, one provided three corslets, and two parishioners, of whom John was one, provided two corslets each, the remainder being furnished one per parishioner so bound.

John is recorded as having given his consent in the marriage licences of his son Richard and of his daughter Ann, both marriages taking place in 1620.[13], [14]

John made his will in St Peter in Thanet on 8 February 1623/24.[15] He named as beneficiaries his wife Ann, his sons, William, Richard, John, and Stephen, his daughters, Margaret, Marie, and Ann, and his granddaughters, Ann, Elizabeth, and Margaret Cleybrooke. (The granddaughter Elizabeth named in his will is assumed to have been a transcription error for Etheldred). John was a prosperous yeoman farmer and he left farms to each of his four sons, that to his youngest son Stephen being held by John's widow Ann until Stephen came of age. The will was proved in the Archdeaconry Court of Canterbury on 14 April 1624.

After his death, John's widow Ann would appear to have moved to Swalecliffe, Kent, where her daughter Margaret and son-in-law Rev Thomas Cleybrooke lived. She made her will there on 31 January 1630/31.[16] She named as beneficiaries her sons, William, John, Richard, and Stephen, and her daughters, Margaret, Marie, and Ann. She left twenty shillings to each of her daughters and five shillings each to her sons, William, John, and Richard [they having already inherited land in their father's will]. The rest of her estate went to her son Stephen, who was also appointed executor. Her will was proved on 15 February 1631 in the Archdeaconry Court of Canterbury.

Father 59 Thomas Sackett the elder of St Peter in Thanet b. say 1530, d. 1595

Thomas Sackett, yeoman of Birchington, Kent, son of Thomas Sackett the elder of St Peter in Thanet and Joane ___, was born, presumably in Thanet, Kent, about 1557. He was buried at Birchington on 4 November 1615.[1] He married at St Peter in Thanet on 8 February 1581/82, Martha Strowde.[2] She was buried at St Peter in Thanet on 4 January 1631/32.[3]

Thomas was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made in St Peter in Thanet on 30 March 1594.[4] His father died in 1595 and Thomas inherited his father's tenement and lands at St Peter in Thanet and the residue of the estate after various monetary bequests to his brother and sisters. Thomas was the executor of the estate.

Thomas was listed on the Thanet militia muster roll of 16 August 1599 as a member of St Peter's Wagoners.[5]

Thomas lived at Birchington and it would appear that his house and lands in St Peter were occupied and managed by John Edmunds who was buried at St Peter in Thanet on 8 October 1611, described as a servant to Thomas Sackett.[6]

Thomas made his will at Birchington on 23 June 1615.[7] He named as beneficiaries his wife Martha, his son Thomas, his daughter Johan, and his grandchildren Hugh and Martha Wright. He instructed his executors (his wife Martha and son Thomas) to sell his house and land at St Peter's to pay debts and legacies. He was also possessed of a house and land at Birchington. He willed that each of his sons should receive £10, and each of his daughters £5, after the expiry of a lease on the Birchington property. The will was proved at the Consistory Court of Canterbury on 7 November 1615. Thomas was a yeoman farmer in the Thanet parish of Birchington and was a churchwarden (oeconomus) at Birchington Church. His sons and daughters, other than Thomas and Johan, are not referred to by name in the will. Among his sons not named was Simon Sackett who, some fifteen years later, was to emigrate to the New World.

Edward Sacket, whose parents have not been identified, was baptized at Minster in Thanet, Kent, on 24 April 1565.[1]

1. Baptisms Register, Minster in Thanet, Kent (Transcript U3/143/1/1 - Debretts), "24 April 1565 Edwardus Sacket."

88 Sampson Sackett

(1571 -)

Sampson Sackett was baptized at St Peter in Thanet, Kent, on 22 July 1571.[1] This baptism record is the only reference found to Sampson Sackett. It does not name his parents. A candidate to be Sampson's father would be Simon Sackett who baptized a son Barnabus two years earlier at St Peter's. Contemporaries of Simon were John Sacket of Sackett's Hill and Thomas Sackett the elder of St Peter in Thanet. John of Sackett's Hill would be an unlikely candidate to be Sampson's father as he had baptized a daughter only two months earlier. Thomas the elder could be a candidate although, if he were Sampson's father, then Sampson would probably have predeceased him as he is not mentioned in Thomas's will of 1594.

91 William Sackett

(1577 - 1639/40)

Line 2 Robert[H], William[G], John[F], William[E]

Father	77	Robert Sackett b. c 1550, d. 1622
Mother		Faith Norwood b. c 1550, d. 1591

William Sackett, husbandman, maltster of Ash-next-Sandwich, Kent, son of Robert Sackett and Faith Norwood, was baptized at St John in Thanet on 1 January 1577/78.[1] He died aged about 63 and was buried at Ash next Sandwich on 12 March 1639/40.[2] He married, probably at Canterbury St Margaret in 1599, Joan Parker, having obtained a licence at Canterbury on 21 September 1599.[3] William described himself as a husbandman on the marriage licence. He subsequently became a maltster, having his own malthouses at Ash. Joan predeceased him and was buried at St Nicholas, Ash next Sandwich, on 18 March 1636/37.[4]

William was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made at St John in Thanet in October 1622.[5] He received £5 from the will as did his brothers Robert and Edward and sister Bennet, while Paul, the youngest brother, received the residue of money, goods and chattels, and was appointed executor of their father's estate.

William was a witness in an action in the Court of Chancery, London, in 1638–39, involving the disputed ownership of some of his father's lands in Ickham and Wingham, Kent. The court proceedings are summarised in the entry for William's brother Paul.

William made his will at Ash next Sandwich on 27 June 1639.[6] He named as beneficiaries his sons, William, John, Paul, Jeffery, Robert, and Thomas, his daughters, Elizabeth, Mary, and Joan, and his granddaughters, Joan Philpott and Mary Philpott. In addition to his house and malthouses, William left significant monetary sums to his sons—excepting Jeffery who he would appear to have effectively cut out, leaving him just one shilling. He also expressly excluded Jeffery from benefiting from an annuity which was the subject of a legal action. It is interesting to conjecture why he might have done this. Perhaps he had already provided for Jeffery, who had married the previous year. Perhaps he thought Jeffery incompetent to handle his own finances, although it is later seen that Jeffery followed in his father's footsteps, pursuing the trade of maltster in Sandwich. It would seem more likely, however, given the derisory bequest, that William and Jeffery had seriously fallen out and this was the father's death-bed insult to his son. The will was proved in the Consistory Court of Canterbury on 31 March 1640.

It is also noted that when William's son Robert made his will 19 years later in 1658, he referred to an amount of £3 owing to him by his brother Jeffery, perhaps confirming that Jeffery had indeed suffered financially after being disinherited.

Edward Sackett, yeoman of Ash-next-Sandwich and St John in Thanet, Kent, son of Robert Sackett and Faith Norwood, was baptized at St John in Thanet on 12 January 1579/80.[1] He died aged about 69 and was buried there on 31 May 1649.[2] He married first say 1610, ___ ___, by whom he had a daughter, Joanna. He married second at St Nicholas, Ash next Sandwich, on 5 July 1618, Parnell (___) Graunt, a widow, having obtained a licence at Canterbury on 3 July.[3, 4] There were no children of this marriage. Parnell was buried at St John in Thanet on 20 November 1658.[5]

Edward was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made at St John in Thanet in October 1622.[6] He was to receive £5 from his father's estate. Although details are not available from the abstract of the will, it is probable that Edward also inherited land from his father.

Edward does not appear to have left a will, his estate thereby going automatically to his wife, Parnell. She, however, left detailed instructions for the disposal of her not inconsiderable estate. She made her will at St John in Thanet on 9 April 1657, naming as beneficiaries a number of cousins, and her maid. The will was proved at Canterbury on 23 December 1658.[7]

Line 2 Robert[H], William[G], John[F], William[E]

Father	77	Robert Sackett b. c 1550, d. 1622
Mother		Faith Norwood b. c 1550, d. 1591

Paul Sackett, yeoman of Ash-next-Sandwich, St John in Thanet, and Wingham, Kent, son of Robert Sackett and Faith Norwood, was baptized at St John in Thanet on 10 March 1587/88.[1] He died aged about 79 and was buried at Preston near Wingham, Kent, on 19 August 1667.[2] He married at Canterbury St Martin in 1620, Ann (___) Lee, widow of Richard Lee, by licence obtained at Canterbury on 1 February 1619/20.[3] Ann was born about 1594.[4] She died aged about 76 and was buried at Preston near Wingham on 22 June 1670.[5]

Paul was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made at St John in Thanet in October 1622.[6] He was appointed executor of the will and was to receive the residue of his father's estate after various bequests to his other sons and daughter and to his grandchildren.

Paul was a churchwarden at St John in Thanet in 1640.[7]

Paul was a defendant in an action in the Court of Chancery, London, in 1632, and the plaintiff in further actions in 1638–39, involving the disputed ownership of some of his father's lands in Ickham and Wingham, Kent.

The Chancery Court actions

Paul Sackett was involved, first as a defendant and later as the plaintiff in proceedings in the Chancery Court, London, in 1632 and 1638–39. His brother William Sackett also gave evidence.

Paul and William's father Robert Sackett had bought lands in Ickham and Wingham, Kent, in 1609 (7th year of the reign of King James) for £60 from William Parker, the parties agreeing that Parker would continue to occupy the lands upon payment of an "annuity" of £6—effectively a sale-and-leaseback arrangement.

A few years later, William Parker, claiming that he had bought out the annuity, sold parts of the lands to various purchasers.

Robert Sackett died in 1622 and left the residue of his estate, including the deed of annuity, to his son Paul. Inclusion of the deed in his will implied that Robert believed it was still in force, although it appears that no rent had been received for some years.

Paul Sackett sought through an action at common law in the Palace of Canterbury to recoup 12 years' rent arrears from Richard Hurlston, who was now in the possession of some of the land, under threat of repossession.

In 1632, Richard Hurlston actioned Paul Sackett in the Court of Chancery in London, Hurleston claiming that William Parker had discharged the annuity in 1612 by paying to Robert Sackett in the North porch of the parish church of Ashe, as required by the deed of annuity, a capital sum of £63.

Hurleston disputed that he owed anything to Paul Sackett, but that if he did it would be only his fair share with other holders of the lands once owned by William Parker.

The matter rested for some years until, in 1638, Paul Sackett actioned, again in the Court of Chancery, William Jones, Henry Austen, Edward Hubberd, Simon Hurlestone, and William Brewer, the then holders of the William Parker lands, for enforcement of the deed of annuity.

Paul Sackett claimed that William Parker had not only failed to pay the rent due under the deed but had conspired with others to subdivide and sell the lands, rendering some of the lands unidentifiable through change of use and through merging with other land holdings.

The case became acrimonious, with each side accusing the other of behaving fraudulently.

The outcome of the case is not known although it must, for many years, have been the cause of a major rift, not least because Paul Sackett's older brother William Sackett was married to Joan Parker, a cousin of William Parker

Father 78 Edward Sackett b. c 1555, d. 1628/29
Mother Alice ___ b. say 1555, d. 1594

Richard Sackett, son of Edward Sackett and Alice ___, was baptized at St Peter in Thanet, Kent, on 6 January 1583/84.[1] He died aged about 56 and was buried at St John in Thanet on 5 June 1640.[2]

Richard was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made at St Lawrence in Thanet on 20 October 1624.[3] He was left £4 plus land in the parish of St John in Thanet for life with reversion to his children if any. Richard would have been 40 at the time of his father's will and the reference to "children if any" suggests that he was then unmarried and childless. No subsequent marriage record nor record of children have been found.

Richard was most likely the "cousin" Richard Sackett appointed overseer of the will of 1633 of his brother-in-law Valentine Austen.[4]

Father	78	Edward Sackett b. c 1555, d. 1628/29
Mother		Alice ___ b. say 1555, d. 1594

Ellen Sackett, daughter of Edward Sackett and Alice ___, was baptized at St Peter in Thanet, Kent, on 1 November 1585.[1] She married first at St Peter in Thanet on 18 October 1608, Valentine Austen.[2] He died in Tilmanstone, Kent, between 1 May 1633 and 23 May 1633.[3] She married second before 1660, James Owen.[4]

Ellen was named as a beneficiary in her father's will made at St Lawrence in Thanet on 20 October 1624.[5] She was left a sum of £17.

Ellen was the executrix of her husband Valentine's will made in Tilmanstone on 1 May 1633. She was to inherit the residue of his estate after bequests of £50 each to their sons, Leonard and Valentine, and £20 each to their daughters, Susan, Mary, Alice, and Ellen.[6] The overseer of Valentine's will, "cousin" Richard Sackett, was most likely Ellen's brother.

Ellen was named as a beneficiary in her brother Robert's will made at St John in Thanet on 16 February 1660.[4] She was to share equally with her three sisters an amount of £10 to be paid to them half-yearly by her son Leonard Austen who was the main beneficiary of his uncle Robert's will. Robert also left £6 to each of Ellen's six children.

Ellen's death/burial record has not been found, but she would have been about 75 at the date of her brother Robert's will.

Father	78	Edward Sackett b. c 1555, d. 1628/29
Mother		Alice ___ b. say 1555, d. 1594

Robert Sackett, yeoman of St John in Thanet, Kent, son of Edward Sackett and Alice ___, was baptized at St Peter in Thanet on 3 November 1587.[1] He died aged 75 and was buried there on 15 March 1662/63, described in the burials register as "an ancient bachelor."[2]

Robert was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made at St Lawrence in Thanet on 20 October 1624.[3] He was appointed executor of his father's estate and inherited land at St Peter in Thanet and the residue of the estate.

Robert made his will at St John in Thanet on 16 February 1660, naming as beneficiaries his sisters Alice, Ellen, Margaret, and Elizabeth, his nephews Leonard Austen, John Jarvis, Thomas Jenkin, and Daniel Jenkin, and his nieces Mary Jarvis, Margaret Jarvis, Sarah Jenkin, Elizabeth Gillowe, and Mildred Gillowe.[4] Robert was evidently a reasonably prosperous yeoman farmer, leaving several land holdings to his nephew Leonard Austen as well as significant moneys to his other nephews and nieces. Robert's will was witnessed by a Richard Sackett who was probably his first cousin once removed Richard Sackett (1626–1692.) The will was proved at the Archdeaconry Court of Canterbury on 25 March 1664.[4]

Mother		Ann/Agnes Sampson b. c 1565, d. 1630/31

Rev John Sackett, rector of Great Mongeham, Kent, son of John Sackett and Ann/Agnes Sampson, was baptized at St Peter in Thanet on 6 February 1596/97.[1] He died aged about 67, within a day or two of making a codicil to his will on 20 August 1664 and was buried at Great Mongeham on 24 August 1664.[2] He married first at Denton, Kent, on 19 April 1624, Elizabeth Rogers, daughter of Francis Rogers DD, having obtained a licence at Canterbury on the 8th of that month.[3, 4] Elizabeth died aged eighteen and was buried at Eythorne, Kent, on 8 November 1627.[5, 6] John married second at Ickham, Kent, on 15 May 1628, Sarah Frisby, daughter of Samuel Frisby and Sarah Abbot.[7] Sarah was baptized at St Peter in Thanet on 25 July 1613.[8] She was a sister of Alice Frisby who married John's brother Stephen. She died aged about 62 in Braunston, Lincolnshire, on 22 May 1676.[9]

John was admitted to Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge, on 20 May 1614. He was awarded a BA degree in 1617/18 and an MA in 1621. He was ordained a deacon in London on 12 March 1619/20, and appointed a priest in Peterborough, then in Northamptonshire, now in Cambridgeshire, on 24 September 1621. He was a curate at Herne, Kent, in 1624, and was rector of Betteshanger, Kent, from 1626 to 1628. He was awarded a BD degree at Oxford University in 1628. He was rector of Eastbridge, Kent, from 1628 to 1646 and was master of Eastbridge Hospital, Canterbury. He served as rector of Great Mongeham for 36 years from 1628 until his death in 1664.[10, 11]

John was named as a bondsman in the marriage licences of his brother William in 1618, of his sister Ann in 1620, and of his brother Rev Stephen Sackett in 1632.[12, 13, 14]

John was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made at St Peter in Thanet on 8 February 1623/24.[15] He was left the unspecified residue of lands and tenements after specific bequests of properties to his brothers William and Richard. The three brothers were joint executors of their father's estate.

John was named as a beneficiary in his mother's will made at Swalecliffe, Kent, on 31 January 1630/31.[16] John (and each of his brothers William and Richard), having been well provided for by his father, was left just five shillings in his mother's will, the residue of her estate going to the youngest son Stephen.

John was appointed as an overseer of the will of his brother-in-law William Jenkin made at Minster in Thanet on 12 February 1639/40.

John's name appears on several surviving Lay Subsidy rolls. In 1629/30 he had £3 in land on which he paid 12/- to 14/- tax. In 1642/3 he had £2 in land and paid 16/- rates. He made a contribution of £1-10s to the Collection for the Relief of Distressed Protestants (in Ireland) made throughout England in 1641/2. In the 1664 Hearth Tax returns, he had 6 hearths (in what would have been a large vicarage), and a non-chargeable empty cottage.[17]

The Eastman court case

Rev John Sackett, as master of Eastbridge Hospital, Canterbury, and his brother Rev Stephen Sackett were involved as defendants in proceedings in the Chancery Court, London, in 1650–51.

Ann Eastman, widow of Edward Eastman, claimed to be entitled to possession of six houses in Canterbury owned by the Eastbridge Hospital. Edward's father John Eastman had purchased a 40-year leasehold of the houses sometime before 1633. He had transferred the leasehold benefit to Edward by way of a marriage settlement, Ann having been given £100 as her portion by her own father.

John Eastman later came to regret the settlement and, without consultation or agreement with his son and daughter-in-law, sold the lease back to John Sackett. Ann alleged that her father-in-law had conspired with John Sackett and Stephen Sackett to sell them the leasehold for a small sum, destroying the documentation in the process. The houses had subsequently been let to tenants.

John Sackett confirmed that he had, as master of Eastbridge Hospital, granted a 40-year lease in 1630 to John Eastman for five houses and a shop, subject to maintenance of the premises in good order at the tenant's cost and to a yearly rent of 34 shillings. In 1635, after Eastman had consistently failed to pay the rent and had allowed the properties to fall into "very greate ruine", the parties agreed a buy-back of the lease, and this was effected by John Sackett paying John Eastman £70, a sum well in excess of the value of the properties. (The transaction was somewhat convoluted, with the properties being first put in the name of John's brother Richard Sackett, then put in trust for John to Stephen Sampson, who was probably John's brother William's father-in-law, and then mortgaged by John to his brother Stephen Sackett.)

The court dismissed Ann's claim, but John Sackett agreed to pay her £10 and to grant her a lease to continue living in one of the houses[18]

John's will

John made his will at Great Mongeham in 1664, naming as beneficiaries his sons Nathaniel, George, Samuel, and John, his daughters Margaret, Elizabeth, and Patience, and his brother William. As a result of his church living at Great Mongeham and as Master of Eastbridge Hospital and by inheritance, Rev John Sackett was a wealthy man. He left some £900 in money as well as several land holdings, and his will refers also to his wife's fortune of £40 a year.

He left £100 each to his sons Nathaniel and George and £200 each to his daughters Margaret, Elizabeth and Patience, plus £20 to each daughter to buy necessaries on marriage. He left tenements, a malthouse, and lands in Great Mongeham to his son Samuel, and tenements and lands in St Peter and St John in Thanet to his son John, the Prebendary of Lincoln. In a codicil to the will, he left his brother William an annuity of 40 shillings. He also left an annuity of 40 shillings to his brother-in-law George Frisby, brother of his wife Sarah. John appointed his two elder sons John and Nathaniel as executors.[19] The will was proved in the Archdeaconry Court of Canterbury on 14 September 1664.[19]

Sarah's will

John's widow Sarah made her will in Braunston, Lincolnshire, on 13 April 1676, naming as beneficiaries her daughters Elizabeth and Patience. She left to her daughter Elizabeth £5 in silver, her wedding ring and half her 'wearing cloaths', while the residue of her goods and chattels were to go to Patience, who was also appointed executrix. A George Sackett, presumably her son, was named as a witness to the will. Neither George, nor her other sons, John, Nathaniel and Samuel, known to be then surviving, are mentioned in her will, presumably because they had been well provided for by their father. A detailed inventory made shortly after her death valued Sarah's personal estate at £78.[20]

Mother		Ann/Agnes Sampson b. c 1565, d. 1630/31

Rev Stephen Sackett, vicar of Blean, Kent, son of John Sackett and Ann/Agnes Sampson, was baptized at St Peter in Thanet, Kent, on 10 November 1605.[1] He died aged 73 and was buried at Blean on 13 December 1678.[2] He married first at Great Mongeham, Kent, on 16 July 1632, Alice Frisby, daughter of Samuel Frisby and Sarah Abbot, having obtained a licence from Canterbury three days earlier.[3, 4] Alice was baptized at St John in Thanet on 29 October 1615.[5] She was a sister of Sarah Frisby who married Stephen's brother John. Alice died aged about 31 a few months after the birth of her seventh child and fifth daughter Anne (who herself survived but a few days longer) and was buried at Blean on 10 August 1647.[6] Stephen married second at St Mary the Virgin, Bishopsbourne, Kent, on 13 December 1652, Marie White.[7]

Stephen was admitted to Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge, on 20 July 1621 at the age of 15, having matriculated that year from his school at St John in Thanet. He was awarded a BA degree in 1624/25 and an MA in 1628. He was awarded a further BA degree at Oxford University on 25 June 1631.[8]

Stephen was vicar of St Cosmos in Blean from June 1631, and of West Hythe from November 1633, until his death in 1678.[9] He appears to have visited his second parish only rarely, one such occasion being when he baptized his granddaughter Mary White in 1664. In the 1660s he recorded that the church was defaced, that there was no burial place, and that Lympne church, where the West Hythe registers should be kept, itself had no minister. In 1644 he paid Hearth Tax in the Hundred of Whitstable for four hearths, presumably the Blean rectory.[10]

An account of Stephen's incumbency of his second parish at West Hythe appears in Archaeologia Cantiana, "Vicars of St. Mary, Westhythe":

> Stephen Sackett MA: instituted 2nd November 1633 on death of last incumbent.
> Early in June 1632 Mr Sackett was instituted to the vicarage of SS Cosmos & Damianus, Blean, on the presentation of John Boys, Esq. and the Rev. John Sackett S.T.B., Master of Eastbridge Hospital, Canterbury. Early in November the following year, Archdeacon Kingsley presented him to Westhythe. This seems to have necessitated his resignation of Blean, to which, however, he was instituted a second time in March 1634 on the presentation of the Rev. John Sackett, Master of Eastbridge Hospital. He held both benefices until his death in 1679. He paid occasional visits to Westhythe, and in October 1663 performed three Christenings there, a fourth being taken by Mr Hart of Burmarsh. A little later a memorandum by Mr Sackett occurs on one of the Transcripts, which presents a melancholy view of Church life in the district at that time: Burials in the parish we haue none, nor noe plase of burying, or Marrying: our church defaced: Lymph, the parish to which we should resort for religeous exercises, hauing noe Minister is seldome supplyed by any, & our Register should be kept at Limbe Church ... Steph: Sackett.

Rev Stephen Sackett was involved with his brother Rev John Sackett as defendants in an action in the Court of Chancery, London, in 1650, involving a dispute over ownership of the leasehold of properties. A summary of the court proceedings is given under Rev John's entry.

In 1659 Stephen made a marriage settlement on his daughter Damaris a few days before her marriage to James White, executing an indenture of feoffment in favour of James White.[11] (It is conjectured that James may have been the son of Stephen's second wife Marie White.)

Stephen was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made at St Peter in Thanet on 8 February 1623/24.[12]

Stephen was named as a beneficiary in his mother's will made at Swalecliffe, Kent, on 31 January 1630/31.[13] By his father's will, Stephen was to inherit the farm at Reading Street on reaching 21 and the farm at Boars Hill after the death of his mother Ann. In her will, she accordingly left Stephen the residue of her estate and appointed him executor.

Stephen made his will at Blean on 9 December 1678, listing as beneficiaries his wife (unnamed); his daughters Damaris, Mary, Patience, and Sarah; his grandson James White; and his granddaughter Patience White. He left to his wife "all she had brought on marriage plus £5", to each of his daughters and grandchildren he left twenty shillings, and the residue of his estate was to go to his eldest daughter Sarah.[14] The will was proved in the Archdeaconry Court of Canterbury on 18 December 1678.

Johan Sackett, daughter of Thomas Sackett the younger and Martha Strowde, was baptized at St Peter in Thanet, Kent, on 7 June 1582.[1] She was probably the "Johan Wright widowe of St Lawrence" who was buried at St Peter in Thanet on 8 July 1622.[2] She married at St Peter in Thanet on 29 November 1599, Hugh Wright.[3]

Johan was named as a beneficiary in her father's will made at Birchington on 23 June 1615.[4] She was left a sum of £5, to be paid a year after the expiry of the lease on her father's house and land at Birchington.

113 John Sackett

(c 1585 - 1634)

Line 3 Thomas[H], Thomas[G]

Father	82	Thomas Sackett the younger b. c 1557, d. 1615
Mother		Martha Strowde b. c 1560, d. 1631/32

John Sackett, fisherman of St Peter in Thanet, Kent, son of Thomas Sackett the younger and Martha Strowde, was baptized at St Peter in Thanet on 9 January 1585/86.[1] He died aged about 48 and was buried there on 2 December 1634.[2] He married there on 4 November 1611, Elizabeth Kitchen.[3, 4] After John's death, Elizabeth married second at St Peter in Thanet on 4 April 1635 Thomas Wilkins.[5]

John would have been the godson John Sackett who was left £1 in the will of his grandfather Thomas Sackett the elder made at St Peter in Thanet on 30 March 1594.[6] John would also have been one of the unnamed sons each left £10 in their father's will made at Birchington on 23 June 1615.

John made his will at St Peter in Thanet on 1 April 1628. It was proved in January 1634/35 by his widow Elizabeth, to whom he left all his estate after bequests of six pence to each of his siblings.[7]

The will identifies a brother Simon. The only Simon Sackett known in this period was Simon the colonist. According to the family legend, it would have been this John Sackett who accompanied Simon to the New World, and this John Sackett's son, also a John Sackett, who was later identified living in New Haven, Connecticut.

The will reads:

Aprill the first day 1628:
Memorand that Jhon Sackett have made my last will and testament In I will and bequeath my soule unto my God Allmighty and my body to bee buryed in the pish Church of St. Peters in the Isle of Thanett in the County of Kent fisherman. In It Is my will that Elesebeth my wife shall be my whole exsteres [executrix] which I doe give unto hir all my goods and chattells shee paying my debtes and lageste [legacies] and my funerall dischardged In It is my will that my wife shall not nomain [underlined, in margin: demand hee ment] that my brother Simon Sackitt owe unto mee In my will is that I give unto all my broders and sisters vid a peece, Whereunto I Jhon Sackett have sett my usuall marke: JII. Witness George Marly to this will Wittnes to this William Kort by his marke.
Probate 8 January 1634 on the oath of Elizabeth Sackett, the widow and relict of the deceased and executrix named in the will.

The will, while not directly disproving the legend, provides no evidence to support it.

It would appear from his will that John Sackett the fisherman did not have children. He would not, therefore, have been the father of John Sackett of New Haven.

John the fisherman died in his native St Peter in Thanet, not in America. As he died in late 1634 and Simon's migration was probably in late 1630/early 1631 and certainly before 1632, it would be possible for John to have accompanied him to America and then to have returned to England. There are, however, no records of this John Sackett in New England (but see commentary on the inventory of 1684 of the estate of John Sackett of

New Haven).

At the date of the will, April 1628, Simon owed his brother John a sum of money, and it was John's request that repayment not be sought. Although assigning a reason for the loan is pure conjecture, it is tempting to hypothesise that John may have set aside funds for the costs of the voyage —is it possible that they were planning to emigrate at this early date? And was this the reason for John's making his will?

The 6d to be paid to each of his brothers and sisters was a very small sum, more token than bequest. With no other apparent heir, his wife Elizabeth would have assumed ownership of his goods and chattels regardless of a will. The possibility suggests itself therefore that the main purpose of the will may have been to clarify the status of the loan to his brother Simon.

John was appointed executor of his sister Sara Mockett's will made in Birchington on 22 March 1633. He was to distribute her estate equally to her children and was charged with bringing up and educating her three youngest children. A witness to the will, Elizabeth Sackett, would have been John's wife.

4. The conclusion that it was John Sackett, the fisherman of the 1628 will, who married Elizabeth Kitchen in 1611 is based on the naming in the will of his wife Elizabeth. He would have been about 25 on marriage to Elizabeth, thus giving a good age match.

Sara Sackett, daughter of Thomas Sackett the younger and Martha Strowde, was baptized at St Peter in Thanet, Kent, on 13 May 1591.[1] She died aged about 43 and was buried at Birchington, Kent, on 3 June 1634.[2] She married at Birchington on 6 February 1614/15, Richard Mockett.[3, 4] He was buried at St Nicholas at Wade, Kent, on 2 January 1627.[5]

Sara would have been one of the unnamed daughters each left £5 in their father's will made at Birchington on 23 June 1615.

Richard Mockett made his will at St Nicholas at Wade on 30 December 1626. He left £10 to each of his sons, Valentine, John, and Richard, when they reached 21, and £10 to each of his daughters, Anne and Sara, when they reached 18. Daughter Anne was a daughter of Richard's first marriage to Catharine Coop. Richard's wife Sara was to have the use of the money for the children's education, as well as receiving the residue of the estate. The will was proved on 24 January 1627.

Sara made her will in Birchington on 22 March 1633. She appointed her brother John as executor and left her estate to him in trust to bring up her three youngest children, and to distribute her estate equally to all her children as they came of age. A witness to the will, Elizabeth Sackett, was probably John's wife. The will was proved on 12 June 1634. John died later the same year, presumably leaving Sara's children to the care of other family members.

Simon Sackett's legacy

Undoubtedly the most significant migration in the history of the Sackett family was that of Simon Sackett who, with his wife Isabel and their infant son Simon, emigrated from St Peter in Thanet, Kent, England, to the Massachusetts Bay Colony in America.

Despite a short life—he had probably not reached forty when he died in 1635—Simon Sackett the colonist enjoys a pivotal position in the history of the Sacketts, becoming the progenitor of the major part of the American branch of the family.

Simon Sackett, of St Peter in Thanet, Kent, and Newtown (later Cambridge), Massachusetts Bay Colony, son of Thomas Sackett the younger and Martha Strowde, was baptized at St Peter in Thanet on 23 November 1595.[1] He died in Newtown between 5 and 10 Oct 1635.[2] He married first at St Peter in Thanet on 2 November 1618, Elizabeth Boyman.[3, 4] She died after only seven years' marriage and was buried at St John in Thanet on 27 February 1625/26.[5] He married second at St John in Thanet on 6 August 1627, Isabel Pearce.[6, 7] After Simon's death, Isabel married after June 1636 and before 1639, probably in Hartford,

Connecticut, William Bloomfield.[8] Isabel died after 1 April 1682 (date of will made at Newtown, Long Island, New York.)[9]

Simon would have been one of the unnamed sons each left £10 in their father's will made at Birchington, Kent, on 23 June 1615.

Simon and Isabel's emigration

Simon and Isabel emigrated from England to the Massachusetts Bay Colony at about the time of the Winthrop fleet of 1630. Their names have not been found on passenger lists reconstructed by researchers of the early immigrants to New England. However, there is good evidence that they had settled in Newtown probably in 1631 and certainly by 1632.

Charles Weygant, in The Sacketts of America stated that they made the journey on the Lyon, leaving Bristol, England, on 1 December 1630 and arriving at Nantasket Roads, off Boston, on 5 February 1631, after an unusually severe voyage. He further stated that among the heads of families on the Lyon were Roger Williams, Simon Sackett, John Sackett (who would be Simon's brother), John Throkmorton, and Nicholas Bailey.

Weygant does not explain his conclusion that Simon came on this ship. It is a reasonable hypothesis, but supporting evidence has not been found. The Lyon's arrival date (February 1631) is a good match with the first record (1631 or 1632) of Simon in New England. And the presence of Williams and Throkmorton on this voyage is confirmed by Winthrop's Journal, Winthrop also recording the names of Perkins and Ong (but not Bailey or Sackett), "and others, with their wives and children, about twenty passengers".

Other ships on which Simon may have travelled are possible. A fleet of six ships, carrying a group of some 350 settlers led by the Puritan minster Francis Higginson sailed from Gravesend in April and May 1629 for Salem. Numbers of the passengers on these ships settled in Boston, Charlestown, and other Bay Colony places as well as in Salem.

Gravesend, in the Thames estuary on the north coast of Kent, and only 60 miles from Thanet, commends itself as a starting point for Simon's voyage, and is perhaps more likely than the Lyon's departure port of Bristol in the west of England.

The possibility of Simon's migrating in Spring 1629 rather than in Winter 1630–31 would also fit better with the fact of his brother John's making his will in April 1628.

It is possible, too, that Simon went with the main Winthrop fleet of eleven ships. The first five of these sailed from Yarmouth, Isle of Wight, in April and May 1630, arriving at Salem in June and July, but, perhaps of more interest, are ships setting out from Gravesend or London. The Thomas and William sailed from Gravesend in May, and the Handmaid from London in August.

John Winthrop's wife and children made the voyage the following year, 1631, sailing from London in August on the Lyon and arriving at Nantasket on 2 November. Charles Banks, in The Planters of the Commonwealth, identified a number of residents of Newtown who he thought probably came in this ship. These residents first appear in Newtown records on 7 January 1632/33. Simon could have been a passenger on this ship, although it is clear from the town records that Simon was in Newtown at an earlier date than these other residents, and probably by July 1631. The conclusion by the Cambridge Historical Commission that Simon Sackett and others had settled there by 26 July 1631 is discussed below

Simon in Newtown

Simon and Isabel were among the first settlers of Newtown, arriving in 1631 or 1632, and remaining there until Simon's death just a few years later in 1635.

Newtown had been identified by Governor Winthrop and the "Assistants" of the company as a suitable site for a fortified town and he and Deputy Governor Dudley and Secretary Bradstreet as well as other senior men had committed to build houses there in the Spring of 1631 and to settle there before the following winter. (Winthrop did indeed have a house erected there but later took it down and re-erected it at Boston.)

At the front of The Towne Book of Newtowne (later The Records of the Town of Cambridge (formerly Newtowne), Massachusetts, 1630–1703), Simon's name appears in an undated list, but either 1631 or 1632, of the first eight settlers of Newtown: "The Towne, Newtowne, Inhabitants then, Tho = Dudly Esqr, mr Symon Bradstreet, mr Edmond Lockwood, mr Daniell Patrike, John Poole, William Spencer, John Kirman, Symon Sackett."[10]

The Cambridge Historical Commission have placed a historical notice in Winthrop Square stating that these men had completed and occupied houses in Newtown by 26 July 1631. This precise date would appear to refer to an order made at a meeting of the Court of Assistants held in Boston on that day that "eu'y first Friday in eu'y moneth there shalbe a gen'all traineing of the remaindr of them who inhabitt att Charlton, Misticke, & the new towne, att a convenient place aboute the Indian wigwams, the traininge to begin att one of the clocke in the afternoone."

It would seem unlikely that an order for a general training would have been made for a smaller number of men than the eight named in the undated list. It is therefore likely that the list refers to those resident by July 1631. The Towne Book was started in 1632 and there is missing data from the first two pages. The words "Inhabitants then" introducing the list clearly relate to an earlier date, now missing or illegible in the original. (The transcription "Inhabitants then" appears in the transcription made by the Cambridge City Council in 1901. Lucius Paige's transcription in his 1877 History of Cambridge, Massachusetts, 1630–1877 reads "Inhabitants there".)

The settlement grew rapidly with the arrival of the Braintree company in the summer of 1632, and it was decided to secure with fencing a substantial area of common land. By a decision of a town meeting on 7 January 1632/33, these "common pales", of a length of some 580 rods, were divided among the then 42 landholders. Simon was allotted 6 rods (equal to 33 yards). On 5 August 1633, he was granted half an acre for a cowyard in Cambridge.[11] On 20 August 1635, he was granted a one-acre share of land at Fresh Pond meadow.[12]

Subsequent land records relate to Simon's widow Isabel. An inventory of land taken on 10 October 1635 (within days of Simon's death) and recorded in The Register Book of the Lands and Houses in the "New Towne" listed several lots in the name of Sackett: a house in the town at Long Street with about half a rood (i.e. one-eighth of an acre), half an acre at Cowyard Row, five and a half acres at Small Lott Hill, one acre and a rood at Long Marsh, and five acres in the Great Marsh.[13]

Administration of Simon's estate was granted by the General Court of the Massachusetts Bay Company to his widow Isabel on 3 November 1635.[14], [15]

"Widdow Sackett" was listed in the Cambridge Town Records on 8 February 1635/36 as a householder. She owned one of the 76 houses in the town.

Isabel's removal to Hartford and remarriage

After Simon's death, Isabel removed with her young sons Simon and John to Hartford, Connecticut, travelling in the Spring of 1636 with the hundred-strong Hooker congregation, including William Bloomfield who had immigrated from England and settled at Cambridge in 1634. Isabel's sons Simon and John, about six and four respectively, accompanied her, and William's three-year-old daughter Sarah Bloomfield also made the journey. Isabel and William Bloomfield were married sometime after 8 February 1635/36 when Isabel was listed as a widow and householder in Cambridge and before about 1639 when William and Isabel's first son Daniel was born, presumably in Hartford. William and Isabel had two more sons, both born in Hartford, John in 1645 and Samuel in 1647.

William and Isabel removed to Newtown, Long Island, in 1662. William died there in 1667 or 1668. Isabel survived him. She made her will at Newtown on 1 April 1682, leaving her share of the "housings and lands" left to her by her husband William to their son Daniel Bloomfield.

Isabel's son Simon Sackett married his stepsister Sarah Bloomfield in Springfield, Massachusetts, in about 1652

Simon's reasons for emigrating

Early migrants from England to the New World had various motivations for seeking a new life in a virtually unknown country and for undertaking the hazardous journey. Many fled religious persecution, but others removed in hopes of a better, more prosperous future. England had entered on a half-century of chronic trade depression. Propagandists for the Massachusetts Bay Company, which had been founded in 1629, were active in the recruitment of settlers. And there was the promise of boundless fertile lands. Some were escapees from threatening plague or famine. Survival in the new land would depend crucially upon the application of essential practical skills; thus, many were farmers or were engaged in allied trades. Well-placed migrants took with them their servants and these, too, were to become founding fathers of America.

Simon's reasons for embarking on his American adventure are not known. Nor do we know his occupation. Given the documentation of the time, it would seem likely that, had Simon emigrated for reasons of religious conviction, there would remain recorded evidence of the fact. But it is dangerous to speculate as to his reasons; it is to be hoped that further information will come to light. It is worth, however, considering Simon's family circumstances at the time.

Simon Sackett was born, probably in November 1595 (he was baptized on 23 November 1595), in the small rural parish of St Peter in the Isle of Thanet on the north-east coast of Kent. He was the sixth of nine children, and third of five sons, born to Thomas and Martha Sackett. Simon's father, Thomas, who had died when Simon was 20, was a yeoman farmer in Birchington, a parish some five miles west of St Peter. Thomas had evidently established a farm at Birchington some time after the birth of his youngest child, Elizabeth, in 1604.

The description of Thomas, in his will made in 1615, as a "yeoman" implies that he owned at least some of his land. However, the term does not necessarily imply significant wealth and it is clear from his will that his house and land at St Peter's were mortgaged and that his house and land at Birchington were rented. His will directed that the St Peter's property be sold to pay his debts and legacies. Thomas had inherited lands and a tenement at St Peter's from his father, also Thomas. Thomas the elder, although possessed of property, described himself in his will as a "labourer"; again, that will does not suggest significant wealth.

Simon was about 35 years old when he made his fateful decision to emigrate. Two of his brothers had died, older brother Thomas some eleven years earlier, and younger brother William about fifteen years earlier. Although there is no direct confirmatory evidence, it is possible that they were victims of plague or other epidemic which occurred frequently in Birchington in the early part of the 17th century[16]. His eldest brother John, later identified by his will as John Sackett the fisherman, survived. There is no evidence that John or Simon were possessed of lands.

Simon had been married twice; first in 1618 to Elizabeth Boyman, and following her death in 1625/26, second to Isabel Pearce in 1627. Elizabeth had borne him three daughters, Christianna in 1620, Elizabeth in 1623, and Martha in 1625. Of these, only Christianna is known to have survived to adulthood, marrying Thomas Tanner in 1641. No death or burial records for Elizabeth or Martha have been found but it is reasonable to assume that they died in infancy or childhood, perhaps the victims of plague. In any event, when he emigrated, Simon left at least one young, motherless, daughter behind, presumably in the care of one of his brothers or sisters.

The will of Simon's brother John, made in 1628, reveals that Simon owed his brother a sum of money. It would be stretching the evidence to conclude that this would have been a loan to help finance Simon's voyage (emigration may not even have been under consideration at this early date), but it does indicate that Simon was not a man of means. As a second son, probably without land, his prospects in Thanet may have seemed limited. In the absence of evidence of a religious motive, it is probable that Simon was attracted by the promise of a more prosperous future in New England. Or, he may have been motivated by both religious and economic factors.

Simon and Isabel's voyage

Although Weygant gives specific details of the dates and method of Simon's journey to Boston, Massachusetts, on the Lyon from Bristol on England's west coast, it has not yet proved possible to verify from primary sources that he was a passenger on that particular voyage.[1718] Weygant's version is probable but it is known to be inaccurate in the important particular of Simon's origin, Weygant stating this to be the Isle of Ely, Cambridgeshire, instead of the Isle of Thanet, Kent. Other writers have proposed various dates for Simon's migration (Riker, "about the year 1628 or '29"; Savage and Anderson, 1632). The earlier dates would seem less likely as there were relatively few settlers before the sailing of the Winthrop fleet of eleven ships in 1630. If Simon was indeed on this Lyon voyage then he would certainly have met John Winthrop as the latter boarded the ship on 8 February 1631 as it rode at anchor off Long Island.[19]

Weygant records Simon as being engaged, with others, in building dwellings in Newtown, Mass., in 1631. Confirmation of this date would be of help in determining Simon's date of migration. Although it is likely that Simon was there in 1631, it has not been possible to confirm this. The first record of Simon found in Newtown (Cambridge) is in the undated list (almost certainly of 1632) in the Cambridge Town Records.

The Cambridge Historical Commission have placed a plaque in Winthrop Park stating that Dudley, Bradstreet, Lockwood, Poole, Patrick, Spencer, Kirman, and Sackett had completed and occupied houses in Newtown by 26 July 1631. However, study of the Commission's source (Lucius Paige's History of Cambridge) suggests that this rather stretches the evidence. It would perhaps be more accurate to say that Dudley and Bradstreet had built houses in Newtown by 1631 and it is likely that the others had also done so.[20]

The family tradition

Weygant relates the family tradition as told to him by his father-in-law, Samuel Bailey Sackett, that Simon with his brother, John, travelled on the Lyon in company with Roger Williams. The existence of this brother has since been challenged (by Anderson) and our further researches have revealed that Weygant's primary evidence in support of the family tradition, that John Sackett, Simon's alleged brother, filed an inventory of his own son's estate (in 1684), was mistaken. With the removal of Simon's brother, John, the question is opened of the relationship between Simon and John of New Haven (claimed by Weygant to have been the son of Simon's brother) —and, indeed, the migration of this John Sackett.

DNA test results

An early objective of the Sackett DNA project was to see if there was a genetic link between the lines of Simon Sackett the colonist and John Sackett of New Haven. Given the family tradition, it was fully expected that a match would be found. However, test results for a significant number of present-day descendants in each line suggest that Simon and John were not related 20. A plaque placed in Winthrop Park in Harvard Square by the Cambridge Historical Commission in 1980 states, "By July 26, 1631, eight houses were completed and occupied by Dudley, Bradstreet, Lockwood, Poole, "Capt." Patrick, Spencer, Kirman, and Sackett." Enquiries made by Lester L Sackett in 2004 reveal that the Commission's source for the 1631 date was Lucius Paige's History of Cambridge (Riverside Press, 1877). However, study of Paige's work suggests that the Commission's conclusion, that these eight men were established in Cambridge by July 1631, rather stretches the evidence. Indeed, Paige was careful to state that he had no "certain proof". Referring to the Town Records, Paige stated, "But this Book of Records was not commenced until 1632, several months after Dudley and Bradstreet performed their promise 'to build houses at the New Town.' Whether more than the before mentioned eight persons, and indeed whether all these resided in the New Town before the end of 1631, I have not found any certain proof. The number of inhabitants in that year was doubtless small, yet there were enough able-bodied men to be specially included in an order of the court passed July 26, 1631, requiring a general training of soldiers in all the plantations." There would seem, therefore, to be satisfactory evidence that Dudley and Bradstreet had built houses in Newtown in 1631. While it is likely that others had also done so, there is no direct evidence of this.

Cottage at Buddles Farm, St Peter in Thanet, Kent (Chris Sackett 2007)

John Sackett, son of George Sackett and Katherine Tompson, was born in St Peter in Thanet, Kent, on 8 September 1594[1] and baptized there on 12 September 1594.[1] A death record has not been found. He may have died young, but assuming that he survived to adulthood it would appear likely that he was the man referred to in later records as John Sackett of Buddles. He would also have been a candidate for the elusive John Sackett who, according to family tradition, was the father of John Sackett of New Haven.

John Sackett of New Haven

The possibility has been considered that George and Katherine's son John may have been the John Sackett said by family tradition to have emigrated with Simon Sackett to the New World, and to have been the father of John Sackett of New Haven. As a contemporary and first cousin of Simon's, he is at least a candidate to be the alleged co-colonist. However, DNA testing of descendants of Simon Sackett the colonist and John Sackett of New Haven suggests that these men may not have been closely related. Although not capable of proving a negative, the tests appear to show that John of New Haven was not of the same line as Simon. In this case, Simon's cousin John would not have been the alleged migrant.

John Sackett of Buddles

On a basis of "right time, right place", this John Sackett, the son of George and Katherine, is probably the same as "John Sackett of Buddles" who would have married in about 1620 and who baptized daughters Anne (in 1622) and Martha (in 1625) at St Peter's Church. He had a number of other children baptized at St Peter's, including a son John Sackett whose will sheds much light on the members of this family.

This sketch continues on the assumption that John the son of George and Katherine is the same as John of Buddles John Sackett of Buddles married about 1620, Mary ___.[2] A death record for this John Sackett has not been found – at least not one that can be assigned with any confidence. The only unassigned record is that of the burial at St Peter's on 13 March 1676/77 of a John Sackett "of St Lawrence" (this burial is recorded also in the St Lawrence Church register). If this burial was of this John, he would have been 82 years of age.

John's Children

Of the children attributed to John Sackett of Buddles and Mary, all were baptized at St Peter's except Paul (baptized and buried in 1621 at St John's). Paul is attributed only tentatively to this marriage

In only two of the baptisms (of Anne in 1622 and Martha in 1625) is the father referred to as 'of Buddles'. In the next three records (John 1628, Sarah 1631 and Katherine 1633) he is referred to as merely 'John Sackett'. In the next two (Jone/Jane 1636 and Elizabeth 1638) the parents are referred to as 'John & Margary Sackett'. In the case of the last child Thomas (1642) the parents are 'John & Mary Sackett'. Despite the orderly sequence of these baptisms, all at St Peter's, there could be some doubt about their all being attributed to the same parents. However, evidence that these children were siblings is given by the 1678 will of John Sackett, which names brother Thomas and sisters Ann (Mocket), Martha (Rickards), Katherine (Mumery) and Joane (Overy). This accounts for six of the children, only Sarah and Elizabeth not being named in the will. Elizabeth is known to have died in childhood and it may be assumed that Sarah had also died before 1678.

Why "of Buddles"?[3]

The question arises as to why John "of Buddles" was so described in the baptism records of his daughters Anne and Martha, but not of his subsequent children. The obvious conclusion would be that there were two John Sacketts in the parish in the years 1622 and 1625 but that by 1628 (when the next child, John, was baptized) there was only one. It would seem likely that the other John Sackett would have been John Sackett, believed to have been the brother of Simon the colonist. If the two assumptions (1. that John of Buddles was the son of George and Katherine, and 2. that John the fisherman was Simon's brother) are correct, then John of Buddles and John the fisherman were first cousins[4]

3. Buddles Farm was, and is, on the Dane Court Road, next to Sackett's Hill Farm.
4. It is noted, however, that in the baptism record of John of Buddles' third child John on 16 March 1627/28 the father is referred to without the suffix "of Buddles", despite the fact that John the fisherman is seen also to be in St Peter's, as evidenced by the making of his will just two weeks later on 1 April 1628.

(late 1500s - 1641/42)

Thomas Sackett, of Herne, Kent, was born presumably in the late 1500s. He was buried at St Martin, Herne, on 25 March 1641/42.[1] His parents have not been identified. He married first before 1620. The name of this wife is not known. He married second at St Martin, Herne, on 8 September 1632, Mary Pickell.[2] He married third after 1634, Anne ___.

129 Henry Sackett

(say 1600 - 1635)

Henry Sackett, of Herne, Kent, was born say 1600. He was buried at St Martin, Herne, on 18 September 1635.[1] His parents have not been identified. He married first at Herne on 15 January 1626/27, Mary Warry.[2] He married second at Herne on 8 August 1633, Mary Hales.[3, 4]

3. Marriages Register, St Martin, Herne, Kent, "8 August 1633 Henry Sackett & Mary Hales."
4. It would seem unlikely that there would have been two Henry Sacketts in Herne at this date. A death or burial record for Mary, the first wife, which would have supported the assigning of the second marriage to this Henry Sackett, has not been found.

(early 1600s - after 1647)

Richard Sackett, of Tilmanstone, Kent, was born probably in the early 1600s. His parents have not been identified. He married before 1630, Margaret ___. She predeceased Richard[1] and was buried at Walmer, Kent, on 1 December 1647.[1] It is assumed that Richard who baptized his daughter Mary at Tilmanstone in 1630 was the same as the Richard whose wife Margaret died in 1647.

132 Richard Sackett

Richard Sackett was born say 1640. He died in Chipping Ongar, Essex, in 1678. He married Mary ___.

The only record found for Richard Sackett is his will made at Chipping Ongar on 15 July 1678.[1] He left all his goods and chattells to his wife Mary, asking her "for my sake to be kind to my children." This would imply that his children were still young, and may imply that Mary was the stepmother. The will was proved on 31 August 1678.

Robert was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made at Ash next Sandwich on 27 June 1639.[5] He was left (with his brother Thomas) his father's dwelling house, malthouses and the residue of the estate after other specific bequests. He was also left a share in an annuity which was the subject of a law suit.

Robert made his will at Herne on 14 November 1658, naming as beneficiaries his wife Mary, his brothers Paul, Jeffery, Thomas, William, and John, his nephews John Sackett and Thomas Sackett, and his niece Mary Sackett.[6] From his will, it would appear that Robert and Mary were childless, although the bequest to his wife's granddaughter indicates that Mary had at least one child from her previous marriage.

146 Jeffery Sackett

(1617 - 1695)

Line 2 William[I], Robert[H], William[G], John[F], William[E]

Father	91	William Sackett b. 1577, d. 1639/40
Mother		Joan Parker b. c 1580, d. 1636/37

Jeffery Sackett, Mayor of Sandwich, Kent, son of William Sackett and Joan Parker, was baptized at St John in Thanet, Kent, on 30 March 1617.[1] He died aged about 78 on 22 September 1695[2] and was buried at St Mary, Sandwich, where, set into the floor of the church, is a stone inscribed,

> Here Lyeth Intered the Body of Captain Jeffery Sacket one of the Jurats of This Town and was Lwise Maior of the Same Who Departed this Life The 22 day of September 1695 Aged four score Years.[2, 3]

He married first at St Nicholas, Ash next Sandwich, on 2 April 1638, Sarah Swaine.[4] He married second at Canterbury St Mary Bredin on 6 September 1669, Elizabeth (Seaman) Haite, widow of Simon Haite, having obtained a licence at Canterbury the same day.[5, 6]

Jeffery was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made at Ash next Sandwich on 27 June 1639.[7] He was left one shilling while his siblings were left substantial amounts. It may have been the case that Jeffery had already been provided for by his father. However, had this been so, it would have been expected that this would have been referred to in the will, and the leaving of a token amount would not have been necessary. The more likely conclusion is that this derisory bequest was a calculated insult.

Jeffery was named as a beneficiary in his brother Robert's will made in Herne, Kent, on 14 November 1658.[8] He was left a sum of £1. Robert also left a sum of £3 to his nephew John, with the instruction that the amount was "to be paid by my brother Jeffery Sackett which he owes me."

Jeffrey Sackett was elected a freeman of the city of Sandwich on 2 December 1639 by marriage. (This would suggest that he was not previously of Sandwich and became a landowner there as a result of his marriage.) He was elected as a common councillor in 1660 and was mayor of Sandwich on three occasions—1674, 1687 and 1693.[9]

Upon marriage to his second wife, Elizabeth Haite, in 1669, Jeffery's household was also enlarged by the arrival of Elizabeth's young sons, Richard and William. Elizabeth's late husband, Simon Haite, a farmer, had left her well provided for, but financial arrangements between her and Jeffery, in particular over the costs of the maintenance of her sons, were to prove a long-running sore, blighting the marriage and resulting in a protracted and acrimonious legal case in the Court of Chancery.[10] The verdict in the case is not known, but the witness statements reveal much detail of domestic disharmony.

The initial action was taken by Jeffery in May 1677 when he sued his stepson William Haite for the costs of his maintenance. The other stepson Richard Haite had died by then. Jeffery claimed that his stepsons' father, Simon Haite, had left them a substantial inheritance and that, under the terms of a settlement at the time of Jeffery and Elizabeth's marriage in 1669, Jeffery was entitled to payment to cover the costs of the boys' maintenance and schooling.

William Haite's formal answers, and those of his uncle and guardian, Robert Seaman, were given in June 1677. They counter-claimed that Jeffery had, on marrying Elizabeth, entered into a commitment to provide for Elizabeth and her sons in the sum of £100 should he predecease her or them. This inheritance was secured on a bond for £300 entered into on the day of his marriage by Jeffery Sackett in favour of Richard Crippen acting on behalf of Elizabeth and her sons. It was acknowledged that Jeffery was entitled to recompense for maintenance out of the profits of the boys' estate but it was claimed that he had been fully paid for the periods during which he had provided for them.

The matter appears to have rested there until 1682 when, about a year after his mother Elizabeth's death, William Haite actioned his stepfather Jeffery Sackett in the Court of King's Bench for alleged debt under the terms of the bond.

Jeffery responded by resurrecting the claim for maintenance costs, lodging a complaint in the Chancery Court in November 1682 against his stepson William Haite, William's uncle Robert Seaman, Robert's wife Elizabeth, and other "confederates". The court action dragged on for two years with each side producing a number of witnesses, including two of Jeffery's daughters and his son-in-law, Isaac Pierce, a surgeon.

The witnesses' depositions give much intimate detail, even including the information that the young William, "by reason he was duringe that time troubled with a flux of urine whereby he did rott and spoile the beddinge and linnen whereon he lay", caused Jeffery to incur a maintenance cost of £14 in the year instead of £12.

Jeffery Sackett does not emerge well from the record of the case, with some witnesses testifying to his unkindness and cruelty. No blame appears to have attached to his wife for her decision to leave the matrimonial home. Jeffery, through his achievement in becoming three times the mayor of Sandwich, is seen to have been an ambitious man. He evidently had aspirations to leadership or, at least, to a certain standing in the community. But the damaging revelations in the court case suggest the possibility that Jeffery's father, William, had the measure of his son when, years earlier, he had cut him out of his will. Jeffery's story is a reminder that human nature is not much changed down the centuries!

Tragedy touched Jeffery's own immediate family, three of his four children dying young: Patience and Jeffery both at 21, and Sarah at 28.

In 1680, in an unrelated case in the Chancery Court, Jeffery appeared as a witness. He was described as a gentleman of Sandwich and farmer of land belonging to the parsonage of Wednesborow.[11]

An inventory of Jeffery's estate was taken at Sandwich, Kent, on 5 October 1695. The total value was £120, of which a stock of fifty quarters of malt was valued at £40, and his cattle and sheep had a value of £39.[12]

Thomas Sackett, maltster of Ash, Kent, son of William Sackett and Joan Parker, was born on 25 December 1618 and baptized at St John in Thanet, Kent, on 3 January 1618/19.[1] He died aged 47 and was buried at St Nicholas, Ash next Sandwich, on 3 October 1666.[2] He married at St Mary, Sandwich, Kent, on 19 May 1642, Mary Coleman, by licence.[3, 4]

Thomas was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made at Ash next Sandwich on 27 June 1639.[5] He was left (with brother Robert) his father's dwelling house, malthouses and the residue of the estate after various specific bequests.

Thomas was named as a beneficiary in his brother Robert's will made in Herne, Kent, on 14 November 1658.[6] He was left a sum of £1.

An inventory of Thomas's estate was taken at Ash next Sandwich on 30 October 1673. His livestock, crops, and household goods were valued at £54.[7, 8] The date of the inventory, seven years after Thomas's death in 1666, is puzzling, but no other candidate to whom the inventory could relate is found. It may be assumed that the Jeffery Sacket Jnr who signed the inventory was Thomas's brother, although the suffix "Jnr" is also puzzling. Jeffery, the brother, had a son Jeffery, but the son would have been only about 13 at the date of the inventory.

John was admitted to Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge, on 6 July 1647. He was awarded a BA degree in 1650-51 and an MA in 1654.[2]

A record of John Sackett in the Surman Index of Congregational ministers reads, "Presbyterian heretofore but now comformable. Mungeham Magna, Kent." The date of the item is difficult to read but may be 1668. If so, it would refer to this John. An earlier date would suggest the record referred to his father, who died in 1664.[3]

John was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made at Great Mongeham in 1664.[4] He was left all his father's lands and tenements in St Peter and St John in Thanet, and was appointed executor of the will jointly with his brother Nathaniel.

John was named as sole executor of his brother Samuel's will made in Braunston, Lincolnshire, on 16 May 1680.[5]

John made his will on 10 June 1680 Braunston, County of City of Lincoln, naming as beneficiaries his brother Nathaniel, his sisters Elizabeth and Patience and his nephew (another) Rev John Sackett MA. He left his lands and tenements in St Peter's and St John's to his brother for his lifetime, then to go to Nathaniel's son John. He left £30 and £10 respectively to his sisters Elizabeth and Patience. The will was proved at the Prerogative Court in Canterbury on 4 November 1680.[6]

Nathaniel Sackett, gentleman of Canterbury, Kent, son of Rev John Sackett BD Oxf, MA Camb, and Sarah Frisby, was baptized at Great Mongeham, Kent, on 19 April 1636.[1] He died in Canterbury in 1682. He married at Thanington, Kent, on 25 November 1669, Ann Terry, daughter of Michael Terry.[2, 3] Ann was born about 1647.[4]

Nathaniel was admitted as a Freeman of the City of Canterbury in 1659. He was a Freeman by Redemption, meaning that he bought his freedom.[5]

Nathaniel was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made at Great Mongeham in 1664.[6] He was left a sum of £100 and was appointed executor of the will jointly with his brother John.

Nathaniel was named as a beneficiary in his brother Samuel's will made in Braunston, Lincolnshire, on 16 May 1680.[7] He was left £10.

Nathaniel was named as a beneficiary in his brother John's will made in Braunston, County of City of Lincoln, on 10 June 1680.[8] He was left all his brother's lands and tenements in St Peter and St John in Thanet and elsewhere for life, the properties then to go to Nathaniel's son John.

Nathaniel made his will in Canterbury on 12 January 1681/82, naming as beneficiaries his wife Ann, and his sons John, Nathaniel, George, and Samuel.[9] Nathaniel was possessed of lands at Sackett's Hill in St Peter in Thanet and at St John in Thanet. He left these lands to his son John at age 21, or earlier in the event of Nathaniel's widow Ann remarrying. He also had land at Margate (as distinct from the St John in Thanet land) and this was to go jointly to his sons Nathaniel, George, and Samuel, subject to an annuity of £15 to his widow Ann.

Em...? Sackett was possibly a daughter born in say 1637 to Rev Stephen Sackett and Alice Frisby. She married in Canterbury, Kent, on 1 November 1654, Thomas Fleet.[1]

The register at St Cosmos and St Damian, Blean, records a marriage by Mr Lee at Canterbury of Thomas Fleet and Ea... or Em... Sackett. It is supposed that Em... may have been a daughter of Rev Steven as the marriage of his daughter Sarah and George Rook was also conducted by Mr Lee at Canterbury and recorded in the Blean register. If a daughter of Steven, Em...'s birth would have been between those of Damaris in 1635 and Stephen in 1638.

Line 3 Simon[I], Thomas[H], Thomas[G]

Father 117 Simon Sackett the colonist b. 1595, d. between 5 and 10 Oct 1635

Mother Isabel Pearce b. say 1610, d. after 1682

Simon Sackett, son of Simon Sackett the colonist and Isabel Pearce, was born, presumably in Thanet, Kent, about 1630.[1, 2] He died in Springfield, Massachusetts, on 9 July 1659.[1, 3] He married in Springfield about 1652, Sarah Bloomfield, daughter of William Bloomfield and Sarah ___.[1, 4] Sarah, Simon's wife, was born in England about 1633.[1] After Simon's death, she married second by 1663, Lambert Woodward.[5]

Simon Sackett was, according to Weygant, taken to New England by his parents when he was a babe in arms. It is to be assumed that he was born in his father's native Thanet, in Kent, England, although a record of his birth or baptism has not been found. The failure to find such a record may indicate that his parents had disaffiliated from the mainstream Church of England and that this was a factor in the family's decision to emigrate to the New World. However, no corroborative evidence has been found for Simon the colonist's religious beliefs and such a theory can only be guesswork.

Simon junior was only five years old when his father, the colonist, died in 1635. The following year, the six-year-old made the epic overland trek from Newtown, Massachusetts, to Hartford, Connecticut, with his mother and younger brother John. The boys' mother Isabel married William Bloomfield in Hartford, and their stepfather's daughter Sarah, who thus became a companion during their childhood, was eventually (in 1652) to become Simon's wife.

The only "official" record of Simon in Hartford was that of a hearing of the Particular Court on 7 September 1652 when he was fined forty shillings (two pounds) for "keeping company" and "drinking excessively and unseasonably".[6] He pledged his heifer as security for the fine. Simon would have left Hartford for Springfield (where he and Sarah were married) very soon after this incident, raising the question of whether this may have been a farewell party or, worse, the cause of his moving.

Simon acquired lands in Springfield, by grant and by purchase, in 1653. His brother John also moved to Springfield and became a landowner there in 1653. The brothers swore the Oath of Fidelity at Springfield in 1656.[7]

Simon died at the age of only 29 in 1659, leaving a son Joseph, then aged three years. It is believed that an older son, Samuel, died in infancy.

Administration of Simon's estate was granted on 14 July 1659 by the General Court in Springfield to his widow Sarah & her father William Bloomfield.[8] An inventory of his estate was taken on 15 July.[3]

Line 3 Simon[I], Thomas[H], Thomas[G]

Father 117 Simon Sackett the colonist b. 1595, d. between 5 and 10 Oct 1635

Mother Isabel Pearce b. say 1610, d. after 1682

John Sackett, son of Simon Sackett the colonist and Isabel Pearce, was born in Newtown (later Cambridge), Massachusetts, in 1632[1] and died at the then great age of 87 in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 8 April 1719.[2, 3] He married first in Northampton, Hampshire County, Massachusetts, on 23 November 1659, Abigail Hannum, daughter of William Hannum and Honor Capen.[3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8] Abigail was born in 1640[6, 9] and baptized at Windsor, Connecticut, on 22 November 1640.[6, 10] She died in Westfield on 9 October 1690.[3, 6, 11, 12, 13, 14] He married second in Westfield on 15 January 1690/91, Sarah (Stiles) Stewart, daughter of John Stiles and Rachel (___) Stiles.[3, 11, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20]

John made his will in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 10 May 1718, naming as beneficiaries his wife Sarah, his son John, his daughters Hannah, Mary, and Abigail, his grandson William Sacket, and the unnamed children of his sons William and Samuel. Unusually, he appointed as executor his grandson William, who was still a minor (he was 17 at the date of the will). The witnesses to the will, who included the testator's grandson Joseph Sackett, referred the matter to the Probate Court which appointed John Sackett, the deceased's eldest son, as administrator of the will until William reached 21. The will was proved in the Probate Court at Springfield on 20 May 1719.

John's date and place of birth

Weygant's statement that John was "so far as known, the first white child born in Newtown" has not been proved, although the date of birth of 1632 is in accord with Riker (Annals of Newtown)[21]—which Weygant is known to have used as a source—who recorded that John died at the age of 87 in 1719. Anderson in The Great Migration[22] gives John's date of birth as "say 1630". Since Anderson assumes the date of migration to have been 1632, he must have assumed that John was born in England. No birth or baptism record has been found in English records, although the absence of such a record could also be explained if his father had been a Church dissident.

Whatever the precise date of John's birth, he would have been a young boy when his father died in 1635 and he would have been brought up by his mother Isabel and her second husband William Bloomfield.

Annals of Newtown

Riker's[21] reference to John is brief: "His [Simon the colonist's] sons Simon and John removed in 1653 to Springfield, on the Connecticut River, where they took the oath of fidelity, Mar. 23, 1656. John afterwards removed to Northampton, and thence to Westfield, where he d. in 1719, a. 87. His posterity have been numerous in Westfield and its vicinity, and are also found in western New-York."

History of Springfield

John Sacket appears in the Springfield records when he was granted land at Woronoco in 1658[23].

He was also listed on 23 December 1659 in the seating plan in the meeting house. John was placed, with others, in the ninth of ten allocated seats, indicating he was at this date fairly low in the Town's pecking order.[24]

Histories of Westfield

Josiah Holland, in his History of Western Massachusetts (1855)[25], records an Indian raid on Westfield in October or November 1675 during King Phiilip's War:

> This occurred just after the murders at Northampton, and, at the same time, the Indians burnt in Westfield the house of a Mr. Cornish, and John Sackett’s house and barn, with their contents.

John Lockwood, in his Westfield and Its Historic Influences (1922)[26], includes numerous references to John Sacket:

11 Feb 1667. A town meeting orders that a gate be erected by Sacket's house.

12 Mar 1667. John Sackett's "five acres over the brooke."

23 Mar 1669/70. The three men are sacked for neglecting their duties and are replaced.

Sackett's Brook was originally called "Tomhaumucke.

Not dated. Original allotment of land.

In a short biography of John, Lockwood states that John was born in 1632, three years after Simon and Isabel came from England. This implies a migration in 1629.

Not dated. John is included in a list of settlers who have taken an oath of allegiance to the King.

Autumn 1675. John's house and barn are burnt by the Indians.

15 Jan 1675/76. John Sacket, as Constable, writes with details of the expense of maintaining a garrison of soldiers.

26 Mar 1676. John Sacket is a co-signatory to a document setting out land improvements to be carried out by townsmen.

17 Aug 1684. John Sacket is a juror in a hearing into the death of Eleezer Weller. The jury finds that death was caused by suicide by hanging.
Autumn 1685. John Sackett is sued for infringing the rights of a neighbour by setting a mill higher up the brook.

John's daughter Elizabeth & Indian Chief Sackett

It has been conjectured that John's daughter Elizabeth, recorded as having died in Westfield in 1682, was instead captured by the Indians in a raid on Westfield, brought up by them, marrying into the tribe and having a son later known as Chief Sackett. A detailed account appears on Elizabeth's record

"SEATING THE PEOPLE IN THE MEETING-HOUSE.

The selectmen and the deacons, or a committee appointed by the selectmen, determined the order in which the seats in the meeting-houses in New England, in the early settlement, should be occupied. Ability and general regard, as well as wealth, had much to do with the order of selection. The women, as a rule, do not appear to have been assigned to particular seats, but occupied, in another part of the house, such as suited their own preferences. The lists still preserved, which give the order of seating the men and boys in Springfield, do not indicate any great regard for those having the largest possessions. At Northampton, "age and estate" determined the order, and to some extent that might have prevailed here. The first list, still of record, bears the date of December 23, 1659, and reads:- 9th Seate. - Abell Wright, Hugh Dudley, John Bagg, John Sacket, David Ashley, Samuel Bliss, John Riley."

John Sackett, of St Lawrence in Thanet, Kent, son of John Sackett and Mary ___, was baptized at St Peter in Thanet on 16 March 1627/28.[1] He died aged 50 and was buried at St Lawrence in Thanet on 28 July 1678.[2] He married at St Lawrence in Thanet on 5 December 1664, Judith Aeirs.[3] After John's death, Judith married at St Lawrence in Thanet on 17 July 1679, John Maxted.[4]

John made his will in St Lawrence in Thanet on 1 April 1678, naming as beneficiaries his wife Judith, his brothers Thomas, his sisters Anne, Martha, Katherine, and Joane.[5] He left each of his sisters and brother the small sum of one shilling, with the residue of his goods and chattels going to his wife. There is no mention of a tenement or lands and it would appear that John was not a man of any significant wealth.

John's will links as siblings six of the eight children baptized at St Peter's between November 1622 and June 1642 attributed to parents John Sackett of Buddles and Mary/Margary. The two missing from the list in the will are Sarah and Elizabeth. Elizabeth is known to have died in childhood and it may be assumed that Sarah had also died before 1678. The match between the will and the baptisms is strong evidence that the John Sackett of the will was the same man as the John Sackett baptized in March 1627/28. The will was proved on 3 August 1678.[5]

Generation J Line 4
Head of line John Sackett of New Haven

John Sackett is recorded in New Haven from 1641. It is assumed that he emigrated there from Thanet, Kent. Some 2,800 descendants in his line have been identified, about 900 of them born with the Sackett name.

201	John Sackett of New Haven, b. Thanet, Kent, early to mid-1620s, d. New Haven, 1684	m. New Haven, 1652, Agnes Tinkham

(early to mid-1620s - 1684)

John Sackett, colonist, of New Haven, Connecticut, was born, almost certainly in Thanet, Kent, in the early to mid-1620s.[1] His parents have not yet been positively identified. He died in New Haven on 3 September 1684.[1, 2, 3, 4, 5] He married in New Haven on 20 May 1652, Agnes Tinkham[1, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8], who died there in 1707.[4, 5, 9]

John Sackett's origins

It has not yet proved possible to establish with any confidence the origins of John Sackett of New Haven, although a number of possibilities may be considered.

Weygant, in The Sacketts of America, records that he was the son of another John who would have been a brother of Simon Sackett the colonist, and that he was born in England in 1628 and brought to New England by his father in 1631.[1, 10]

The family tradition

Weygant relied on the family tradition, handed down the generations, that "Simon and John Sackett, brothers, came from England to Massachusetts, in company with Roger Williams. John Sackett followed Mr. Williams to Rhode Island and finally settled at New Haven, becoming the founder of the New Haven branch of the family. Simon Sackett remained in Massachusetts, was one of the founders of the City of Cambridge, and is the progenitor of the Massachusetts and Long Island, N.Y., branches."

According to Weygant, the brothers journeyed from Bristol, England, on board Captain William Pearce's ship, Lyon, on the midwinter voyage which departed Bristol on 1 December 1630 and arrived at Nantasket Roads off

Boston on 5 February 1631 after an 'unusually severe' crossing. It has not proved possible to confirm details of their passage, no reference to the Sackett name having been found in ships' passenger lists of the period.

Simon's brother John the fisherman

English records show that Simon did have a brother John, baptized in Thanet in 1586. This John is believed to have been the same man as John Sackett (the fisherman) who made his will in Thanet in 1628 and died there in 1634.

If the family tradition about the emigrant brothers is correct, then it would have been this John Sackett who accompanied his brother Simon to the New World. If he did, then it must follow that he returned from New Haven to Kent sometime before or during 1634. However, the possibility that John the fisherman was the brother who allegedly accompanied Simon to the New World is not supported by the detail of the will which makes no mention of any children, the beneficiaries being John's wife Elizabeth, and his brothers and sisters.

Identification of John the fisherman with John the brother of Simon then needs further examination. This identification depends upon John the fisherman's will, in particular to the reference in the will to a brother Simon. This is the only reference in English records of the period to a Simon Sackett (other than the records of Simon’s baptism in 1595, his two marriages in 1618 and 1627, and the baptisms of his three daughters, all of which events are undoubtedly correctly attributed to Simon Sackett the colonist). The context in which Simon's name is mentioned may also be significant. John made small bequests, of six pence each, to his brothers and sisters, who were not named. The only named sibling was Simon, and John made the request of his wife and heiress, Elizabeth, that she not demand repayment of a debt owed to John by Simon. It would perhaps be stretching the evidence too far to assume that the loan was connected to Simon's migration - still more than two years away - but it could be taken to indicate a special relationship between these brothers. Given the rarity of the name Simon, it would seem a remote possibility that there would have been two pairs of brothers named Simon and John. It is a reasonable conclusion that the sons John and Simon born to Thomas Sackett the younger were the same as the brothers John and Simon of John the fisherman's will of 1628.

Simon's cousin John son of George

If we set aside the assertion that Simon's co-colonist was his brother, another possible candidate would be his first cousin, John Sackett, born in 1594 to George Sackett and Katherine Tompson. Although no evidence has been found to confirm that this John Sackett lived beyond infancy, he and Simon would have been close contemporaries, being only a year or so apart in age.

Other candidates

As well as attempting to identify adult English John Sacketts who may have accompanied Simon, we need also to seek out a child John Sackett in English records who may have been John of New Haven. The only John Sacketts known to have been born in the 1620s have all been identified with events in Kent later than 1631 and have been ruled out as possible candidates to have been John of New Haven. It is probably the case, given the fact of his migration to the New World, that his birth/baptism was not registered because of his parents' religious nonconformism.

Anderson, in The Great Migration Begins, concluded that an elder John Sackett who would be Simon's brother was an "imaginary construct", and that there was "no evidence of any relationship between the immigrant Simon and John of New Haven." Although he noted records of "a servant by the name of John "Seckett" in New Haven by 1641, who is probably the same as the man who married in 1652", he made no further attempt to explain the origin of John Sackett of New Haven.[11]

Weygant's 1897 and 1907 accounts

It is significant, and surprising in light of how little other information he had available to him, that Weygant omitted three important John Sackett events from his 1907 Sacketts of America, despite having included them in his 1897 Family Record. These were the Stolyon case of 1641, the swearing of the oath of fidelity in 1644, and the debt recovery action against Stephen Medcalfe in 1647.

Weygant had attributed all of these events to the supposed elder John Sackett. Had Weygant remained convinced of the existence of an elder John, then surely he would not have omitted such important evidence from his definitive 1907 work. Given Weygant's painstaking diligence in researching and compiling this work, it must be concluded that the omission was intentional, pointing to the possibility that he had come to doubt this aspect of the family tradition.

Further research — DNA testing

Unless some hitherto undiscovered evidence, in either England or America, should come to light, the origin of John Sackett of New Haven looks destined to remain a tantalizing mystery. The documentary evidence found so far has not supported the family tradition that John of New Haven was taken to the New World by his father, a proposed elder John who would have been the brother of Simon Sackett the colonist. The evidence does not actually disprove the tradition, but nor does it offer an alternative explanation of the origin of John of New Haven.

DNA testing of a number of present-day male Sacketts has been undertaken by members of the Sackett Family Association. Although it was expected that these tests would show a genetic link between Simon's line and that of John of New Haven, results suggest that these two men were not closely related, leaving open a wider range of options for the origin of John of New Haven.

New Haven

John Sackett arrived in New Haven at a very early stage of its settlement, the first mention of him in the records, as a servant to a Mrs Stolyon, being in August 1641, just three years after its foundation. The colony was established in the spring of 1638 when the companies of Davenport and Prudden sailed from Boston to Quillipiac, where they began the settlement that would become New Haven. The New Haven church was established, with seven founding members, Davenport included, on 21 or 22 April 1639, and on the latter day Peter Prudden and his following organized the Milford church.[13]

A list of planters and their estates was drawn up in October/November 1640, although it was not written into the records until 1643.[1415] John Sackett's name does not appear in this list. This is not surprising as, even if he were in New Haven by this date, he would not have qualified for inclusion in the list, being then a servant, not a freeman.

The Stolyon case

The first mention of John Sackett found in the New Haven records concerns

a court action brought against him by Mrs Stolyon:

"Att a Court held att Newhaven the 4th of the 6t M: 1641 ... John Seckett servant to Mrs. Stolyon for goeing about to slaunder and reproach his said Mrs, was admonished to tender to his Mrs such satisfaction as she might accept, wch was referred to Mr. Goodyeare to determine."[16]

This John "Seckett" is now taken to be John Sackett of New Haven, although Weygant concluded that it referred to the proposed elder John.[17] He gave this account of the case in The Family Record:

"His [the proposed elder John's] name is first mentioned in New Haven records under date of 1640, at which time he was in the employ and would seem to have been superintending the estate of a widow named Stolya. According to a tradition which is in the main verified by official records, he was a man of pleasing address, and the widow Stolya from playing mother to the son fell desperately in love with the father, who does not appear to have reciprocated her affection and spoke slightingly of her love making. Whereupon she made complaint to the General Court that he had slandered her. When the case was heard the finding of that August body, "then the supreme power in the province," was that "John Seckett (Sackett) be admonished to tender to the widow Stolya such satisfaction as she might accept."

Although there is a discrepancy in the dates given for the court hearing (Weygant has 1640, not 1641), there can be no doubt that Weygant refers to the same case. His rather colourful description would appear to owe more to the "tradition" to which he refers than to the court record itself. It is noted that, while Weygant published an account of the Stolyon case in The Family Record (1897), he made no reference to it in his 1907 Sacketts of America.[18, 19]

Oath of fidelity

On 1 July 1644, "Joh: Seckett" swore the oath of fidelity at a General Court of New Haven.[20] The question is: which John Sackett was it, father or son, who swore the oath. If it was the proposed elder John, then this would confirm his existence in New Haven. He would not, however, have been the brother of Simon, as John the brother is shown to have died in Thanet, Kent, in 1634. If it was the younger John, then this would invalidate Weygant's statement that he was born in 1628. It may be assumed that a man taking the oath of fidelity would have been at least 21 years of age. This would give John's date of birth as no later than 1623.

As with the Stolyon case, Weygant recorded in his 1897 Family Record that John Sackett had signed the oath of fidelity (although he did not record the date of the oath), assigning the event to the proposed elder John Sackett, but then made no mention of the event in his 1907 Sacketts of America.

John Sackett's fine

On 6 October 1646, John Sackett was fined six pence for attending a training without a rest for his musket.[21] Weygant attributed this event to the "younger" John Sackett, i.e. John Sackett of New Haven, in both his 1897 Family Record and his 1907 Sacketts of America.

John Sackett's debt

John appeared in court again later that year, on 2 March 1646 [1647 new style], when he "demanded a debt dew from Stephen Medcalfe of 18s." At a further court hearing two months later, on 4 May 1647, two townsmen who had been appointed to assess work carried out by John on Medcalfe's house confirmed that John had erected fencing, and John "gave in a noate to the court" showing that he had spent 17s 8d on materials.[22]

Weygant recorded this court action in the 1897 Family Record, assigning the event to the proposed elder John Sackett, but he made no reference to it in his 1907 Sacketts of America.

In the Family Record, he records that [the proposed elder] John Sackett "in 1646 was made the custodian of the Public Building in which the General Court was held". He quoted from the court record, without mentioning Medcalfe, "John Sackett presented to court bill for putting up some poles and spending some nayles; the said John gave in a note to the court, of charges which had been spent about the house, to the value of about 17s 8d." It would seem that Weygant took the reference to "the house" to mean the Court House and concluded that John had been made the custodian of the building. It is not known whether Weygant had access to Hoadly's work, which had been published in 1857. Hoadly's account makes it clear that the work carried out was to Medcalfe's house, not to the court house.

John Sackett's occupation

Atwater does not report the Medcalfe case but records John Sackett's occupation as "carpenter". He may have deduced this from this court action. It could equally be concluded from the report of a later case [John Sackett v. Samuel Andrews, 1665/66] that John was also a "horse doctor"! The truth is likely to be that John, along with most of his compatriots, was both a farmer and, by necessity, a "jack of all trades." Atwater also gives 1641 as the date of the first mention of John in the New Haven Colony records and records his death date as 1684. This would imply that Atwater believed that the John Sackett of the 1641 Stolyon case was the same as the John Sackett who died in 1684, and not a possible elder John.[23]

New Haven Town Records

John Sackett's name appears a number of times in the New Haven Town Records. None of these events (following) is recorded by Weygant. There is no reason to doubt that the events relate to John Sackett of New Haven, and none hints at the existence of an elder John Sackett.

John Sackett's seat in meeting house

John Sackett was listed in the seating plans for the meeting house in February 1655/56 and in February 1661/62. His name did not, however, appear in an earlier list, of 10 March 1646 [presumably 1647 new style].[24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30] This omission is puzzling as he was clearly in New Haven at that date and had sworn the oath of fidelity in 1644.

John Sackett's bull

John Sackett appeared in court again in May 1656 when he, with three others, "were complained of because their cattell trouble the cowheards." They were advised "to take care that it be no more so." In particular, John was "warned of a bull which is wont to runn at some people." He was instructed to ensure that the bull was properly secured "that hurt may not come thereby, for if it doe, after this warning, the blame will lye wholy upon him."[31]

John Sackett's wolf

At the same court, John appealed against a decision of the town treasurer who had refused to pay him a bounty of £1 for the capture of a wolf at the last harvest. John explained to the court that the wolf was "catched in a pitt" but was so "devoured by flyes" that "the head was not fitt to bring to the Treasurer, and he refuseth to pay." The Town agreed that if he could provide sufficient proof "he shall be alowed halfe, which is ten shillings."[31]

John Sackett's brook

Mention is made in a general court hearing at New Haven on 28 February 1658 [old style] of John Sackett's brook. To provide an adequate water supply for the town, the court decided "to make a dam over ye creeke, . . . & there to sett up a brest mill, which with the help of the brooke at John Sackett's . . . would be sufficient to serve ye towne."[32]

John Sackett, horse doctor

In a court hearing on 5 March 1665/66, John actioned Samuel Andrews for the cost of treating a sick horse. Andrews "denied that [John] had cured the horse" but the court found in John's favour and awarded him five shillings and court costs.[33]

Highway through John Sackett's land

On 12 February 1671/72, it was reported at a town meeting that agreement had been reached for the construction of a "hie way through the playne field" belonging to John Sackett and, in consideration, John was given about three acres of swampy land.[34]

John Sackett and the burning of woods

At a town meeting on 11 March 1673/74 it was decided that areas of woodland were to be burnt. The sections to be burnt were allocated to various townsmen and John Sackett and Edmund Dorman were to burn the area from "the west rockes to the Mill river."[35]

John Sackett's division of land

A town meeting of 20 December 1680 determined the division of land on the western side, John Sackett being allocated an area of 48½ acres.[36] The next entries in the records of the town meetings refer to John's son, John Sackett, Jr. who, in November and December 1682, was granted land to set up a business as a glazier.

Inventory of estate

Weygant's conclusion that John of New Haven was the son of another John Sackett depended largely on the evidence of an inventory of the estate of John of New Haven, who died in 1684. A mis-reading of this document, by which the word "senior" was read as "junior", led Weygant to the wrong conclusion that an elder John had outlived his son.

It would seem that Weygant did not, himself, have sight of this document but, relying upon a report of it from the Hon. L B Sackett (#4361), he stated in the 1897 Family Record: "That he [the proposed elder John] outlived his son John, Jr. is made apparent by following extract from a search of Probate office of New Haven, viz: 'John Sackett, inventory of the estate of John Sackett, Junior, late of New Haven, deceased, taken this 6th day of Oct. 1684'." Weygant further stated in The Sacketts of America that: "On October 6 [1684], he [the proposed elder John] filed an inventory of the estate of "John Sackett, Jr."

The error in the interpretation of this evidence results from a mis-reading of the word 'Senior' as 'Junior' following the second mention of the name 'John Sackett'. This error resulted in Weygant taking the first mentioned 'John Sackett' to refer to an assumed elder John Sackett. A corrected transcription of the text of the heading would be: 'Jno Sackett Snr/ An inventory of the estate of Jno Sackett Senior late of N=Haven deceased taken this Octobr 6th 1684.' [Inventory] The first mentioned 'John Sackett' was indeed John Sackett Snr. but the second mentioned 'John Sackett' was also John Sackett Senior. The two mentions are of the same man, the first being merely an index entry, rather than an indication of who filed the inventory, as Weygant had concluded. Confirmatory evidence that the man who was the subject of the inventory was John Sackett Senior, not Junior, is found in the New Haven Vital Records, which record that "John Sackett senior dyed 3 september 1684." Further, a record of the inventory in the New England Historical and Genealogical Register also refers to the subject of the inventory as John Sackett Sr.[37]

For some time prior to 1684 John Sackett of New Haven would have been referred to as John Sackett Sr, his own son John, born 1653, being referred to as John Sackett Jr. Indeed, in the records of town meetings held in November and December 1682, there is reference to John Sackett Jr. There can thus be no doubt that the John Sackett who died in 1684 was John Sackett Senior, and that he was not survived by an elder John.

Proprietors in 1685

The last mention of John Sackett of New Haven in the New Haven records appears in a report given to a town meeting on 22 December 1712 when a list of proprietors of the town in the year 1685 was submitted. The list, which had previously been exhibited in the General Assembly on 20 October 1704, included: "John Sackets heirs" [i.e. the heirs of John of New Haven] and "John Sacket, Junior" [i.e. John Sackett born 1653].[38, 39]

The records show a servant by the name of John "Seckett" in New Haven by 1641 [NHCR 1:56], who is probably the same as the man who married in 1652. The proposed elder John seems to be an imaginary construct, and there is no evidence of any relationship between the immigrant Simon and John of New Haven."

18. Research of the New Haven records has failed to find any reference to John Sackett in 1640. The discrepancy in the dates would seem not to be the result of the often confusing Julian calendar then in use, as the "6t M" would mean August, a month not subject to double-dating.

19. Note on Mrs Stolion
    A New Haven court case on 6 April 1647 concerned the estate of Mrs Stallion, indicating her recent death. Coldham's Book of Emigrants has the following: "1647, May. Probate of will of Jane Stolion of London, widow, who died overseas having goods in New England,"[1] and "1680, November. Administration of will of Thomas Stolyon of Warbleton, Sussex, who had goods in New England."[2] It is known from the 1645 Turner v. Stolion case that Mrs Stolion had a son, although his name was not stated. Given the unusual surname and coincidence of addresses, it is a reasonable guess that Thomas was Mrs Stolion's son. A possible husband of Mrs Stolion is Pelham Stolion who was baptised at Warbleton, Sussex, in 1602.[3]

204 Robert Sackett

(1620 - prob. 1664)

Father	128	Thomas Sackett b. late 1500s, d. 1641/42
Mother		___ ___

Robert Sackett, son of Thomas Sackett and ___ ___, was baptized at Herne, Kent, on 28 May 1620.[1] He was probably the Robt Seckitt, householder, who was buried at Ickham, Kent, on 13 February 1663/64.[2] A Doraty Sackit was buried at Ickham on 20 April 1674. As these were the only two Sackett burials recorded at Ickham in this period, it would seem possible that she was Robert's wife.[3]

216 Mary Sackett

(c 1606 -)

Mary Sackett was born probably in Kingston, Kent, about 1606.[1] Her parents have not been identified. She and Henry Stonebridge obtained a marriage licence at Canterbury on 7 February 1628/29. She was "of Kingstone", aged about 22, the daughter of [Blank] Web the wife of William Web of Burmarsh who consented. Henry Stonebridge was a bachelor, aged about 24, and a husbandman of Burmarsh. The marriage was to take place at Kingston.[2]

217 Richard Sackett

(early 1600s - after 1640)

Richard Sackett, of Bishopsgate, London, was born in the early 1600s. His parents have not been identified. He married before 1640, Margaret ___. The only record found of Richard and Margaret is that of the baptism at St Botolph, Bishopsgate, London, on 3 May 1640 of their daughter Elizabeth.

218 George Sackett

(early 1600s - after 1652)

George Sackett, of Thanet, Kent, was born in the early 1600s. He married first at St Lawrence in Thanet, Kent, on 7 November 1631, Susanna Curling.[1] She was buried at St Peter in Thanet on 4 July 1646.[2] He married second, Dorothy ___, probably in Thanet, about 1647, based on the birth of their first child, Dorothy.

It would appear that there were two George Sacketts in Thanet at this time. It may be assumed that they were not the same man as the marriage of a George Sackett to Jane, in 1639, took place during the lifetime of this George's wife Susanna.

219 George Sackett

(early 1600s - after 1643)

George Sackett, of St Peter in Thanet, Kent, was born in the early 1600s. His parents have not been identified. He married about 1638, Jane ___.[1]

It would appear that there were two George Sacketts in Thanet at this time. It may be assumed that they were not the same man as the marriage of this George Sackett to Jane, in about 1638, took place during the lifetime of the other George Sackett's wife Susanna, who died in 1646.

John Sackett was born in the early 1600s. He died shortly before the birth of his son Henry and was buried at St John in Thanet, Kent, on 2 May 1643.[1] He married before 1643, Elizabeth ___. Elizabeth was buried at St John in Thanet on 27 October 1653.[2]

It has not yet proved possible to identify this John Sackett beyond the data found in his burial record and in the baptism record of his son Henry. Of the possible candidates for identification with this John, John Sackett born in 1586, the son Thomas Sackett and Martha Strowde, and John Sackett born in 1594, the son of George Sackett and Katherine Tompson, are dismissed as being too old. Although there is a better age match, he was also not the same man as John Sackett baptized in February 1607/08, the son of William Sackett and Joan Parker, as that John Sackett is shown to have been still living at the date of his brother Robert's will in 1658.

(early 1600s - after 1672)

Robert Sackett, of Faversham, Kent, was born in the early 1600s. His parents have not been identified. He married about 1655, Elizabeth ___. The only records found for Robert and his wife Elizabeth are the baptisms and burials of their children in Faversham. A child, William Sacket, buried at Faversham on 29 March 1666, and a young man, John Sacket, buried there on 26 November 1668, may have been children of this family.[1, 2]

222 John Sackett

(early to mid-1600s - 1676/77)

John Sackett, of St Lawrence in Thanet, Kent, was born in the early to mid-1600s. He was buried at St Peter in Thanet on 13 March 1676/77, his burial being recorded in both St Lawrence and St Peter, in the latter of which he was described as "of St Lawrence."[1, 2, 3]

3. There is some doubt as to the place of burial as this is recorded in the parish registers of both St Peter's and St Lawrence.

223 Edward Sackett

(mid-1600s - 1666)

Edward Sackett was born in the mid-1600s. His parents have not been identified. He was buried at Ash next Sandwich, Kent, on 17 December 1666, described in the record as a young man. His younger brother Robert Sackett was buried there three days later.[1]

Mother Elizabeth Turner b. say 1610, d. before 1663

Mary Sackett, daughter of John Sackett and Elizabeth Turner, was baptized at Northbourne, Kent, on 15 March 1636.[1] She died aged 36 and was buried at St Peter in Thanet, Kent, on 31 December 1672.[2] She married at Great Mongeham, Kent, on 30 April 1663, Joseph Hurst, having obtained a licence from Canterbury, Kent, on 27 April. He was a bachelor, aged 25, and a mariner, she a spinster, aged 28. They were both of St Peter in Thanet. Her parents had died. The bondsman was Michael Allen of Canterbury, an innholder.[3, 4] Joseph and Mary were married by Rev John Sackett BD Oxf, MA Camb, the vicar of Great Mongeham. Rev John was a first cousin of Mary's grandfather William Sackett.

Mary was named as a beneficiary in her uncle Robert's will made in Herne, Kent, on 14 November 1658.[5] She was to receive a sum of £5 at age 21.[6]

John Sackett, son of John Sackett and Elizabeth Turner, was born, presumably in Kent, say 1640.

John was named as a beneficiary in his uncle Robert Sackett's will made in Herne, Kent, on 14 November 1658.[1] He was to receive a sum of £3 "to be paid by my brother Jeffery Sackett which he owes me". The mention in this will is the only reference found to this John Sackett.

Thomas Sackett, maltster and grazier of Minster in Thanet, Kent, son of Thomas Sackett and Mary Coleman, was born about 1641.[1] He died aged about 48[2] and was buried at Minster in Thanet on 11 November 1689.[3] He married first at Canterbury St Margaret, Kent, in 1668, Sarah (___) Fuller, widow of John Fuller.[4] Sarah died just four years later and was buried at Minster in Thanet on 7 September 1672.[5] He married second at Minster in Thanet on 21 December 1673, Jane Spratt.[6] Jane was buried at Minster in Thanet, Kent, on 11 November 1689, the same day as her husband Thomas.[3]

Thomas, then a maltster, acted as bondsman on his sister Elizabeth's marriage licence issued on 12 November 1672.

Thomas made his will in Minster in Thanet on 16 October 1689, naming as beneficiaries his wife Jane, his brother Paul, his sister Catherine, his nephew Peter Allen, his nieces Ann Allen and Mary Allen, and his brother-in-law John Walker.[7, 8] He left his house to his wife during her widowhood. In the event, she died at about the same time as her husband. The house and household goods would then have gone to his unmarried brother Paul, who he also appointed the executor of the will. Thomas left £10 to his sister Catherine, and £5 each to the three surviving children of his deceased sister Elizabeth. From an inventory of his estate, it is apparent that Thomas was a reasonably prosperous middle-rank farmer. He also kept a shop. The value of his estate was £128, which included 16 cattle and 20 sheep. He owned a feather bed, valued at £5.

As far as is known, there were no children of Thomas's marriages. At the time of his death, however, he was maintaining a child. An unusual stipulation in his will, that his wife give the executor a bond for the large sum of £100 to "secure him from any charge which may arise by reason of a certain child which I now keep supposed to be Robert Gisby's", would suggest that he suspected a claim by the child upon his estate.

Father	156	John Sackett b. 1622, d. 1681

Anne Sackett was born, presumably in Thanet, Kent, about 1653. She may have been a daughter of John Sackett and Mary ___. She married at St Lawrence in Thanet, Kent, on 12 May 1678, Martin Long.[1] He predeceased her and was buried at St Lawrence the Martyr on 13 May 1707.[2]

Martin and Anne were named as beneficiaries in the will of Mary Sackett, widow of John, made at St Lawrence in Thanet on 18 April 1683. They were to inherit the northern end of Mary's house in Ramsgate, where they were then living, paying £20 to Mary's daughters, Mary, Hester, and Elizabeth.[3]

Although Anne was left a part of John and Mary Sackett's house, the context of Mary's will suggests that Anne was not her daughter. A birth or baptism record for Anne has not been found. One possibility might be that she was an illegitimate daughter of one of John's sisters.

Anne's husband Martin made a will at St Lawrence in Thanet on 21 April 1707. He left all his messuages, tenements, etc. to Anne during her widowhood, and then to their sons, Martin, John, and Richard. The will was proved on 26 July 1707.[4]

Rev John Sackett MA, son of Nathaniel Sackett and Ann Terry, was baptized at Canterbury, Kent, on 6 September 1670.[1] He died aged about 82 in Hawkinge, Kent, and was buried there on 28 January 1753.[2] He married first at Patrixbourne, Kent, on 31 October 1702, Margaret (___) Tempest.[3, 4] Margaret was buried at Folkestone, Kent, on 25 November 1727.[5] He married second at Canterbury St Alphege on 22 April 1729, Margaret Lunn, daughter of Rev William Lunn and Elizabeth ___.[6, 7] Margaret was baptized at Denton, Kent, on 17 January 1677/78.[8] She died aged 91 and was buried at Denton on 23 March 1769.[9]

John was named as a beneficiary in his uncle John Sackett's will made in Braunston, County of City of Lincoln, on 10 June 1680. He was granted the reversion of his uncle's lands and tenements in St Peter's and St John's after the death of his father Nathaniel.[10]

John was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made in Canterbury on 12 January 1681/82. He was to inherit his father's land at Sackett's Hill at age 21 and his father stipulated that he should be sent to university as soon as is fitting.[11]

John was admitted to Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, in 1688. He was awarded a BA degree in 1690/91 and an MA in 1694. He was ordained deacon in Lincoln on 12 February 1692/93, and priest in London on 8 March 1695/96. He was vicar of Folkestone, Kent, from 1699 to 1753, rector of Hawking, Kent, from 1713 to 1753, and vicar of West Hythe, Kent, from 1732 to 1753. He was master of Eastbridge Hospital, Canterbury, in succession to his grandfather Rev John Sackett, from 1746 to 1753.[12]

In 1716, Rev John Sackett wrote a detailed letter to the Royal Society "Giving an Account of a very uncommon sinking of the Earth, near Folkestone in Kent". He described a "remarkable" phenomenon, "known to almost all hereabouts, concerning the pressing forward of the Cliffs, and sinking of the Hills in the Neighbourhood of our Town of Folkestone."

John made a will at Folkestone, Kent, probably in 1753. He left all his personal effects to his wife Margaret.[13]

John's widow Margaret made her will in Barham, Kent, on 28 August 1766, naming as beneficiaries her brother and sister and various non-Sackett nephews and nieces.[14]

Nathaniel Sackett, son of Nathaniel Sackett and Ann Terry, was baptized at Canterbury, Kent, on 3 April 1672.[1] He married at All Hallows London Wall, City of London, Middlesex, on 28 January 1703, Ellenor Jacob.[2] She was buried at St John the Baptist, Wallbrook, London, on 28 December 1730.[3]

Nathaniel was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made in Canterbury on 12 January 1681/82.[4] Nathaniel was ten years old when his father died. He was to receive at age 21 five broad pieces of gold and, jointly with his brothers George and Samuel, was to inherit a property at Margate, the sons paying their mother an annuity of £15.

Nathaniel was apprenticed as a stationer to John Southby of London on 6 December 1686.[5]

Nathaniel was assessed in the City of London for land tax of £6 8s at Cornhill in 1703, £4 8s at Langbourn in 1706, £6 at Cordwainer in 1706, £6 at Coleman Street in 1707, £6 at Cordwainer in 1708, £4 8s at Farringdon Without in 1709, £6 at Cheap in 1709, £4 8s at Langbourn in 1710, £4 8s at St Andrew Holborn in 1711, and £4 8s at Langbourn in 1712.[6]

Stephen Sackett, yeoman of Margate, Kent, son of Richard Sackett and Susan Tomlin, was baptized at St John in Thanet on 20 October 1663.[1] He died aged 81 and was buried there on 16 April 1745.[2, 3] He married at Canterbury St Alphege, Kent, on 26 December 1694, Anne Underdown.[4, 5] Anne was born about 1675.[6] She died aged about 66 and was buried at St John in Thanet on 20 December 1741.[7]

Stephen's will, made at Margate on 28 December 1741, was proved at the Archdeaconry Court of Canterbury on 7 June 1745. No records of children of Stephen and Anne have been found and the will appears to confirm that he had no immediate family. After a bequest of £7 to a friend, George Hall the younger, he left all his estate to widow Elizabeth Smith the elder and her daughter Elizabeth Smith.[8]

Father	178	Richard Sackett b. 1626, d. 1692
Mother		Susan Tomlin d. 1704

Peter Sackett, yeoman of St John in Thanet, Kent, son of Richard Sackett and Susan Tomlin, was baptized at St John in Thanet on 3 April 1666.[1] He died aged 74[2] and was buried there on 15 March 1740/41.[2, 3] He married at Canterbury St George, Kent, on 1 November 1694, Anna Kennett.[4, 5] Anna died aged 76 and was buried at St John in Thanet on 20 October 1747.[2, 6]

Tragedy struck the family of Peter and Anna Sackett in 1712 when four of their children died. Richard aged 15, Susannah, 10, Anne, 8, and Peter, aged six, were buried within a week of each other in August of that year. The family is recorded on a stone tomb at St John's Church in Thanet.[2]

Peter made his will in St John in Thanet on 24 April 1739, naming as beneficiaries his wife Anna, his son John, and his daughters Mary, Hannah, and Martha. He left his house and land in St John in Thanet, and lands in Swalecliffe and Whitstable, to his wife Anne for life. His daughters, Mary, Hannah, and Martha, were to receive £100 each one year after their mother's death. The residue of the estate was to go to his son John, together with the house and lands after his mother's death. John was also appointed executor. The will was proved at the Archdeaconry Court of Canterbury on 13 June 1741.[7]

Richard Sackett, yeoman of St John in Thanet and Northdown, Kent, son of Richard Sackett and Susan Tomlin, was baptized at St John in Thanet on 25 April 1668.[1] He died aged 62[2] and was buried at St John in Thanet on 14 November 1730.[3, 2] He married at St John in Thanet on 17 October 1708, Martha Tomlin.[4, 5] She died on 17 December 1747[2] and was buried at St John in Thanet on 23 December 1747.[6, 2]

Richard made his will in St John in Thanet on 28 October 1730, naming as beneficiaries his wife Martha and his children Richard and Susanna. His wife was to receive £80 and life enjoyment of the house. Susanna was to receive £300 at age 21 and a further £400 in various stocks on coming of age or marrying. Son Richard was to inherit all lands and estates "at Northdown, St John's, and elsewhere". Also named (and referred to as cousins) were his nephew John Sackett, who was to be overseer of the will jointly with Richard's brother-in-law Cornelius Tomlin, and who was left 40 shillings, and nieces Hannah Sackett and Martha Sackett, who were each remembered with bequests of 20 shillings. Cousin John, son of William Evas of Ramsgate, also left 20 shillings, would have been another nephew, the son of Richard's late sister Susan (Evers), and cousins Hannah Tomline and James Taddy would have been niece and nephew of Richard's wife Martha. Executors of the will were Richard's widow Martha and son

Richard. The will was proved in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury in April 1731.[7]

Captain Joseph Sackett, son of Simon Sackett and Sarah Bloomfield, was born in Springfield, Massachusetts, on 23 February 1655/56.[1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6] He died aged 63 in Long Island, New York State, on 23 September 1719.[1] He married first before 1678, Elizabeth Betts, daughter of Capt Richard Betts and Joanna ___.[1, 7, 8, 9] He married second between 1700 and 1710, Anna ___.[2] He married third at Newtown, Long Island, in 1711, Mercy (Whitehead) Betts, daughter of Daniel Whitehead and Abigail Stephenson.[1, 10] Mercy was the widow of Capt Thomas Betts, a brother of Joseph's first wife Elizabeth.[1]

Joseph was a member of the Presbyterian Church in Newtown in 1708. The Mercy Sackett listed as a member sometime between 1708 and 1724 was presumably his wife.[11, 12]

On 23 April 1711, Captain Joseph "for the love, goodwill, and affection for my beloved son" gave to his son Simon 288 acres of land in Hopewell, bordering on the Delaware River.[13]

Joseph made his will in Newtown, Queens County, on 20 September 1719, naming as beneficiaries his wife Mercy, his sons Samuel, Joseph, Richard, John, and William, his daughters Sarah, Patience, Abigail, and Anne, and the children of his late daughter Elizabeth. The will was proved on 22 December 1719. He left specified lands in Newtown to each of his children, and land in Hopewell and Maidenhead, New Jersey, to his children jointly, his eldest son Joseph to have a double share. He left his mansion, with its adjoining garden, orchards, and lands, to his youngest son Samuel.

Abstract of will of Capt. Joseph Sackett of Newtown, Queens County.

John was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 10 May 1718.

History of Westfield

John Sacket is included in Lockwood's Westfield History in a list (with his father, also John, and brother William) of townsmen of Westfield who had taken the oath of allegiance to the King.

He is also mentioned in a business account contained in a letter from Rev Samual Mather, pastor of the church in Windsor, Conn. to Rev Edward Taylor, pastor of the church in Westfield.

There are other references in Lockwood to John Sacket but, as they do not specify "Jr", they are taken to refer to his father, John Sackett Sr.[13]

William Sacket, son of John Sackett and Abigail Hannum, was born in Northampton, Massachusetts, on 20 April 1662.[1, 2, 3] He died aged 37 when he drowned in the Connecticut River near Deerfield, Massachusetts, on 28 March 1700 when returning from a wedding.[1, 4, 5, 6] He married first on 26 December 1687, Sarah Crain.[1, 7] He married second in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 27 November 1689, Hannah Graves, daughter of Isaac Graves and Hannah Church.[1, 5, 6, 8, 9, 10]

On 5 July 1679, the 17 year-old William with his father John appeared in the Springfield court charging James Sexton with beating and wounding William "at the Pound dore when some of the hogs were in the Pound he gave him 3 blows with his fist and tooke him by the Throat and hindered the putting the rest of the hogs into the Pound." Judge Pynchon found for William and fined Sexton 20 shillings for the wounding and 20 shillings for "Rescuing the swine" together with costs of 17 shillings and six pence.[11]

William's name appeared (with those of his father John, and brother John) in an undated list of townsmen of Westfield who had taken the oath of allegiance to the King.[12]

Mother		Abigail Hannum b. 1640, d. 1690

Hannah Sacket, daughter of John Sackett and Abigail Hannum, was born in Northampton, Hampshire County, Massachusetts, on 7 March 1668/69.[1, 2, 3] She died aged 80 in Windsor, Hartford County, Connecticut, on 30 August 1749.[1, 4] She married first in April 1688, Thomas Dewey III, son of Thomas Dewey II and Constant Hawes.[1] Thomas Dewey III was born in Northampton on 26 March 1664/65[5, 6] and died aged about 25 in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, in 1690.[1, 5] She married second on 3 May 1691, Capt Benjamin Newberry II, son of Major Benjamin Newberry and Mary Allen.[1] Benjamin was born in Windsor on 20 April 1669.[7] He died aged 40 in Windsor on 3 November 1709.[7] She married third between 1709 and 1719, ___ Merriman.[1]

Hannah was named as a beneficiary in the will of her husband Benjamin Newberry, made in Windsor on 14 June 1709. She was left a sum of £100 and the use of the real estate until their children came of age.[7]

Hannah was named as a beneficiary in her father's will made in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 10 May 1718.

By the time of her death, Hannah owned a substantial estate comprising nearly 1,000 acres, and with a net value of £4,989. Administration of her estate was granted on 26 December 1749 to her son-in-law Roger Wolcott [husband of her daughter Marah] and daughter-in-law Elizabeth Newberry [widow of her son Roger].

291 Elizabeth Sacket

(1677 - 1682)

Line 3 John[J], Simon[I], Thomas[H], Thomas[G]

Father	191	John Sackett b. 1632, d. 1719
Mother		Abigail Hannum b. 1640, d. 1690

Elizabeth Sacket, daughter of John Sackett and Abigail Hannum, was born in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 28 August 1677[1, 2, 3, 4] and died there aged four years on 15 June 1682.[1, 2, 5]

Was Elizabeth kidnapped by the Indians?

Despite the record of her death in Westfield in 1682, it has been conjectured that Elizabeth was the Sackett daughter taken by the Indians in a raid on the family farm in Westfield in 1682, then brought up by the Indians in the north-west part of New York State, marrying into the tribe and bearing a son, later identified as Chief Sackett.

Like all good stories, this has elements of fact, but there is an appearance of later historians embellishing the work of their predecessors, and there are some inconsistencies.

The earliest mention found so far of the abduction is that of Rev Emerson Davis in his Historical Sketch of Westfield, written in 1826. He recorded that the girl taken by the Indians was a daughter of the second wife of a Mr Sackett. She was taken to the north-west part of New York, married an Indian, and lived among them for the rest of her life. He stated that he did not know the name of the girl; he gave no date; he did not identify the father beyond Mr Sackett; and although he stated that the girl's descendants had visited Westfield years later, he did not mention a son who would be Chief Sackett.

A couple of years earlier, in 1824, E Hoyt's History of the Indian Wars had been published. Hoyt describes an incident in 1748 during King George's War when, some 12 miles from Fort Dummer, Vermont, at the location of the present Marlboro, an English force of 40 men was attacked by "a large body of Indians, under a resolute chief, by the name of Sackett". In a footnote, Hoyt recorded that "this chief is said to have been a half blooded Indian, a descendant of a captive, taken at Westfield, Massachusetts." Chief Sackett, who could speak English, apparently knew the English commander, Hobbs, and repeatedly called upon him to surrender. Eventually the Indians, despite outnumbering the English, were beaten off and Chief Sackett ordered a retreat, carrying off his dead and wounded.

The account of the "Hobbs Fight" was repeated by Josiah Holland in his History of Western Massachusetts, published in 1855. Holland's account, although written in his own words, was in all essential details the same as that of Hoyt's.

John Lockwood, in his Westfield and Its Historic Influences, written in 1922, quotes in detail Hoyt's account of the Indian attack led by Chief Sackett, and links this with Rev Davis's account of the Westfield abduction, quoting Davis's text in full. He did not, however, suggest the identity of the kidnapped girl.

In a more recent work, Western Massachusetts history: the Westfield area, published in 1970, the author, Stephen Pitoniak, concludes that the record of Elizabeth Sackett's death in Westfield in 1682 was in error, and that it was she who had been taken by the Indians. The author refers to "long research" proving the death record to be false, but offers no evidence.

He further misquotes Rev Davis as saying that the girl captured by the Indians was a daughter of John Sackett. Davis had said Mr Sackett, not John Sackett. There is some evidence that Rev Davis did not believe that Elizabeth Sackett was the girl captured by the Indians in that Davis himself submitted "A Record of Marriages, Births and Deaths in Westfield, Mass., prior to the Year 1700" for publication in the New England Historical and Genealogical Register in 1852. The record includes that of the death of John Sacket's daughter Elizabeth on 15 June 1682. In compiling his list for publication, he would surely have been alert to his own earlier acount of the Sackett abduction.

Strothman's historical novel

More recently again (2012), author Stuart Strothman has used the above background as a basis for his historical novel, simply called "Sackett", with Chief Sackett as the central character. In an afterword to his novel, the author is careful to separate fact from fiction and, in a pithy comment on Pitoniak's history, writes,"If only we could get a solid handle on the 'long research!' " Stuart Strothman spoke about his book at the Sackett Family Association reunion held in Westfield in 2012.

Inconsistencies

It is noted that Rev Davis stated specifically that the abducted girl was a daughter of the second wife of a Mr Sackett. As far as is known, Abigail Hannum, Elizabeth's mother, was John Sackett's first wife. Of the histories of Westfield so far researched, no record of an Indian raid on Westfield in 1682 has been found.

Conclusion

While there is not sufficient evidence to identify Chief Sackett as a son of Elizabeth Sackett, it would appear that he did exist. If, as told in the legend, he was the son of a captive Sackett, another candidate who would be his mother has not been found. Of Elizabeth's sisters, Mary had died an infant in Springfield in 1667, and Abigail, Hannah, a second Mary, and a second Abigail all lived to adulthood and married. There were no other Sackett daughters in Westfield at the relevant time. Chief Sackett's parentage remains a mystery. It would seem possible that he had an Indian name that sounded like Sackett. Indeed, Stuart Strothman uses the Abenaki name "Saksis" as well as "Sackett" in his novel.

> Like his father and many of his kinsmen [Lieut John Sackett] took a lively interest in military affairs. As soon as he had reached the required age he joined the New Haven military company and remained an active member of it to the day of his death. After serving several years as a private and non-commissioned officer, he was commissioned an Ensign and later a Lieutenant. The records of the General Court of Connecticut show that at a session held at Hartford May 14, 1696, a lease from certain Indians, for a considerable tract of land to John Sackett and others, was confirmed.

—Weygant, The Sacketts of America

John's name appears a number of times in the New Haven Ancient Town Records.[15] At Town Meetings held on 27 November and 25 December 1682, he was granted land to build a house and shop to set up business as a glazier.[16] He was listed in a town meeting report of 22 December 1712 (the same list having previously been exhibited in the General Assembly on 20 October 1704) as having been a proprietor of the town in 1685.[17][18]This detail is also recorded in Savage's Genealogical Dictionary.[19] At a meeting on 28 April of that year John was chosen to be a "heyward [overseer of hedges] for the Governors quarter".[20] At the same meeting he applied for a grant of land to compensate for the town's construction of a highway through his land at the plains.[21] On 27 December 1686, the town discussed further the construction of this highway.[22] By May 1688, John Sackett had become a Sergeant and was elected as a constable for the year.[23] Land applications by John Sackett, now an Ensign, were made to town meetings in March and April 1698.[24] In March 1703, he was appointed, with others, to be "a sizer to size the Land to be laid out."[25] Atwater, in his History of the Colony of New Haven,[26] lists John Sackett as having attained his highest rank, that of Lieutenant, in 1700.

Lieut John Sackett died in 1703 but administration of his estate proved complicated and was not finally completed until after the death in 1717 of his widow Mary. An inventory of John's estate was taken on 25 December 1703. John's son-in-law Jonathan Alling was appointed administrator on 26

December 1717 by the Court of Probates of John's estate and of the estates of John's widow Mary and daughter Mary.

298 Jonathan Sackett

Line 4 John[J]

Father 201 John Sackett of New Haven b. early to mid-1620s, d. 1684

Mother Agnes Tinkham b. c 1630, d. 1707

Jonathan Sackett, son of John Sackett of New Haven and Agnes Tinkham, was born in New Haven, Connecticut, on 6 June 1655.[1, 2, 3, 4, 5] He died there aged 71 on 4 February 1726/27 and was buried at the Grove Street Cemetery, New Haven.[5, 6, 7, 8] He married in New Haven on 12 March 1717/18, Ruth Hotchkiss, daughter of John Hotchkiss and Elizabeth Peck.[6, 9, 10, 11] Ruth was born about 1688 and died aged 85 in New Haven on 24 March 1773.[5, 6] After Jonathan's death, Ruth married second on 11 December 1728 Benjamin Dorman.[5, 6, 12]

On 17 March 1656/57 Jonathan, "almost 2 yeares old', was treated for worms by John Winthrop the younger.[13]

Comments

Jonathan's age (62) upon marriage to Ruth Hotchkiss, suggests the possibility of his having been married previously. According to the Sacketts of America, Jonathan was married to Hannah ___, by whom he had five children: (SoA 74) Jonathan, (75) Richard, (76) Hannah, (77) John, and (78) Joseph. However, no records of a marriage to Hannah nor of the births of these children are found in Barbour's Collection of Vital Records of Connecticut, nor does Jacobus, Families of Ancient New Haven, have this family grouping.

Weygant attributes the marriage of Jonathan Sackett and Ruth Hotchkiss to a supposed younger Jonathan (74). Despite a 33-year age difference, it would appear that the Jonathan of this marriage was the Jonathan Sackett born in 1655. Ruth's second marriage, to Benjamin Dorman in 1728, following the death of Jonathan at the age of 72 in 1727, tends to support this conclusion. It is concluded consequently that there was no such younger Jonathan Sackett.

Of the other children, (76) Hannah appears to be the same as the Hannah baptized in 1694 by John and Mary (Woodin) Sackett, and (77) John the same as (72) John, baptized in 1699 by the same parents. No other record has been found of a Joseph (78). Jonathan's brother Joseph had a son Joseph in 1712 by his wife Sarah Denison. A confusion of the fathers' names, John, Jonathan, and Joseph, may have resulted from misinterpretation of the baptism records.

Identification of the remaining child, (75) Captain Richard Sackett of New York, with parents Jonathan and Hannah, as stated in Sacketts of America, is unconfirmed by other records. Other than Weygant's statement that Richard was of New Haven, no record has been found linking him with this branch of the family

(1657 - before 1728)

Line 4 John[J]

Father 201 John Sackett of New Haven b. early to mid-1620s, d. 1684

Mother Agnes Tinkham b. c 1630, d. 1707

Mary Sackett, daughter of John Sackett of New Haven and Agnes Tinkham, was born in New Haven, Connecticut, on 24 September 1657.[1, 2, 3, 4, 5] She married in New Haven on 12 August 1719 as his second wife, Sergt Benjamin Bradley, son of William Bradley and Alice Prichard.[5, 6, 7] Benjamin was born in New Haven on 8 April 1657[8] and baptized at the First Congregational Society, New Haven, on 12 April 1657.[8] He died between April 1728 and June 1728.[8]

Mary was unusually old, at nearly 62, for a first marriage. However, her husband Benjamin, whose first marriage had lasted more than 40 years, was of similar age. A death record for Mary has not been found although she evidently predeceased Benjamin as he is recorded as having married for a third time.

recording of "Hannah" instead of "Sarah" was a case of mistaken identity rather than merely a transcription error.

Katherine Sackett, daughter of George Sackett and Susanna Curling, was baptized at St Lawrence in Thanet, Kent, on 4 May 1634.[1] She was probably the Katherine Sackett who married at St John in Thanet on 29 March 1666, Israel Fleete, son of Simon Fleete and Mary ___.[2] Israel was baptized at Sturry, Kent, on 8 May 1636.[3]

The marriage at St John in Thanet to Israel Fleet has been assigned to this Katherine Sackett on the basis that she was baptized at nearby St Lawrence in Thanet. However, as Israel was baptized in Sturry and their children were baptized in neighbouring Westbere it is as likely that the Katherine of this marriage was the Katherine Sackett, daughter of Thomas Sackett and Mary Pickell, who was baptized at Herne in 1634.

Charles Sackett, son of Henry Sackett and Catherine Burges, was baptized at St John in Thanet, Kent, on 1 April 1694.[1] He married at Boughton under Blean, Kent, on 7 February 1716/17, Elizabeth Mitchell.[2, 3] She was buried there on 5 June 1739.[4]

Charles had obtained a licence on 24 December 1715 to marry Mary Baker at St George or St Mary Bredin, Canterbury, or at Hernhill, Kent. He was a bachelor and she a spinster and they were both of Hernhill. A record of marriage has not been found. A second licence was issued on 3 February 1716/17 for a marriage to Elizabeth Mitchell. Charles was described in this licence as a bachelor and it would appear therefore that the first marriage did not take place.[5]

Mother		Martha Tomlin b. c 1681, d. 1747

Richard Sackett, yeoman, gentleman of East Northdown, son of Richard Sackett and Martha Tomlin, was baptized at St John in Thanet, Kent, on 16 April 1717.[1] He died aged about 72 in St John in Thanet on 23 August 1789[2] and was buried at St Peter in Thanet on 27 August 1789.[3, 4] He married at Eastwell, Kent, on 25 July 1745, Hannah Tritton.[5, 6] Hannah was born about 1720.[7] She died aged about 53 and was buried at St Peter in Thanet on 29 July 1773.[8, 4]

Richard was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made in St John in Thanet on 28 October 1730. He was to inherit his father's extensive estates in Northdown, St John's and elsewhere.[9]

Richard was appointed administrator of the estate of his sister Susanna Sackett by letters of administration granted at the Prerogative Court of Canterbury on 20 April 1741. He would have inherited his sister's fortune, their mother having renounced any claim.[10]

Richard made his will in East Northdown, St John's, Thanet, on 4 August 1789, naming as beneficiary his granddaughter Sarah Cramp.[11] Both of Richard's children had died some years earlier, his son Tritton at the age of 30 and his daughter Susannah at the age of 25. Richard left his extensive estates in trust for his granddaughter Sarah (Susannah's daughter) to inherit when she or her husband Robert Tomlin reached 21 years of age. Sarah was 17 at the time her grandfather made his will and had married Robert Tomlin a few days earlier. Richard appointed as trustees his cousin Sackett Wood and a friend John Abbott.

The extent of Richard's estates is detailed in a section of the will which provides for reversion to other beneficiaries in the event of Sarah's dying without living children. Richard owned at least six houses, with farmlands and a number of cottages. His houses included "my Mansion House wherein I now dwell and have for many years dwelt", the Manor of Dane Court occupied by his son-in-law Peter Cramp, and Sackett's Hill house and farm, occupied by a yeoman farmer, John Cleveland.

Father	283	Captain Joseph Sackett b. 1655/56, d. 1719
Mother		Elizabeth Betts b. c 1660, d. between 1700 and 1710

Simon Sackett, son of Captain Joseph Sackett and Elizabeth Betts, was born in Newtown, Long Island, New York State, in 1678.[1] He died aged about 40 in Hopewell, New Jersey, in 1718.[1, 2] He married Mary McGaw.[1]

On 23 April 1711 Simon's father gave him, "for the love, goodwill, and affection for my beloved son," 288 acres of land in Hopewell, bordering on the Delaware River.[3]

Simon made his will in Hopewell on 24 January 1717/18, naming as beneficiaries his wife Mary, and his son Joseph. Simon also mentioned in his will a "child my wife now goeth withal" and made provision for the child, if a son, to share in the estate equally with Joseph, or, if a daughter, to receive a sum of £50 from Joseph upon reaching 21. Records of the Bucks County Orphan's Court reveal that the unborn child was also named Simon. (The records refer to the children of the younger Simon, who also died young, but they identify him as the brother of Joseph Sackett who was appointed guardian of Simon's orphaned children.)[4]

In The Sacketts of America it is recorded that Simon Sackett and Mary McGaw had a son Thomas and two (unnamed) daughters. The terms of Simon's will (which had not been seen by Weygant) indicate that at the date of his death Simon had only one child, Joseph. His posthumous child is identified by orphan records as a son, also Simon. It is concluded therefore that Thomas Sackett of Hopewell of Hopewell was not a child of this family.

Judge Joseph Sackett, of Newtown, Long Island, New York, son of Captain Joseph Sackett and Elizabeth Betts, was born in Newtown in 1680.[1] He died aged about 75 at English Kills, Newtown, on 26 September 1755.[1, 2, 3] He married on 23 May 1706, Hannah Alsop, daughter of Capt Richard Alsop and Hannah Underhill.[1, 4] Hannah Alsop was born in 1690.[1, 4] She died aged about 83 on 17 June 1773.[4, 5]

On 19 August 1731, Judge Joseph was appointed attorney by his 14-year-old nephew Joseph S Sackett, son of Judge Joseph's deceased brother Simon.[6]

Joseph was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made in Newtown, Queens County, on 20 September 1719. He was left "a certain lot of land and meadow bounded west by the land of Thomas Betts, north by the middle ditch, east by the land of Joshua Hunt, and north by the road", paying his sister Sarah £20 and his sister Patience £10. He was also to inherit, jointly with his siblings, but he having a double share, all his father's land and meadows at Hopewell and Maidenhead in New Jersey. He and his brother William were executors of the will.

Joseph advertised by way of an article in the New York Gazette on 3 August 1752 for persons having knowledge of a supposed vein of ore in a mine on his land in Orange County, New York, near where his son Joseph Sackett Jr was then living. He offered a share of profits, or a lease, if anyone could discover the mine.

Joseph made his will on 31 March 1755, naming as beneficiaries his wife Hannah, his sons William, Thomas, Joseph, John, James, and Samuel, his daughters Elizabeth and Hannah, and the children of his late daughters Frances Blackwell and Deborah Stringham. The will was proved on 22 October 1755.[1]

Father 283 Captain Joseph Sackett b. 1655/56, d. 1719

Rev Richard Sackett AM, Congregational minister, son of Captain Joseph Sackett and Elizabeth Betts, was born in Newtown, Long Island, New York State, in 1686.[1] He died in Greenwich, Fairfield County, Connecticut, on 8 May 1727.[1, 2, 3] He married first about 1705, ___ ___. His first wife died soon after the birth of their only child Richard.[1] He married second in Greenwich, Fairfield County, Connecticut, in 1710, Elizabeth Kirtland, daughter of John Kirtland and Lydia Pratt.[1, 2]

Richard became a member of the Presbyterian Church in Newtown sometime between 1708 and 1724.[4]

Richard was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made in Newtown, Queens County, on 20 September 1719. He was to inherit, jointly with his siblings, all his father's land and meadows at Hopewell and Maidenhead in New Jersey.

Details of Rev Richard Sackett's ministry are given in Colonial Clergy of the Middle Colonies.[5]

> Rev. Richard Sackett ... entered Yale College and studied for the ministry. He graduated with honor in 1709. ... In 1711 he was preaching to the congregation of Maidenhead and Hopewell, NJ. In 1712 his residence was Saybrook. Early in 1714, he succeeded Mr. John Jones in preaching to the first church in Greenwich, but in 1716 changed to the supply of the pulpit at what was then called Horse Neck in western part of the town. His ministrations there were so acceptable that the General Assembly in October 1717, granted an application for a church, and accordingly a church was quickly formed (perhaps in the following months) and Mr. Sackett was ordained pastor. He remained in this office until his sudden death in Greenwich May 9, 1727. A notice of his death in the New England Weekly Journal says that he was so well the day before that he preached both parts of the day. He is reported to have been of a mild temper and pleasant manner and much beloved by his people. His children remained in Greenwich. The inventory of his estate dated Aug. 15, 1729, amounted to about two thousand pounds—fifty pounds being in books.

—Frederick Lewis Weis, The Colonial Clergy of the Middle Colonies: New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania, 1628–1776, American Antiquarian Society

Weygant, The Sacketts of America, has the following—.

In 1735 [Rev. Samuel] and Mrs. Sackett took up their residence in Orange County, N. Y., where the Sacketts and Hazards were largely interested in unimproved lands, owning many thousands of acres in what are now the towns of New Windsor, Cornwall, Woodbury, Blooming Grove and Montgomery. The young couple resided during the greater part of the first eight years of their wedded life at the foot of Storm King Mountain, near the village of Cornwall. During these, to them, not uneventful years, Mr. Sackett labored as a missionary, mainly in the towns mentioned. One of his principal preaching stations was Little Britain, where he lay the foundation of a society which is still in existence.

The minutes of the Presbytery of New Brunswick show that in 1742 he was sent to preach in Westchester County—the special field assigned him being Cortland Manor, embracing North Salem, Cortland town Crompond and Somers. In 1743 he was installed pastor of the Presbyterian Society at Bedford. In 1747 to 1749 Crompond (now Yorktown) secured his services for half the time. From 1749 to April 11 1753, he labored at Bedford. He was then settled over the church at Hanover, Conn., where he remained until 1760, when he returned to the church Crompond. In 1765 he was again at Hanover, which became the scene of his labors until after the commencement of the Revolution. A letter written by him to his son Nathaniel, at Fishkill, N. Y., dated "Hanover, Oct. 29, 1776," contains the following request: "Send us two wagons immediately to help us away with some small things before the enemy are upon us." During the long struggle for independence Mr. Sackett's position as minister at Crompond was most trying. His daughter Hannah was the wife of Stephen De Lancey, son Hon. James De Lancey: and the De Lanceys were bitter Tories. His sons were serving in the Patriot Army. His pastoral flock was divided, some were Whigs and others were Loyalists. Crompond was about midway of the distance between the outposts of the opposing armies. But he preached whenever occasion offered, not concealing the fact that his sympathies were with those of his countrymen who had determined to throw off the galling yoke of oppression. In July, 1779, the meeting house at Crompond, in which his flock assembled for worship, was destroyed by fire kindled by a body of British cavalry sent out for that especial purpose. A short time after the close of the war a new edifice was erected on the site of the burned building. And for over a century a plain tombstone has stood in the graveyard adjoining it, bearing this inscription:

Rev. Samuel Sackett, who died June 5, 1784.

He was a judicious, faithful, laborious and successful minister or Christ.

The letter of 29 October 1776 referred to in Weygant's account is reproduced below. A transcription is given here.

Father 284 John Sacket b. 1660, d. 1745
Mother Deborah Filley b. 1660/61, d. 1701

John Sacket, son of John Sacket and Deborah Filley, was born in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 3 March 1687/88[1, 2, 3, 4, 5] and baptized at the Church of Christ, Westfield, on 20 May 1688.[6] He was possibly the John Sacket who died in Westfield in October 1766 (it is unclear whether this death record refers to this John or to his son.)[7] He married in Westfield on 14 June 1722, Sarah Mackeraney.[1, 2, 8]

John Sacket was named as the father of an illegitimate daughter, Meriam, born to Abigail Williams in Westfield on 22 March 1712. John and Abigail appeared in the County Court in September of that year, confessing that they had "committed the sin of fornication together", and Abigail "declaring upon oath that she had lately been delivered of a bastard child begotton on her body by the said Sackett." They were each fined forty shillings and John was ordered to pay two shillings and sixpence per week to Abigail for the maintenance of the child. John and his father, also John, were ordered by the Court to provide a surety in the sum of £40 against non-payment by the younger John. John and Abigail did not marry (both are recorded as having taken other spouses), but their daughter Meriam took the surname Sacket, as evidenced by the record of her marriage in 1733 to John Pell.[9, 10]

I being left by God to be overborn by a temptation carried on upon my by John Sacket the younger, to the breaking of the Seventh Comand, a great & scandalous sin, to the dishonour of God, & therefore to the offending of Gods people, especially the Church of God, which is a greate exercise to my Soule & therefore I am desirous to be reconciled both to God & his people, especially to the Church: that as they have seen my fall they also might have a sight of the sorrow of my heart on this account.
This Confession tooke from her own mouth 31 3m 1712 & now read & and ownd by her, was with her case propounded to the Church who accepted of it & so she was absolved & then presnt on to a watchfulness over herselfe & a humble walking with God."
p. 468: "In the September session of the County Court, two months after the action of the Church, both appeared: John Sackett 3rd and Abiel Williams both of Westfield in the County of Hamshr appearing in Court and Confessing that they have Committed the Sin of Fornication Together Ordered that they Pay as a fine to her Majestie the Sum of Forty Shillings Each and Cost and the said Abiel Williams Declaring upon Oath that she had lately been Deliv¹d of a Bastard Child begotton on her body by the Said Sackett (he being Presnt not Denying the Same) this Court Therefore Further order that the Said John Sackett Pay to the Said Abiel Williams the sum of Two Shillings Six Pence per Week During the Pleasure of this Court, and that he find Sureties for the Performance thereof?Accordingly the said John Sackett with John Sackett Jr. of Said Westfield appeared in Courth and Acknowledg¹d themselves to by joyntly and Severally indebted to the said Abiel Williams in the Sum of Forty Pounds to be well and Truly Paid to the said Abiel Williams in Case the Said John Sackett Tertius Shall fail of Performing the order aforesaid."
Out of wedlock births in the 17th & 18th centuries were not that unusual. The unusual aspect of this case is that John and Abigail did not marry. A footnote on page 468 states that Abigail married Thomas Dewey, the son of Abijah, later that summer, and that "John Sackett, the grandson of one of the first Westfield settlers, married Sarah Mackerany and remained in Westfield."

Father	284	John Sacket b. 1660, d. 1745
Mother		Deborah Filley b. 1660/61, d. 1701

Benjamin Sacket, son of John Sacket and Deborah Filley, was born in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 31 October 1698[1, 2, 3, 4, 5] and baptized at the Church of Christ, Westfield, on the same day.[6, 7] He died aged about 54 in 1753.[1] He married in Westfield on 4 December 1729, Thankful King, daughter of David King and Abigail Sacket.[1, 8, 9, 10] Benjamin and Thankful were first cousins, their respective father and mother being siblings.

Benjamin made his will on 27 August 1746 in Sheffield, Berkshire County, Massachusetts, naming as beneficiaries his wife Thankful; his sons Benjamin, King, and Zebulon; and his daughter Deborah. Benjamin made provision in his will for an unborn child. It is assumed that the child would have been Abigail, although her date of birth has not been ascertained. In the event, Benjamin lived a further seven years after making his will.

Abstract of will of Benjamin Sacket, of Sheffield, Massachusetts.
Date: 7 Aug 1746.
Source: Weygant, The Sacketts of America
Beneficiaries:
Wife Thankful, real and personal estate until children of age, sons 21 and daughters 18, then one-third of estate as law provides.

Son Benjamin, £5.
Sons Benjamin, King, and Zebulon, whole of real and personal estate except their mother's third.
Daughter Deborah, £20, to be paid by sons.
Will provides for unborn child, if a son to be equally with brothers, and if a daughter to be treated equally with Deborah.
Executors: Brother Daniel and wife Thankful.

Father 285 William Sacket b. 1662, d. 1700
Mother Hannah Graves b. 1665/66, d. after 1700

Joseph Sacket, husbandman of Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, son of William Sacket and Hannah Graves, was born in Westfield on 25 July 1690[1, 2, 3, 4, 5] and baptized at the Church of Christ, Westfield, on 27 July 1690.[6] He died aged 66 in Westfield on 8 November 1756.[1, 7, 8] He married about 1713, Abigail Bigelow, daughter of Jonathan Bigelow and Rebecca Shepard.[1, 9] Abigail was baptized on 2 November 1690.[10] She died aged about 85 in Westfield on 28 February 1776.[7, 8, 11]

Joseph made his will at Westfield on 8 March 1756, naming as beneficiaries his wife Abigail, his sons Jesse and Erastus, and his daughters Beulah Dewey and Abigal Smith. He left to his wife the use of half of his house, barn, and home lot, the other half presumably going to his sons. He left his sons five shillings each and his joiner's tools. His daughters Beulah and Abigail were each to receive £8, half of his movables and half of his livestock. Not named in Joseph's will was his daughter Hannah who, by the date of the will, was married to Jacob Noble and was living in Westfield with their young children. This unlikely omission may be the result of an error in the transcription of the will reproduced in The Sacketts of America.[1]

381 Jonathan Sacket

(1696/97 - 1773)

Line 3 William[K], John[J], Simon[I], Thomas[H], Thomas[G]

Father 285 William Sacket b. 1662, d. 1700
Mother Hannah Graves b. 1665/66, d. after 1700

Jonathan Sacket, son of William Sacket and Hannah Graves, was born in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 20 March 1696/97[1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6] and baptized at the Church of Christ, Westfield, on 21 April 1697.[7] He died aged 76 in Kent (later Warren), Litchfield County, Connecticut, on 1 September 1773[1, 8] and was buried at the Old Cemetery, Warren, Litchfield County.[9] He married first in Westfield in February 1721/22, Abigail Ashley.[1, 10, 11] She died before the end of that year.[12] He married second in Hebron, Connecticut, on 28 January 1724/25, Anne Filer, daughter of Samuel Filer and Abigail Phelps.[1, 13, 14] Anne was born about 1705.[15] She died aged 81 in Warren on 8 March 1787[15] and was buried at the Old Cemetery, Warren.[16]

Jonathan was one of the founding members of the Congregational Church in Warren. In 1750 he was appointed to "supply the church with preaching" and it was probably at his home six years later that the organisation of the church was finally achieved with the founding, covenanting, members attending the first "gathering" of the Church on 22 September 1756. In the following year he was appointed to a committee to select a minister.[17, 18, 19]

Jonathan made his will in Kent, Litchfield County, Connecticut, on 12 June 1772, naming as beneficiaries his wife Anne, and his sons Justus, Jonathan, and Reuben.[1] He left the use of half his house, barn, and lot to his wife Anne during her widowhood, and also left her two cows, ten sheep, his riding mare, and all household goods. He left his son Justus half the house and barn, oxen, and livestock, subject to an adjusting payment to his brother Jonathan. Jonathan was also to receive a cash payment from his brother Reuben. The transcript of the will (which may have been abbreviated) does not state Reuben's inheritance.

Jonathan's widow Anne made her will in Litchfield County, Connecticut, in June 1783, naming as beneficiaries her sons Justus and Reuben, and her grandsons William Sackett, Filer Sacket, Jesse Sackett, and Almeron Sacket. Her son Justus was appointed executor. She left her estate in shares of one-third to each of her sons Justus and Reuben, and one-third to her grandsons William, Filer, Jesse, and Almon, sons of her deceased son Jonathan, the grandsons' one-third to be split half to William, Filer, and Jesse, and half to Almon.

Father	290	Samuel Sacket b. 1674, d. 1709
Mother		Elizabeth Bissell b. c 1675

William Sacket, son of Samuel Sacket and Elizabeth Bissell, was born in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 9 December 1700[1, 2, 3] and baptized at the Church of Christ, Westfield, on 22 December 1700.[4] He died aged 54 in Westfield on 14 April 1755.[5, 6, 7] He married in Westfield in April 1724, Hannah Bagg.[1, 8, 9]

A William Sacket, of Westfield, recorded in 1755 as the owner of slaves named Occara and Present and of slave children Agnis and Thomar, was probably this William Sacket, or possibly his son William.[10]

William was named as a beneficiary in his grandfather John Sackett's will made in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 10 May 1718. He was to inherit, after his grandmother's death, his grandfather's team and tackling, plows and harrow. He was aged 17 at the date of his grandfather's will but, unusually, was appointed executor. Following his grandfather's death, by which date William was 19, the Probate Court appointed William's uncle, John Sacket, as administrator until William reached 21.

William made his will at Westfield on 9 November 1752, naming as beneficiaries his wife Hannah, his son William and his daughter Hannah Noble. He left his wife one-third of his real estate during her widowhood, one-third of his personal estate outright, and his riding horse and mare. He left his daughter Hannah a farm of about 50 or 60 acres at Munhard River and £15. His son William, who was also appointed executor, was to inherit the rest of the estate, real and personal.

Orphan line headed by Capt Richard Sackett of New York

Identification of the parents of Captain Richard Sackett, and hence his place in the Sackett tree, is the subject of continuing research. It has been established by DNA testing that he was almost certainly a descendant of Thomas Sackett the elder through Thomas's grandson Simon Sackett the colonist. Richard is accordingly identified with Line 3 and is shown here as head of orphan line 3.1.

Some 2,600 descendants of Captain Richard have been found.

395 Captain Richard Sackett of New York

(late 1670s - 1746)

Captain Richard Sackett, brewer of New York City and yeoman of Dover, Dutchess County, New York, was born probably in the late 1670s.[1, 2] His parents have not been identified, although it has been established by DNA test results that he was almost certainly a descendant of Simon Sackett the colonist. He died in Wassaic, New York State, in 1746[2, 3] and was buried at the Steel Works Burying Ground, halfway between Wassaic and South Amenia.[3] He married in New York City on 11 May 1699, Margery L (___) (Crego) (Wislake) Slade.[2, 4, 5, 6]

Weygant in The Sacketts of America records that, in 1699, Richard was the proprietor of a malt house or brewery on the north side of Cherry Street in New York City. An article on Cherry Street on Wikipedia adds that Richard opened a beer garden and a bowling green there, which became known as "Sackett's Orchard".

In 1703 Richard was living in New York City and was recorded in the census as Richard Sackett in the East Ward. Other members of his household were his wife, four children (two sons and two daughters), and four negro slaves (three male and one female). It is assumed that the children would have been Richard, John, Catherine, and Mary/Maria.[7]

Richard made his will in Dover, Dutchess County, New York State, on 14 December 1744. Named as beneficiaries were his wife Margery, his sons Richard and John, his "son Josiah Crego" [see comments below], his daughter Catherine Margeson, and the heirs of his deceased daughter Mary Dean.

Richard's parents

Weygant, Sacketts of America, names Richard's parents as Jonathan Sackett and Hannah ___, of New Haven. Richard has not been found in New Haven records, nor has other evidence been found to link him to these parents. A descendant of Richard Sackett has completed a DNA test, with results matching those of descendants of Simon Sackett the colonist. A satisfactorily documented link between Richard and Jonathan would consequently confirm a supposed link between the New Haven line and the line of Simon the colonist. However, the probability that Richard's father was not Jonathan makes this an unsafe conclusion.

"Josiah Crego Sackett"

Weygant lists a Josiah Crego Sackett among the children of Capt. Richard Sackett. The identification of this man would appear to have been based on an abstract of Richard's will. This abstract, although not factually incorrect, was deficient in some essential details, leading to a wrong conclusion that Richard had a son Josiah Crego Sackett. Study of the full will and of research data given in Roy Crego's Selective History of the Crego Family indicate that Josiah (more usually Josias) Crego was Richard's stepson, being a son of Richard's wife Margery by an earlier marriage to a Stephen Crego.

Richard's Will

Significant details in the full will not dealt with in the abstract are:

1. The abstract includes the words, "I leave to my son Josiah Crego, and to the heirs of my daughter Mary Dean deceased, and to my daughter Catherine during her widowhood, and to my sons Richard and John the whole of my remaining estate ...". A literal reading of this would be that "Josiah" and "Crego" were given names on the basis that other beneficiaries – Catherine, Richard, and John – are also referred to by their given names. However, in the full will, it is seen that Richard and John are referred to consistently as Richard Sacket and John Sacket, and Catherine, although mentioned once as Catherine, is referred to later in the sentence as Catherine Margeson. In the context of all the other names being full names, including the surname, it becomes clear that "Crego" was Josiah's surname.

2. A further clue to the relative status of Josiah Crego and Richard and John Sackett is that Capt. Richard left his remaining estate, after specific bequests, to "my sons Richard Sacket and John Sacket". Josiah Crego was not included here as one of Capt. Richard's sons.
3. The most persuasive clue appears at the end of the will where Capt. Richard, in a disposition apparently concerning his slave Hagar, refers specifically to "my two sons" – "after my Decease and my Wifes Decease hagar shall have the liberty to Chuse which of my two sons she will live with". In the context of the rest of the will, "my two sons" can only have been Richard and John.
4. Josias Crego signed as a witness to the will. It would seem most unlikely that this Josias Crego and the Josiah Crego who was a beneficiary of the will were not the same man, and equally unlikely that Weygant would have "created" a Josiah Crego Sackett had he had sight of the full will.

Margery's Marriages

Weygant records Richard's marriage to Margery L Sleade by license issued in New York in 1699. Research data given by Roy Crego in his book shows that Margery was married three times before, the first marriage being to a Stephen Crego sometime before say 1683 when Josias (Josiah) Crego was born. Had Weygant had knowledge of Margery's earlier marriage to Crego, he would surely have concluded that the Josiah Crego of the will was Richard's stepson, not a natural son Josiah Crego Sackett.
Margery's marriages were:
1. Margery ___ to Stephen Crego, sometime before say 1683.[8]

2. Margery "Crege" to Edward Wislake 1692.[9]

3. Margery Wislake to Peter Slade 1694.[10]

4. Margery L "Sleade" to Richard Sackett 1699.[41112]

Father	300	Lieutenant Joseph Sackett b. 1659/60, d. 1729
Mother		Sarah Dennison b. 1671, d. before 1718

Joseph Sackett, son of Lieutenant Joseph Sackett and Sarah Dennison, was born in New Haven, Connecticut, on 27 October 1712.[1, 2, 3, 4] He was probably the Joseph Sackett baptized at the First Congregational Church, New Haven, on 11 September 1720.[5] He died aged at least 82 in Stanford, Dutchess County, New York State, after May 1795. He married first ___ ___. He married second about 1750, Abigail (Rowe) Ives, daughter of Matthew Rowe and Rebecca Mix.[6] Abigail was born on 17 January 1712/13.[4]

In 1790 Joseph was living in Washington, Dutchess County, New York State. In his household were one man and two females.[7]

Abstract of will of Joseph Sackett, yeoman of Stanford, Dutchess County, New York.
Date: 20 May 1795.
Proved: Court of Common Pleas, Dutchess County, 13 April 1818, "by being brought into court by Samuel Sackett one of the heirs of sd Joseph Sackett dec'd, by two of wits Samuel Sackett and Anna Sackett formerly Anna Hammond."
Source: American Ancestors, "New York: Abstracts of Wills, Admins. and Guardianships, 1787–1835."
Testator: Joseph Sackitt, yeoman of Stanford, Dutchess County, New York.
Beneficiaries:
Wife Abigail, use of one third of all my lands during her life & one third of all my moveable estate in lieu of her dower.
Eldest daughter Sarah, £5.
Children of daughter Sarah (except her son Samuel), all of my real estate in township of New Haven.
Son Reuben Sackett, £40.
Son Joseph Sackett, £45.
Daughter Hester Sackett £200.
Son Samuel Sackett, all my real estate not heretofore willed. The one third my real estate given to my wife during her life, to my son Samuel Sackett after her death.
My dau Hester to be taken care of by my son Samuel.

Note: The manuscript abstract on file at American Ancestors states in the probate proceedings that Joseph was of Stamford, Dutchess County.

This would have been an error for Stanford, as written in the abstract of the will.

Richard Sackett, carpenter of Hornchurch, Essex, son of Richard Sackett of South Weald, Essex, and Elizabeth ___, was born in South Weald, Essex, in 1695 and baptized there on 27 October 1695.[1] He died aged 62 in Hornchurch on 17 April 1758 and was buried at St Andrew's, Hornchurch.[2, 3] He married at Fleet Prison, London, on 10 January 1738/39, Mary Baker, a widow. The location of the marriage, at Fleet Prison, defines it as an irregular or clandestine marriage. Such marriages were performed without the formality of banns or a licence by some clergymen, often those imprisoned for debt, who used the fees to pay for privileges such as the right to live outside the prison gates. Quite why Richard and Mary sought such a no-questions-asked marriage is not known.[4, 5]

Richard was named as a beneficiary in his brother Thomas's will made in Hornchurch on 2 June 1754. He was left a sum of five guineas.[6]

John Sackett, yeoman of St Peter in Thanet, Kent, son of John Sackett and Mary Taylor, was baptized at St John in Thanet on 26 May 1689.[1] He died on 24 December 1756 and was buried at St Peter in Thanet.[2] He married at St John in Thanet on 19 November 1718, Margaret Emptage, daughter of Thomas Emptage and Godly ___.[3] Margaret was baptized at St John in Thanet on 25 December 1689.[4] She died on 1 February 1758 and was buried at St Peter in Thanet on 5 February 1758.[2, 5]

John was named as a beneficiary in his grandfather Thomas Sackett's will made at St John in Thanet on 1 January 1709/10.[6, 7]

John made his will at St Peter in Thanet on 29 November 1756, naming as beneficiaries his wife Margaret, his brothers Paul and Stephen, and his sister Anne.[8] He left £20 to each of his siblings. The rest of his estate, including his real estate, was to go to his wife Margaret. John and Margaret had no surviving children, their only child Mary having died aged 19 in 1739.

John's widow Margaret made her will at St Peter in Thanet on 20 January 1757, naming as beneficiaries the children of her sister Elizabeth.[9] Margaret's will specified the lands inherited from her husband John. The messuage and land in St Peter and St John in Thanet, which she occupied, were to go to her nephew Thomas Phillpott, while a further messuage in St Peter in Thanet, was to go jointly to her nieces, Ann, Elizabeth, and Margaret Phillpott, each also to receive a sum of £40.

445 Captain John Sackett

(1697 - 1753)

Line 2 Robert[L], Thomas[K], Thomas[J], Robert[I], Robert[H], William[G], John[F], William[E]

Father 329 Robert Sackett b. 1659, d. 1704/05
Mother Elizabeth Neame b. c 1660, d. 1715

Captain John Sackett, mariner of Margate, Kent, son of Robert Sackett and Elizabeth Neame, was baptized at St Peter in Thanet, Kent, on 11 October 1697.[1] He died aged 56 in Margate on 17 November 1753[2] and was buried at St John in Thanet on 26 November 1753.[3, 2] He married at Canterbury St Mary Magdalen, Kent, on 2 May 1728, Elizabeth Mockett.[4, 5] Elizabeth was born about 1704.[6] She died aged 92 in Margate on 9 March 1797[2] and was buried at St John in Thanet on 11 March 1797.[7, 2]

Captain John Sackett, as master of the ship Bedwell, was involved in a trade dispute in 1734/35 when he brought an action in the Court of Chancery against Richard Griffin and James Bradley, alleging that Griffin and Bradley were in breach of contract having failed to provide a cargo of 150 hogsheads of tobacco which Captain Sackett was to have shipped from Virginia to London in 1733. The defendants argued that Sackett's ship was late in arriving at Virginia because he had called first without agreement at Lisbon in Portugal, a charge refuted by Sackett who claimed the Lisbon diversion was agreed and that he had arrived in Virginia in good time.[8]

The Bedwell foundered on the coast of Cadiz, Spain, on 4 July 1734, the newspapers reporting that

> On the 4th Instant in the Morning, the ship Bedwell, Captain Sackett, from London, laden with Wheat, unfortunately run ashore coming into this Bay and is intirely lost, and only a few Sacks of her cargo is saved.[9], [10]

Captain Sackett, and his ship Prince William, survived an Atlantic storm in October and November 1738 when returning to London from Antigua. Once safely anchored at Spithead, in the shelter of the Solent estuary, and before sailing on to London, Captain Sackett reported

> That on the 22d of October last, being on his Passage, in the Latitude of 41 Degrees, he met with a Storm of Wind at W.N.W. and S.W. which lasted for six Days, by which he shipp'd a great Quantity of Water; and on the 24th of November he shipp'd a Sea, which fill'd his Decks fore and aft; stav'd both his Boats, and wash'd them over-board, broke the Stancheons between Decks, stove a Hogshead of Rum in the Hold, tore up the larboard Gunnel fore and aft, broke several Top-timbers, wash'd away the Fire-place, Hen-coops, Water-casks, Binnacle, two Compasses, Spare-yards, Top masts, Booms, Fore-tops, Tarpawlins of five Hatches; so much Water fell between Decks as stove and wash'd overboard the Mens Chests, broke the Tiller, knock'd the Man down at the Helm and bruis'd him very much, and the Ship lay Gunnel under Water for two Hours.[11]

In 1746 Captain Sackett's ship Sarah and Elizabeth and another ship were captured by French Men of War while returning to England from Antigua in company with the West India Fleet. Both ships were subsequently retaken by British privateers, and Captain Sackett was able to sail to Kinsale in southern Ireland.[12]

John made his will in Margate on 25 April 1741.[13] He left all his real and personal estate to his wife Elizabeth, and appointed her executrix. The will was proved in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury on 18 December 1753.

John's widow Elizabeth made her will in Margate on 20 April 1754, naming as beneficiaries her daughters Mary and Elizabeth.[14] She made special provision for her younger daughter Elizabeth, bequeathing to her all goods and furniture in the back chamber, plus £50, "to make her equal with my eldest daughter who was so much better advanced and provided for by my late and loving husband John Sackett deceased than my youngest daughter was by him." Elizabeth made her will just a few months after the death of her husband, presumably with the intention of rectifying what she thought to have been unfair, although she was herself to live for a further 43 years. Subject to this adjustment in favour of Elizabeth, the two daughters were to share equally the remaining monies, stocks, and personal estate "both in England and in the Island of Autego [Antigua]." Her will was proved on 29 March 1797 at the Prerogative Court of Canterbury, probate being granted to her daughter Elizabeth as the surviving executrix.

Research note

It is assumed that it was this Ann Sackett who married Edward Ovenden on the basis that she was baptized at St John in Thanet and was of St John on marriage. A less likely candidate for the marriage would be Ann Sackett daughter of Thomas Sackett and Elizabeth Nuby, who was baptized a few miles away at Birchington in 1707.

Joseph S Sackett, yeoman of Wrightstown, Bucks County, Pennsylvania, son of Simon Sackett and Mary McGaw, was born in Hopewell, Mercer County, New Jersey, on 8 February 1715/16.[1, 2] He died aged 82 in Wrightstown on 17 March 1798 and was buried in the Old Presbyterian Church Cemetery, Newtown, Bucks County.[3] Sarah was born in Wrightstown on 26 July 1726.[2] She died there aged 70 on 11 September 1796[4] and was buried in the Old Presyterian Church Cemetery.[5]

Joseph was only a year old when his father died. He was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made in Hopewell on 24 January 1717/18. Although Joseph was the only child named in the will, his father also made provision for an unborn "child my wife now goeth withal".

On 19 August 1731, Joseph, aged 14 and of Trenton, New Jersey, gave a power of attorney to his uncle and guardian Judge Joseph Sackett of Newtown, Long Island.[6]

According to the Hunterdon County Records, "[Joseph Sackett] voted at Trenton in 1738, purchased 280 acres at Wrightstown from John Hillborn in December 1740, and further purchased in 1757 from Robert Cummings, in 1760 from the estate of John Johnson. Purchased land on the north side of the Neshaminy in 1762. In 1769, with others donated land for the establishment of the Presbyterian Church of Newtown, where he was one of the first Trustees of this church. He was a member of the Revolutionary War Committee of Safety for Wrightstown Township. Was a Justice of the Peace from 1777 for many years. Joseph Sackett built a grist mill store, and blacksmith shop near the Mill Creek where it joined the Neshaminy Creek. Originally known as Sackett's Ford, it is now the hamlet of Rushland. Some authorities claim that the name of the hamlet, first Rush Valley and later Rushland was due to the availability of "scouring rushes" used by early settlers for cleaning pots and pans."[7] He married in Bucks County before 1743, Sarah Vansant.[8]

Joseph was described as a yeoman of Wrightstown when, on 21 March 1775, he stood surety in respect of a marriage bond.[9] Joseph was listed in the tax records of Wrightstown from 1779 to 1789. In 1781, his lands were recorded as amounting to 391 acres, and he had seven horses and fifteen cattle. In 1786 he was taxed on 298 acres of land, five horses and eight cattle.[10, 11] He was listed on 1 November 1782 as owning one slave but by the date of the first Federal census in 1790 he had ceased to be a slave owner.[12, 13] Joseph was appointed on 7 April 1796, by the will of his wife's brother Garret Vansant, as a trustee for Garret's daughter Elizabeth Addis. Joseph predeceased his brother-in-law and would not therefore have assumed this responsibility.[14]

In 1790 Joseph was living in Bucks County, Pennsylvania. In his household were three males (16+), one male under 16, and five females.[15]

Joseph made his will in Wrightstown, Bucks County, Pennsylvania, on 21 October 1793, naming as beneficiaries his wife Sarah, his sons Joseph and Simon, his daughters Klaartje, Rachel, Sarah, Elizabeth, and Rebecca, and his granddaughter Mary Kinsey.[16] The will was proved on 27 March 1798.

Father	357	Judge Joseph Sackett b. 1680, d. 1755
Mother		Hannah Alsop b. 1690, d. 1773

Joseph Sackett, businessman and lawyer of Newtown, Long Island, son of Judge Joseph Sackett and Hannah Alsop, was born on 5 March 1706/07.[1, 2] He died sometime after 1757 (when he retired as High Sheriff of Orange County.) He married at Jamaica, Queens County, New York State, on 23 March 1730/31, Millicent Clowes, daughter of Samuel Clowes and Catherine Donne.[1, 3, 4]

Joseph's father Judge Joseph Sackett advertised by way of an article in the New York Gazette on 3 August 1752 for persons having knowledge of a supposed vein of ore in a mine on his land in Orange County, New York, near where Joseph Jr was then living. He offered a share of profits, or a lease, if anyone could discover the mine.

Joseph was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made on 31 March 1755.

Joseph was named in the will, made on 2 August 1780 and proved in New York on 20 September 1784, of Johanna Clowes, the unmarried sister of his wife Millicent. He was to receive a sum of money "if living". It is unclear from this whether Johanna did not know if he was living when she made her will or that she knew he was living but was speculating on which would predecease the other.[5]

Father	357	Judge Joseph Sackett b. 1680, d. 1755
Mother		Hannah Alsop b. 1690, d. 1773

Samuel Sackett, son of Judge Joseph Sackett and Hannah Alsop, was born in Newtown, Long Island, New York State, on 23 June 1724.[1] He died aged 56 in Jamaica, Queens County, New York State, on 29 September 1780[1] and was buried at Grace Episcopal Churchyard, Jamaica.[2] He married in Jamaica on 27 June 1764, Mary Betts.[1, 3] She died there on 20 April 1784[1] and was buried at Grace Episcopal Churchyard.[2]

Samuel was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made on 31 March 1755.

Samuel made his will at Jamaica on 26 September 1780. He left substantial sums to his sons, Samuel, Richard, and Augustus, to be received when they reached 21. They and his daughter Sophia were also to inherit a quarter each of the residue of his estate, subject to Samuel's wife Mary receiving a one-fifth share of the income of the estate during her lifetime. In a sentence, jarring to the modern reader, he listed items for the use of his wife, to include his household furniture, bed, bedding, linen and woolen, wrought plate, Negro wench Mary, Negro girl Fan, my bay horse and chair, two of my best cows with pasturing and wintering..., and firewood for two fires.[4]

Abstract of will of Samuel Sackett of Jamaica, New York.
Date: 26 Sep 1780.
Proved: Fort George, New York City, 28 Nov 1780, by Christopher Smith & Cary Ludlow, two of the executors, the witnesses Jacob Sharpe & Samuel Welling having been sworn at Queens County, 25 Oct 1780.

Beneficiaries:
Wife Mary, use of all household furniture, bed, bedding, linen and woolen, wrought plate, Negro wench Mary, Negro girl Fan, my bay horse and chair, two of my best cows, the horse and chair and cows conditional on her living in the Country. If she chooses to live in the City, the back part of my house in Queen's Street, New York, or if she chooses to live in the Country, £50 a year instead of the apartment in my house in New York. Also one-fifth of income of estate after following legacies to 3 sons.
Eldest son Samuel, £700 at 21 or on marriage.
Son Richard, £500 at 21 or on marriage.
Son Augustus £500 at 21 or on marriage.
Wife Mary £50 a year for each child living with their mother during their minority.
Executors to sell stock, farming utensils, and carriages, and rent out farm at Jamaica, as soon as convenient. Estate to be sold after youngest child reaches 21.
Sons Samuel, Richard, Augustus, & daughter Sophia, one-fourth part each of residue, subject to wife Mary's one-fifth share of income of estate.
Executors: relation Captain Thomas Lawrence of Newtown, friends

James Desbrosses of New York, and Christopher Smith and Cary Ludlow of Jamaica.
Witnesses: Jacob Sharpe, Charles Welling, Samuel Welling.

Elizabeth Sackett, of Newtown, Long Island, and New York City, daughter of Judge Joseph Sackett and Hannah Alsop, was born on 25 June 1729[1] and died aged 48 on 10 April 1778.[1] She married at Newtown, Long Island, on 5 October 1750, Jonathan Fish, son of Capt Samuel Fish and Agnes Berrien.[1, 2, 3, 4, 5] Jonathan was born in Newtown, Long Island, on 11 May 1728.[2, 3] Sometime before the American Revolutionary War, Jonathan and Elizabeth moved from Newtown to New York, where Jonathan became a merchant. After Elizabeth's death, Jonathan married second, in 1779, Elizabeth Whitehead, daughter of Thomas Whitehead.[3, 6] Jonathan died on 26 December 1779 a few months after his second marriage.[3]

Elizabeth was named as a beneficiary in her father's will made on 31 March 1755.

Jonathan Fish married first Elizabeth, daughter of Joseph Sackett, Oct. 5, 1750. She was born June 25, 1729 and died April 9, 1778. He then married Elizabeth, daughter of Thos. Whitehead. She died Oct. 26, 1798. Together with the other two sons of his father, Jonathan inherited a third of his father's real estate in and about Newtown, which was quite extensive. Before the Revolution he moved to New York and became a merchant, perhaps under the firm name of Berrien and Fish, with offices near Burling Slip and John Berrien as a partner. This business must have been broken up by the war. In fact, Jonathan Fish died during the war on Dec. 26, 1779, only a few months after his second marriage."

Hon Nathaniel Sackett, son of Rev Richard Sackett AM and Elizabeth Kirtland, was born in Greenwich, Fairfield County, Connecticut, on 8 June 1720.[1, 2] He died before 14 June 1761.[2, 3] He married first about 1739, Anne Bush, daughter of Justus Bush Jr.[2] Anne died about 1746.[2] He married second after 1746, Elisabeth ___. She died in Greenwich on 1 May 1758.[4, 5] He married third at Stamford, Fairfield County, on 10 August 1760, Sarah (___) Lockwood.[6, 7]

Nathaniel's children

The mother of some of Nathaniel's children has not been positively identified. These were listed by Weygant as: Richard, Sarah, Joseph, Deborah, Nathaniel, and Abigail.

Sarah married Edward Joyce in 1765 and was therefore born probably before 1746, which would make her the daughter of Anne Bush.

Deborah would appear to be the same as Deborah Sackett the daughter of Rev Samuel Sackett, and was thus incorrectly listed as a daughter of Nathaniel.

A baptism record has been found for Nathaniel, identifying him as the son of Sarah Lockwood, by then a widow.

It remains unresolved which of Nathaniel's wives, Anne Bush or Elisabeth ___, was the mother of Richard, Joseph, and/or Abigail

William Sackett, yeoman of Newtown, Long Island, son of John Sackett and Susanna Field, was born in Newtown on 29 December 1727.[1] He died there aged 74 on 28 April 1802[1, 2] and was buried at the Lawrence Cemetery, Astoria, Queens County.[3] He married in Newtown on 14 February 1748/49, Anna Lawrence, his first cousin, daughter of John Lawrence and Patience Sackett.[1, 4] Anna was born on 21 November 1731.[4, 5] She died aged 66 on 11 April 1798 and was buried at the Lawrence Cemetery, Astoria, Queens County, New York State.[3, 6, 7]

The inscription on Anna's gravestone reads

> Inscribed to perpetuate the remembrance of Anna Sackett, wife of William Sackett, who died the 11th April Anna Domini 1798; aged 66 years, 4 months & 21 days.
> "She was her husband's fond companion, her children's tender & careful parent, & the friend & support to the needy. Reader! Art though prepared to follow."

In 1790 William was living in Newtown, Long Island. In his household were three men, two boys, and two females. He also owned eleven slaves.[8]

William was listed in the 1800 census as a householder in Newtown,

Long Island.[9]

William made his will at Newtown, Long Island, on 7 June 1798. He left his farm in Newtown to his eldest son John, and his farm in Milford, Connecticut, to his son Daniel who was already established there. He also named his son Jonathan and his grandsons, William and Lawrence (sons of my son John), and Jacob B, William, and John L (sons of my son Jonathan). The will was proved on 13 May 1802.[10]

Father	366	Rev Samuel Sackett b. 1711/12, d. 1784
Mother		Hannah Hazard b. c 1712, d. after 1777

Nathaniel Sackett, son of Rev Samuel Sackett and Hannah Hazard, was born in Orange County, New York State, on 10 April 1737.[1] He died aged 68 in Sullivan County, New York State, on 28 July 1805.[1] He married on 3 January 1759, Mary Rogers, daughter of Ananias Rogers and Prudence Carle.[1, 2]

Nathaniel was named as a beneficiary in his brother James's will made at Frederickstown on 19 March 1789. He was to inherit the estate jointly with his sister Hannah, nephew Joseph, and niece Deborah, after his mother's lifetime interest.[3]

In 1790 Nathaniel was living in Fishkill, Dutchess County, New York State. In his household were three males (16+) and three females.[4] He was also listed as a householder there in 1800.[5]

Nathaniel was taxed on a house and farm in Fishkill in 1799, 1800 and 1802.[6]

During the American War of Independence Nathaniel Sackett served as a spymaster in the revolutionary cause. He was appointed by George Washington in February 1777 to obtain intelligence on the plans of the British enemy forces. His work involved the recruitment of agents and informers, behind the enemy lines, if necessary paid from a purse of $500 sanctioned by Washington.[7, 8, 9, 1011, 12, 13]

George Washington to Nathaniel Sackett, 4 February 1777

To Mr Nathl Sacket
Sir,
The advantage of obtaining the earliest and best Intelligence of the designs of the Enemy, the good character given of you by Colo Duer, and your capacity for an undertaking of this kind, have induced me to entrust the management of this business to your care till further orders on this head.
For your own trouble in this business I agree, on behalf of the Public, to allow you Fifty Dollars pr Kallendar Month, and herewith give you a warrant upon the Paymaster Genl for the sum of Five hundred Dollars to pay those whom you may find necessary to Imploy in the transaction of this business, an acct of the disbursements of which you are to render to me.
Given at Head Quarters at Morristown this 4th day of Feby
1777
G Washington

Nathaniel was recommended to General Washington by William Duer, a Continental Congressman, with whom Nathaniel served on the New York committee for detecting and defeating conspiracies.[14]

I beg Leave to introduce to your Excellency's Acquaintance Mr Sacket, a member of the Convention of the State, a Man of Honor, and of firm Attachment to the American Cause.

> He will communicate to your Excellency some Measures taken by him, and myself which if properly prosecuted may be of infinite Utility to the present military Operations. I have therefore recommended it to him to wait on you in Person in hope that some Systematical Plan may be adopted and prosecuted for facilitating your Manoeuvres against the British army.

Doubtless aware of the risk of the misdirection of letters by untrustworthy intermediaries both Duer and Washington were careful not to put too much in writing. Duer's cautionary, "to say more in a letter might be imprudent", was echoed in Washington's reply.[15, 16]

> I had the pleasure of receiving yours of the 28th January by Mr Sacket, who communicated to me the measures which had been planned by you and him, for forwarding the military operations on your side, and which I most sincerely wish had been carried into Execution.
> I shall say but little to you by way of Letter, as I shall communicate my sentiments in a Confidential Manner to Mr Sacket.

Taking his instructions personally from Washington, Nathaniel set up an intelligence-gathering network in the New York area. He was soon reporting information gathered in the field to Duer and through him to Washington. A letter of 25 February 1777 reveals the nature of the intelligence-gathering, including the information—.[17]

"That from Intelligence from Huntington by a letter Directed to Corpl Jarvis from his wife at said place, there were three Companies of Tories stationed at that place (but not a Man to the Eastward) and about 10 or 12 Regular Officers without any men and that these Tory officers Distress the Friends of American Liberty much."
and
"That Edmund Fanning had agreed with some shoe makers in Easthampton to make 3 or 400 pairs of shoes for the Ministerial Army saying that the Rebels had taken a Considerable Number from them and that they were almost Barefooted."

The cryptic style of letter-writing was continued by Duer in a detailed report to Washington a few days later, and in Washington's reply to Duer.[14, 18, 16]

Mr S, who was lately with your Excellency, to conferr a Certain Matter, hinted at in my last Letter, requests me to inform you that Matters are in a proper Train for Executing the Business proposed on a Regular System. I flatter myself great Benefits will be derived from it.

I am glad Mr S's plan is nearly compleated and I am persuaded the benefits resulting from it will be great. The sooner it can be executed, the more beneficial it will be.

As well as his role as a spy, Nathaniel Sackett's voice carried considerable weight as a member of the General Committee of Safety. In a letter to General McDougall in March 1777 (which letter McDougall forwarded to Washington), Nathaniel presented arguments, on behalf of the committee, for the redeployment of Colonel Livingston's regiment to fill a gap in the defences.[19]

> ... unless we should have a New Supply of Troops thrown in before that time, this whole County will be Defended with only 80 or 90 men; exposed to an attack from 4 or 500 of our Enemies which are already in Possession of a small part of the County, and it's Impossible to know the Number of our Internal Enemies. The Tories already appear Insolent and there is not the least doubt but the Enemy will have the earliest Intelligence of our Situations. These Arguments we are of opinion are Cogent and Conclusive and submit the Expediency of ordering Col^{o} Livingston with his Regiment Immediately to the lower part of this County — shall be much obliged to you for an Immediate answer.

At a later stage in the war, in May 1782, Nathaniel was appointed as a sutler to the Continental Army. Nathaniel's undoubted organizational abilities were evidently complemented by diplomatic skills—a note of thanks to Nathaniel for a cheese being found amongst Washington's papers of October 1782.[20, 16]

> George Washington, 13 May 1782, General Orders
> Head Quarters Newburgh Monday May 13. 1782
> Parole . . . CSigns.
> Mr Nathaniel Sackett has obtained permission from the Commander in Chief to Suttle to the Army untill further orders, upon conforming to the regulations for Conducting that business which will be pointed out to him by the Quarter Master General.

In August 1785 Nathaniel proposed to Congress the establishment of a new state in the west on lands bounded by Lake Erie and the Ohio, Scioto, and Muskingum rivers "for the relief of all our distressed and neglected citizens". Congress was not persuaded of the merits of the scheme, but Nathaniel persevered and gained 340 supporting signatures and presented the plan again on 28 December. However, the proposal again failed to find favor.[21]

Tuesday 1st November 1785
A Mr. Sacket from Tygers Valley on the Monongahela, and another person came here before Dinner and shewed me some propositions they had to make to Congress for a large territory of Country West of the Ohio, which I discouraged them from offering, as I was sure they never would be acceded to by that body.

In May 1789 Nathaniel unsuccessfully solicited George Washington for a position in the new federal government.[22]
A Continental Army hut, reassembled at the New Windsor Cantonment Historic Site, Orange County, New York, is said to have been bought by Nathaniel Sackett at an auction ordered by General Washington to help pay the army's debts. The hut was used for nearly 150 years at nearby Mountainville, where it formed part of a larger home.[23]

Captain Samuel Sackett, of Westchester County, New York, son of Rev Samuel Sackett and Hannah Hazard, was born on 10 July 1749.[1] He died aged 30 on 15 April 1780[1] and was buried at the First Presbyterian Church Cemetery, Yorktown, Westchester County, New York State.[2]

Samuel Sackett served in the American Revolutionary War. He was appointed a First Lieutenant of the New York line on 28 June 1775 and assigned to duty with the 4th Regiment. He participated in the taking of Montreal and was promoted to Captain for gallantry. Samuel was severely wounded in action at Quebec. He was nursed by nuns for several months before removing to Albany and then to Crompond, but he never regained his health and died withiin a few years. He was unmarried.[1]

The orderly books of the Fourth New York Regiment show that Captain Samuel Sackett served as a member of several courts martial: at a brigade court martial held in camp on 9 November 1778 he was one of ten members; he sat again on 17 February 1780 as an officer of the Second Maryland Brigade.[3]

A diarist in the regiment noted that on "Wednesday 14th [July 1779] Capt Sacket went to the Country to recover his Health."[3]

After Samuel's death, the following regimental orders were issued.[3]

Hannah Sackett, daughter of Rev Samuel Sackett and Hannah Hazard, was born in 1751.[1] She died aged about 85 in 1836.[1] She married first in 1768, Stephen De Lancey, son of James De Lancey.[1] They were divorced by 1779. She married second on 16 October 1779, Isaac Baldwin, son of Isaac Baldwin and Ann Collins.[1] Isaac was born in 1753 and died aged about 65 in Pompey, Onondaga County, New York State, in 1818.[1]

Hannah and her first husband Stephen De Lancey found themselves on opposite sides during the American Revolutionary War. De Lancey with others of his family were staunch Royalists. Hannah supported the American cause, as did the rest of the Sacketts, in particular her brothers, Samuel a captain in the 4th New York regiment and a war hero, and Nathaniel who was General Washington's spymaster.

Hannah was named as a beneficiary in her brother James's will made at Frederickstown on 19 March 1789. She was to inherit the estate jointly with her brother Nathaniel, nephew Joseph, and niece Deborah, after her mother's lifetime interest.[2]

516 Captain Daniel Sacket

(1734/35 - 1824)

Line 3 Daniel[L], John[K], John[J], Simon[I], Thomas[H], Thomas[G]

Father	369	Daniel Sacket b. 1693, d. 1776
Mother		Mary Weller b. c 1707, d. 1789

Captain Daniel Sacket, son of Daniel Sacket and Mary Weller, was born in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 6 March 1734/35.[1, 2, 3] He died aged 89 in Pittsfield, Berkshire County, Massachusetts, on 20 April 1824.[1, 4, 5, 6] He married first in 1755, ___ ___.[1] He married second in Westfield on 13 May 1762, Rebecca Gillet.[7, 8, 9] She died there on 18 December 1767.[7, 8] He married third in Westfield on 22 September 1768, Mehitable (Cadwell) Dewey, daughter of Abel Cadwell and Ann Dwight, and widow of Ashbel Dewey.[7, 10] Mehitable was born in Westfield on 7 December 1740[11] and died aged 88 in Pittsfield on 19 November 1829.[12]

Daniel Sackett served as a captain in the American Revolutionary War. Several members of his family served under his command: his brothers Ozem Sacket and Lieutenant Abner Sacket, and his cousins Captain Adnah Sacket and Ezra Sacket.[13, 14]

In 1790 Daniel was living in Pittsfield, Berkshire County, Massachusetts. In his household were four men, one boy, and four females.[15]

Daniel was received into full communion in the First Church of Christ, Pittsfield, on 22 September 1799. His wife Mehitable had been received into the church on 27 August 1791.[16, 17]

Daniel was listed in the census in 1800, 1810, and 1820 as a householder in Pittsfield.[18, 19, 20] On 28 February 1810 Captain Daniel was one of eight members of the First Church voting unanimously to suspend certain members who had signed a paper of separation from the church.[21]

Records for two of Daniel's sons, Alanson and Elijah, listed in The Sacketts of America, have not been found, and it is not known which of Daniel's wives would have been their mother.

517 Ozem Sacket

(1736/37 - 1801)

Line 3 Daniel[L], John[K], John[J], Simon[I], Thomas[H], Thomas[G]

Father	369	Daniel Sacket b. 1693, d. 1776
Mother		Mary Weller b. c 1707, d. 1789

Ozem Sacket, son of Daniel Sacket and Mary Weller, was born in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 24 January 1736/37[1, 2, 3] and baptized at the Church of Christ, Westfield, on 6 February 1737.[4] He died aged 64 in Westfield on 17 June 1801.[1, 5] He married in Westfield on 5 May 1763, Mercy Weller, daughter of Jonathan Weller and Mary Bridgeman.[1, 6, 7] Mercy was born about 1745[8] and died aged 67 in Westfield on 4 May 1812.[9]

Ozem served as a sergeant in the American Revolutionary War in his brother Captain Daniel Sacket's Company.[10]

In 1790 Ozem was living in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts. In his household were three men, three boys, and three females.[11]

Ozem made his will at Westfield on 26 June 1799, naming his wife Mercy, and his children, Jonathan, Mercy, Sophia, Aaron, Warham, Ozem, Charles, and Harriet. After providing for Mercy's widow's third, he left specified lands to his sons, Jonathan, Aaron, Ozem, and Charles, a sum of $168 to his son Warham, and sums of money or money's worth in household goods to his daughters, Mercy, Sophia, and Harriet. In detailing the lands to go to each son, Ozem revealed that his home lot was bordered to the east by his brother Gad's home lot and to the west by his brother Moses's lot, perhaps indicating an earlier subdivision of lands.

Ozem was listed in the 1800 census as a householder in Westfield.[12]

Abstract of will of Ozem Sacket of Westfield, Massachusetts.
Date: 26 Jun 1799.

(1743 - 1813)

Line 3 Daniel[L], John[K], John[J], Simon[I], Thomas[H], Thomas[G]

Father	369	Daniel Sacket b. 1693, d. 1776
Mother		Mary Weller b. c 1707, d. 1789

Moses Sacket, son of Daniel Sacket and Mary Weller, was born in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 29 November 1743[1, 2, 3] and baptized at the Church of Christ, Westfield, in January 1744.[4] He died aged 69 in Westfield on 4 January 1813.[5] He married in Westfield on 1 November 1770, Eunice Cadwell.[6, 7, 8] Eunice was born on 28 May 1749[9] and died aged 93 in Westfield on 20 November 1842.[10, 11, 12]

In 1790 Moses was living in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts. In his household were one man, three boys, and four females.[13]

Moses was listed in the 1800 and 1810 censuses as a householder in Westfield.[14, 15]

Moses made his will in Westfield on 17 April 1812. The will was proved in about May 1813. After allowing his wife Eunice her "widow's third" during her lifetime (which right she waived by letter to the Probate Court on 20 May 1813), Moses left his estate to his children in amounts varying from $1 to $800 each.

Moses had provided for Philena, Martin, Olive, John, and Heman, presumably in the form of lands in the case of the sons, during his lifetime. Bequests to them ranged from $1 to $150. His other children, who had not been similarly provided for, were to receive full portions, $60 each to daughters Frances and Roxana, and $800 each to sons Erastus and Israel.

Moses' estate was valued at some $2,500, including a total of 87 acres of lands worth about $1,800.[16]

Moses's widow Eunice was listed in the census in 1820 as a householder in Westfield.[17]

536 Zavan Sacket Sr

(1751 - 1840)

Line 3 Isaac[L], John[K], John[J], Simon[I], Thomas[H], Thomas[G]

Father	374	Isaac Sacket b. 1703/04, d. 1773
Mother		Elizabeth Shepard b. 1712

Zavan Sacket Sr, son of Isaac Sacket and Elizabeth Shepard, was born in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 28 April 1751[1, 2, 3] and baptized at the Church of Christ, Westfield, on 2 September 1751.[4] He died aged 89 in Crawford County, Pennsylvania, on 26 October 1840[5] and was buried at Greendale Cemetery, Meadville, Crawford County.[6] He married first in Westfield on 31 May 1778, Miriam Brooks.[7, 8, 9] He married second in Southampton, Hampshire County, Massachusetts, on 6 February 1779, Abigail Bills.[1, 10] Abigail was born about 1759.[11] She died aged 83 on 15 October 1842 and was buried at Greendale Cemetery.[12]

Zavan served as a private in the American Revolutionary War. In a 1801 tax list he was listed as Lt Zaven Sackett.[6, 13]

In 1790 Zavan was living in Norwich, Hampshire County, Massachusetts. In his household were one man, five boys, and three females.[14]

Zavan was assessed for State and Town taxes in Huntington (formerly Norwich) from 1797 to 1815.[15]

Zavan was listed in the census in 1800 and 1810 as a householder in Norwich, Hampshire County, Massachusetts.[16, 17]

He removed from Massachusetts to Pennsylvania sometime between 1815 and 1820 and was listed in the census in 1820, 1830, and 1840 as a householder in Mead, Crawford County.[18], [19], [20]

He was listed in the 1841 census of Revolutionary War pensioners. At the reference date of 1 June 1840, he was living in Mead, Crawford County, and, according to the record, was aged 91. He was actually 89.[21]

(1750 - 1834)

Line 3 Eliakim[L], John[K], John[J], Simon[I], Thomas[H], Thomas[G]

Father	376	Eliakim Sacket b. 1712, d. 1764
Mother		Bethesda Fowler b. 1717

Ezra Sacket, son of Eliakim Sacket and Bethesda Fowler, was born in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 15 November 1750[1, 2, 3] and baptized at the Church of Christ, Westfield, on 6 January 1751.[4] He died aged 83 in Westfield on 6 April 1834.[1, 5] He married first in Westfield in 1776, Ann Newton.[6, 7] He married second in Westfield on 14 February 1779, Lydia Lovering.[1, 8, 9] She was born about 1750[10] and died aged 80 in Westfield on 12 April 1831.[11]

Ezra was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made in Westfield on 5 July 1764. He was left a sum of £450.

Ezra served as a private in the American Revolutionary War in his cousin Captain Daniel Sacket's Company (7th Company, Hampshire County (Massachusetts) Regiment.)[12]

In 1790 Ezra was living in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts. In his household were one man, two boys, and five females.[13]

Ezra was listed in the census in 1800, 1810 and 1820 as a householder in Westfield.[14, 15, 16]

Ezra made his will in Westfield on 1 March 1834. He left sums of $1 to his daughters, Lydia, Charlotte, and Electa, and to his son Ezra. His daughter Julia was to receive $3, daughter Clarissa $20, and daughter Olive $30. He left his brass kettle to his daughter-in-law Abigail, wife of son

Charles. The real estate was to go to his sons, Charles and Roland. The will was proved at the Hampden County Probate Court on 3 June 1834. However, it was found that claims against the estate, amounting to $807, rendered the estate insolvent. The Court appointed Commissioners on 4 December 1834. Ezra's real estate comprised mostly 200 acres of mountain land valued at $800. This was presumably sold to pay the creditors, recorded on 2 June 1835 at a slightly lower figure of $733.[17]

Abstract of Will of Ezra Sacket of Westfield, Hampden County.
Date: 1 Mar 1834.
Proved: Hampden County Probate Court, 3 Jun 1834.
Beneficiaries:

Hannah Sacket, daughter of Joseph Sacket and Abigail Bigelow, was born in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 10 October 1726[1, 2, 3] and baptized at the Church of Christ, Westfield, on 30 October 1726.[4] She probably died young.

Weygant, in The Sacketts of America, identified this Hannah Sacket with a marriage in 1750 to Jacob Noble. However the subject of that marriage would be Hannah Sacket the daughter of William Sacket and Hannah Bagg, identified in her father William's will as Hannah Noble.

Father	381	Jonathan Sacket b. 1696/97, d. 1773
Mother		Anne Filer b. c 1705, d. 1787

Jonathan Sacket, son of Jonathan Sacket and Anne Filer, was born in Hebron, Tolland County, Connecticut, on 26 December 1727.[1, 2] He died aged 49 in Warren, Litchfield County, Connecticut, on 3 April 1777[2] and was buried at the Old Cemetery, Warren.[3] He married at Hebron on 10 November 1748, Hannah Phelps, daughter of Noah Phelps and Ann Dyer.[2, 4] Hannah was born in Hebron on 28 February 1726/27. She died in 1803.[2]

Jonathan was a founding, covenanting, member of the Congregational Church in Warren, attending the first "gathering" of the new church, held on 22 September 1756, probably at his father's home. His wife Hannah also "owned the covenant" by the end of that year. She was admitted to the church in Warren by letter from Hebron on 2 January 1757. Jonathan and Hannah were recorded in Warren church records as members in full communion in the Church of Christ, East Greenwich, on 29 June 1757 and 18 March 1772.[5, 6, 7]

Jonathan was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made in Kent, Litchfield County, Connecticut, on 12 June 1772. He was left £3 to be paid to him by his brother Justus and £4 to be paid to him by his brother Reuben. Jonathan's father had already left land to him in 1749, soon after his marriage.[8]

Deacon & Captain Justus Sacket, of Warren, Litchfield County, Connecticut, son of Jonathan Sacket and Anne Filer, was born in Hebron, Connecticut, on 9 March 1729/30.[1, 2] He died aged 85 in Warren on 16 March 1815[2, 3] and was buried at the Old Cemetery, Warren.[4, 5, 6] He married in Kent, Litchfield County, Connecticut, on 1 January 1756, Lydia Newcomb, 1738-1808, daughter of Benjamin Newcomb and Hannah Clark.[7, 2] Lydia was born about 1731.[8] She died aged 77 in Warren on 16 November 1808[2, 9] and was buried at the Old Cemetery, Warren.[10]

Justus was commissioned Captain of the Second Train Band of Kent (Warren), Connecticut, in 1765, and served in the American Revolutionary War.[11]

Justus was a founding, covenanting, member at the first "gathering" of the Congregational Church at Warren in 1756, and was a deacon of the church. In 1776, when the congregation decided to build a proper church meeting house to replace the old schoolhouse, he was sent to the General Court "to git a committee to Stake A place to Set sd house."[12, 13, 14, 15]

Justus was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made in Kent, Litchfield County, Connecticut, on 12 June 1772. He was left half the house and barn and all the farm stock after specific bequests to his mother.[16]

Captain Justus, then a member of the East Greenwich Church, filed a complaint at the First Congregational Church, Kent, against Ebenezer Pack on 15 December 1773.[17]

Justus was named as a beneficiary in his mother's will made in Litchfield County, Connecticut, in June 1783. He was left a one-third share of her estate.

In 1790 Justus was living in Warren, Litchfield County, Connecticut. In his household were three men, and three females.[18]

Justus was listed in the census in 1800 and 1810 as a householder in Warren.[19], [20]

In February 1814 Justus, then 83, suffered a fall, breaking a thigh, as described by his nephew Alexander Sackett writing in August 1814 from Warren to Dr Samuel Sackett (Alexander's brother) in Pennsylvania.

> Unkle Justus is living and intended to go to New Connecticut this next fall but has yet to see his Son Salmon who lives there he lives in the town of Tallmadge but Unkle has net with a great misfortune. in the month of February last (I think it was) he was walking just out of doors when his feet Slipped from under him and as he fell he broke one of his thies so that he has not been able to walk one step on that leg Since nor is it likely that he ever will again for the bones do not unite and the soreness is gone so there is a large place in the thy, he can walk with Crutches if some body will Steady him. he has been to meeting several times this Summer They lift him in and out of the Waggon and So they Convey him to the Meetinghouse and back again, Unkle retains his Mental faculdies remarkably well. Unkles Children are all living, except Lydia, and well except Minervy. She has a feble Constitution, they are doing well — it is a general time of health here tho there is some Exceptions and some deaths.

(1732 - 1803)

Line 3 Jonathan[L], William[K], John[J], Simon[I], Thomas[H], Thomas[G]

Father	381	Jonathan Sacket b. 1696/97, d. 1773
Mother		Anne Filer b. c 1705, d. 1787

Reuben Sackett, son of Jonathan Sacket and Anne Filer, was born in Hebron, Tolland County, Connecticut, on 17 June 1732.[1, 2] He died aged 71 in Warren, Litchfield County, Connecticut, on 5 July 1803[2, 3, 4] and was buried at the Old Cemetery, Warren.[5] He married in Kent (later Warren), Litchfield County, on 21 December 1752, Mercy Finney, daughter of Dr John Finney and Ann Toogood.[2, 6, 7, 8] Mercy was born in Swansea, Bristol County, Massachusetts, on 1 January 1729/30.[7] She died aged 75 in Sharon, Litchfield County, on 23 January 1805[9, 10, 11] and was buried at Hillside Cemetery, Sharon.[10, 12]

Reuben and Mercy were admitted to membership of the Congregational Church of Christ, Warren, on 31 August 1760.[13] They were listed on 18 March 1772 as members of the Church of Christ, East Greenwich, Fairfield County, Connecticut.[14]

Reuben was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made in Kent, Litchfield County, Connecticut, on 12 June 1772.[15]

During the American Revolutionary War, Reuben was a selectman and a member of a committee involved in patriotic service in Kent (Warren.)[16]

Reuben was named as a beneficiary in his mother's will made in Litchfield County, Connecticut, in June 1783. He was left a one-third share of her estate.

In 1790 Reuben was living in Warren, Litchfield County, Connecticut. In his household were one man, one boy, and three females.[17]

Reuben was listed in the 1800 census as a householder in Warren.[18]

Reuben made his will in Warren on 19 March 1800. He provided for his wife Mercy during her lifetime. Of their children, three sons, Samuel, Aaron, and Cyrus, were living elsewhere. Reuben effectively left his estate to Alexander, the remaining son, conditional on his paying monetary amounts to his brothers, but with the option of a division of the estate should any of the brothers return within ten years. The personal estate, other than the household furniture, some livestock, and the use of the home lot, which was reserved to Reuben's widow, was divided up between Alexander and his three sisters, Aner, Mercy Lucinda, and Violitty, by voluntary agreement ratified at Court.[19]

From 1 January 1801, Reuben and Mercy were again members of the Congregational Church of Christ in Warren.[20]

Reuben's widow Mercy made her will in Warren, Connecticut, on 16 October 1804. Beneficiaries were her children, named as Samuel, Aroon, Sirus, Alexander, Anar Williams, Lucinda Fuller, and Voilet Beats. The first three, Samuel, Aaron, and Cyrus, were living some way away and would receive their inheritance if they returned and made claim within five years.

Hannah Sacket, daughter of William Sacket and Hannah Bagg, was born in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 6 July 1725.[1, 2, 3] She died aged 74 on 13 October 1799.[1] She married at Westfield on 8 May 1750, Jacob Noble.[1, 4, 5]

Hannah was named as a beneficiary in her father's will made at Westfield on 9 November 1752. She was named as Hannah Noble and was left a farm of about 50 or 60 acres at Munhard River.

Weygant, in The Sacketts of America, identified the wife of Jacob Noble as Hannah Sacket, the daughter of Joseph Sacket and Abigail Bigelow. However the will of William Sacket, in naming his daughter as Hannah Noble, provides evidence that it was his daughter who was the subject of that marriage.

(1730 - 1802)

Line 3 William[L], Samuel[K], John[J], Simon[I], Thomas[H], Thomas[G]

Father	382	William Sacket b. 1700, d. 1755
Mother		Hannah Bagg b. say 1700

William Sacket, son of William Sacket and Hannah Bagg, was born in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 7 September 1730[1, 2, 3] and baptized at the Church of Christ, Westfield, on 25 April 1731.[4] He died aged 71 in Westfield on 2 February 1802.[1, 5, 6] He married in Westfield on 10 January 1760, Lydia Weller, daughter of Jonathan Weller and Mary Bridgeman.[1, 5, 7, 8] Lydia was born in 1739[9] and died aged 89 in Westfield on 17 May 1828.[10]

William was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made at Westfield on 9 November 1752. He was appointed executor and was left the residue of the estate after bequests to his mother and sister.

William Sacket served as a private in the American Revolutionary War.[11]

In 1790 William was living in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts. In his household were four white males (16+), three white males under 16, one white female, and one other free person.[12]

William was listed in the 1800 census as a householder in Westfield.[13]

William made his will in Westfield on 24 January 1797. His wife Lydia, was to receive, in addition to the "widow's third", all the household furniture, William's black mare with side saddle, a cow, and $50 in cash. He left specified lots of land to his daughters: two lots totalling 51 acres to Molly, and one lot of 64 acres to Lydia. The remainder of his estate was to be divided equally among his sons, William, Moses, Royal, Joel, James, and John. In a codicil dated 25 June 1799, he directed that Royal's share was to be divided equally among Royal's children, perhaps indicating that Royal had been taken ill by that date (Royal died aged 34 a few years later). Probate was granted to William's son James as executor on 2 March 1802.[14]

Abstract of will of William Sacket of Westfield, Hampshire County, Massachusetts.
Date: 24 Jan 1797.
Beneficiaries:
Wife Lydia, use of one-third of real estate during lifetime, one-third of personal estate absolutely, all household furniture, my black mare & side saddle, one cow, & $50 cash.

Dau Lydia Noble, one lot of 64 acres in new addition, & $10.
Six sons, William, Moses, Royal, Joel, James & John, rest of estate, real & personal, in equal shares.
Appraisers: Col James Taylor, Joseph Root.
Executors: sons William & James.
Witnesses: Sam Mather, James Taylor, Azariah Mosley.
Codicil 25 Jun 1799.
Son Royal's share of estate to be divided equally among Royal's children.
Witnesses: Sam Mather, Jacob Noble, Azariah Moseley.
Probate: 2 Mar 1802, to executor James Sacket, William Sacket having declined to act as executor.

John Sackett, yeoman of Northwood, St Peter in Thanet, Kent, son of Henry Sackett and Elizabeth Clifford, was baptized at Birchington, Kent, on 20 December 1743.[1] He died aged 83 in St Peter in Thanet on 11 March 1827 and was buried at St Peter in Thanet on 17 March 1827.[2, 3, 4] He married at St John in Thanet on 19 May 1773, Catherine Andrews.[5] Catherine was born about 1753.[6] She died aged 78 in St Peter in Thanet on 9 October 1831 and was buried at St Peter in Thanet on 15 October 1831.[3, 4, 7]

John made his will in St Peter in Thanet, Kent, on 26 April 1823, naming as beneficiaries his wife Catherine, his sons Vincent, John, and Jeremiah, his daughters Elizabeth, Mary, and Ann, and his grandson Edward Sackett.[8] John left a house and garden at Northwood to each of his daughters Elizabeth and Mary. Bequests to his daughter Ann and sons, John and Jeremiah, were in the form of the waiving of existing loans. His son Vincent was left the residue of the real and personal estate. John's widow Catherine was to be maintained by half-yearly payments from each of her children. John's will named only one of his many grandchildren; his grandson Edward was left an amount of £30, his being singled out perhaps suggesting that he was a godson.

584 Jeremiah Sackett

Line 3 Henry[L], Thomas[K], Thomas[J], John[I], George[H], Thomas[G]

Father 388 Henry Sackett b. 1710/11, d. 1790
Mother Elizabeth Clifford b. c 1709, d. 1786

Jeremiah Sackett, son of Henry Sackett and Elizabeth Clifford, was baptized at Birchington, Kent, on 18 March 1749/50.[1] He died aged 89 in St Peter in Thanet, Kent, on 17 July 1838[2] and was buried there on 21 July 1838.[3, 4] He married at St Lawrence in Thanet on 7 January 1779, Hannah Newing, daughter of Margaret Newing.[5, 6] Hannah was born about 1761.[7] She died aged 55 in St Peter in Thanet on 13 July 1816 and was buried there on 17 July 1816.[4, 8]

Jeremiah signed the parish register at St Lawrence Church on 22 July 1783 as churchwarden.[9]

Jeremiah made his will in Northwood, St Lawrence in Thanet, Kent, on 12 March 1838, naming as beneficiaries his sons Benjamin and Edward, his grandson Benjamin Sackett Cox, his brother Edward, and his great-niece Ann Robson Darby.[10] Jeremiah owned three adjoining houses at Sackett's Hill, St Peter's. He left these, one each to his sons Benjamin and Edward, and the third to his sons jointly. He also owned three houses at Northwood, one which he occupied, and two which were untenanted. It would appear that Jeremiah's brother Edward lived with Jeremiah, as did their great niece, Ann Robson Darby, who served as housekeeper. Jeremiah left the house "nearest the Queen's highway" to his grandson Benjamin Sackett Cox, Benjamin to pay a sum of £6 to Ann Robson Darby. The other two houses were left to Jeremiah's sons, Benjamin and Edward, on condition that they allow Jeremiah's brother, Edward ("who cannot long survive me"), and great niece, Ann Darby, to live in the middle house. They were also to support the aged Edward and Ann with weekly maintenance payments.

Of Jeremiah and Hannah's twelve children only two, Benjamin and Edward, survived their parents. Nine children died in infancy or childhood. A daughter, Hannah, lived to adulthood and was married with two children, but died aged 22.

(1743 - 1813)

Line 3 John[L], Thomas[K], Thomas[J], John[I], George[H], Thomas[G]

Father	390	John Sackett b. 1714/15, d. 1798
Mother		Mary Austin b. c 1715, d. 1762

Ambrose Sackett, shipwright and lighter builder, son of John Sackett and Mary Austin, was baptized at St John in Thanet, Kent, on 24 April 1743.[1] He died aged 70 on 25 August 1813 and was buried there on 1 September 1813.[2, 3] He was unmarried.

Ambrose Sackett established, with his brother Henry, the firm of A & H Sackett, Lighterbuilders, of Rotherhithe. The business was evidently very successful. The brothers accumulated significant wealth and were to describe themselves in later life as "gentlemen". They were both much involved in the Company of Shipwrights.

Ambrose began his working life in 1757 at the age of 14 as an apprentice to Meridith Bishop, a shipwright and citizen of London. The fee paid for his apprenticeship was a nominal one penny, suggesting a family or other strong connection with the Bishops. He would have completed his seven-year apprenticeship at age 21. Five years later, in 1769, he was made free by servitude, becoming a citizen and shipwright of the City of London.[4] Once qualified, Ambrose himself took a number of apprentices, the first of these, in 1777, being his cousin Thomas Sackett.[5] On 15 July 1779 he took Henry Stokes of St Lawrence as an apprentice.[6]

The records of the Shipwrights' Company show Ambrose paying quarterage (membership fees) from 1777 to 1810. He was elected an Assistant of the Company in 1784 and, in 1791, was elected as Steward for the next Lord Major's Day. Ambrose and Henry were listed in the Universal British Directory of 1791 under Livery of London, Shipwright's Company, as lighter builders of 52 Rotherhithe.[7] After the brothers' deaths the business was carried on under the name of Sackett & Stokes, "near the Church", Rotherhithe.[8]

Ambrose was named as a beneficiary in his brother Henry's will made in Kennington Green, Lambeth, Surrey, on 15 June 1807. He was left a sum of £200 and was appointed an executor of Henry's will and trustee of various funds. In the event, Ambrose predeceased his brother.[9]

Ambrose made his will in St John in Thanet on 6 February 1808, naming as beneficiaries his brother (and business partner) Henry, his nephew John Henry Sackett, his nieces Ann Sackett and Mary Sackett, and his great nephews Henry John Preston and Henry Benjamin Walmsley.[10] Ambrose left a substantial estate of nearly £2,500 in personalty as well as his real estate. The main beneficiary was his brother Henry—Ambrose's only surviving sibling, but who was himself to survive Ambrose by less than 18 months. He was left all Ambrose's real estate and £800 in Government stock. Henry was left a further £500 in stock for the benefit of his son John Henry Sackett "to set him up in business". Each of Henry's surviving daughters, Ann and Mary, was also left an amount of £500 in stocks. Ambrose remembered with bequests of £20 his great nephews, Henry Preston and Henry Walmsley, respectively the sons of Ann and Mary.

Mother		Mary Austin b. c 1715, d. 1762

Henry Sackett, shipwright of Bermondsey, Surrey, son of John Sackett and Mary Austin, was baptized at St John in Thanet, Kent, on 19 May 1745.[1] He died aged 70 in St John in Thanet on 5 February 1815 and was buried there on 15 February 1815.[2, 3] He married first at St Mary Magdalen, Bermondsey, Surrey, on 18 March 1770, Ann Terry.[4, 5] Ann was born on 26 May 1746 and baptized at St Mary Magdalen on 19 July 1765 as an adult.[6] He married second at St Mary Magdalen on 9 January 1787, Hannah Foott.[7, 8] Hannah was born about 1756.[9] She died aged 33 following the birth of her son John Henry and was buried at St Mary Magdalen on 3 August 1789.[10] Her son was baptized four days later.

Henry Sackett was engaged, with his brother Ambrose, in the firm of A & H Sackett, Lighterbuilders, of Rotherhithe. The business was evidently very successful. The brothers accumulated significant wealth and were to describe themselves in later life as "gentlemen". They were both much involved in the Company of Shipwrights.

Henry took on an apprentice shipwright, Thomas Courthope, in 1792[11], and on 25 February 1796 took on John Sackett, son of his cousin John Sackett, husbandman of St Peter in Thanet.[12]

Henry and Ambrose were listed in the Universal British Directory of 1791 under Livery of London, Shipwright's Company, as lighter builders of 52 Rotherhithe. Henry was also listed as a lighter builder in Holden's Triennial Directory of 1805–07.[13, 14] After the brothers' deaths the business was carried on under the name of Sackett & Stokes, "near the Church", Rotherhithe.[15]

Henry made his will in Kennington Green, Lambeth, Surrey, on 15 June 1807, naming as beneficiaries his son John, his daughters Ann and Mary, and his brother Ambrose.[16] Henry left a substantial estate. Two trust funds were set up, the first of £2,000 for the benefit of his daughter Mary during her lifetime and subsequently for the benefit of her children. The second fund, to comprise a further £2,000, the proceeds of sale of all land and property, and the balance of personalty after other bequests, was for the benefit equally of his three children, John Henry, Ann, and Mary. Henry left an amount of £200 to his brother and business partner, Ambrose. In the event, Ambrose predeceased Henry and a large bequest from Ambrose would have been added to Henry's estate.

Henry was named as a beneficiary in his brother Ambrose's will made in St John in Thanet on 6 February 1808. He was to inherit all Ambrose's real estate and an amount of £800 in Government stocks. He was an executor of the will.[17]

In 1813, Henry was granted administration of the estate of his father who had died intestate in 1798.[18]

Father 391 William Sackett b. 1717, d. 1805

Thomas Sackett, shipwright of Rotherhithe, Surrey, son of William Sackett and Elizabeth Dawson, was born in St John in Thanet, Kent, on 19 October 1754[1] and baptized there on 27 October 1754.[1] He died aged 76 and was buried at St Mary the Virgin, Rotherhithe, on 13 March 1831.[2,3] He married first at St Mary le Bone, Middlesex, on 15 January 1787, Susanna Robbins.[4] Susanna was born about 1762.[5] She died aged 28 following the birth of her son William and was buried at St Mary the Virgin, Rotherhithe, on 5 February 1790.[6] He married second at St John Horsleydown, Bermondsey, on 17 April 1794, Martha Grant.[7] Martha was born about 1760.[5] She died aged 81 and was buried at St Mary the Virgin, Rotherhithe, on 28 May 1841.[8]

Thomas Sackett was apprenticed on 27 November 1777 to his cousin Ambrose Sackett, a shipwright, who was in business with his brother Henry.[9] Thomas would have completed his apprenticeship after seven years in 1784 although he did not take up his freedom of the Shipwright's Company until 1795.

Thomas took on a number of apprentices including his nephew William Sackett on 23 February 1797[10] and his own son Francis on 15 October 1809.[11] Others were: William Gore in 1802, James Egan in 1807, Thomas Robins in 1812, Richard Grant in 1814, James Alston in 1815.[12, 13, 14, 15, 16]

By the following year, 1820, there had evidently been a decline in the business and Thomas found himself bankrupt. There was a forced sale by auction of the extensive business premises at Mill Stairs.[17]

Anne Sackett, daughter of William Sackett and Elizabeth Dawson, was born in St John in Thanet, Kent, on 10 October 1759 and baptized there on 14 October 1759.[1]

Further records have not been found. She may have died young (the quick baptism perhaps indicating that she was not expected to survive), or she may have been the Ann Sackett who had an illegitimate son in St Peter in Thanet in 1784.

1. Birth date estimated based on John being the younger son but assumed included in 1703 census.
2. Weygant, Charles, The Sacketts of America, "268. John Sackett."
3. The wife of John Sackett MD has not yet been identified. It has been suggested that she may have been Elisabeth Masten. This was based on records of baptisms in the Dutch Reformed Church, Kingston, Ulster County, NY of Ritsert Sekket on 5 May 1734 and Ezechiel Sekket on 19 Jun 1737, sons of Jan Sekket and Elisabeth Masten.
   John Sackett MD is stated by Weygant to have had ten children, among whom were sons Richard born in Jun 1751, and Ezekial for whom he does not record a birth date. A birth date of 1737 for Ezekial would have made him 22 at marriage to Mary Atherton, recorded by Weygant to have taken place in 1759. The discrepancy in Richard's birth/baptism dates would have to be explained by there having been two Richards, the first dying in infancy or childhood before 1751.
   There is no other evidence to support a theory that John Sackett and Jan Sekket were the same, nor is there any explanation why John Sackett who, according to Weygant, was living in Dover, Dutchess County, would have had his children baptized in Kingston in the neighboring county of Ulster.

Hannah Sackett, daughter of John Sackett and Hannah Smith, was born in New Haven, Connecticut, about 1725.[1] She was baptized as an adult at the First Congregational Society, New Haven, on 30 August 1761.[2, 3] She died aged 79 in New Haven on 14 March 1804.[2, 4]

Weygant, The Sacketts of America, states that Hannah married Benjamin Richmond. That marriage is recorded to have taken place at the First Congregational Church, Killingworth, Connecticut, on 17 September 1747, followed by Hannah's admission to that church a few weeks later on 11 October. But attributing the marriage to this Hannah conflicts with the records for an adult baptism in 1761 and a death in 1804 in New Haven, both in the name Sackett, not Richmond. Another candidate for the marriage record (or for the other records) has not been found.[1, 5, 6]

(1747 - 1816)

Line 4 Joseph[L], Joseph[K], John[J]

Father 407 Joseph Sackett b. 1712, d. after 1795
Mother ___ ___

Samuel Sackett, son of Joseph Sackett and ___ ___, was born in New Haven, Connecticut, in 1747.[1] He died aged about 69 in Dutchess County, New York State, on 20 August 1816.[1] He married in 1767, Thankful Wood, daughter of John Wood.[1]

Samuel Sackett served in the American Revolutionary War in the 6th Dutchess County Regiment.[2]

In 1790 Samuel was living in Washington, Dutchess County, New York State. In his household were three men, three boys, and six females.[3]

Samuel was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made at Stanford, Dutchess County, on 20 May 1795. He was left the residue of his father's estate after other specific bequests, and was required to take care of his sister Hester.[4]

Samuel was taxed in Stanford in 1799 to 1803 on his house and farm and personal estate. His real estate was valued at $3,357, suggesting a land holding of some 2,000 acres at the then going rate.[5]

Samuel was listed in the census in 1800 and 1810 as a householder in Stanford.[6, 7]

Samuel was chairman of the Federal Republican Electors of the town of Stanford at a meeting on 17 February 1810 when it was resolved to nominate General Jonas Platt as candidate for New York State Governor.[8]

Samuel made his will in Stanford on 1 April 1812, naming as beneficiaries his wife Thankful, sons, Jehial, Samuel Jr, James, Joel and Isaac, and daughters, Hannah, Phebe, Polly, and Betsey. The will was proved at Poughkeepsie, Dutchess County, on 3 September 1816.[9]

Abstract of Will of Samuel Sacket of Stanford, Dutchess County, New York.
Date: 1 Apr 1812.
Proved: Surrogate's Court, Poughkeepsie, 3 Sep 1816.
Beneficiaries:

663 Hannah Sackett

(say 1710 -)

Hannah Sackett, of Wapping, London, was born say 1710. Her parents have not been identified. She married in St George in the East, London, on 3 April 1733, William Teguy.[1] It would seem likely that this was the same William Teguy who married Elizabeth Sackett at St Benet, Paul's Wharf, London City on 3 July 1739.

Father 445 Captain John Sackett b. 1697, d. 1753
Mother Elizabeth Mockett b. c 1704, d. 1797

Mary Sackett, daughter of Captain John Sackett and Elizabeth Mockett, was baptized at St John in Thanet, Kent, on 28 December 1729.[1] She died aged 75 and was buried at St John in Thanet on 13 July 1804.[2] She married at Holy Trinity Minories, City of London, on 12 October 1749, John Wynn, a pewterer of St John, Wapping, Middlesex.[3, 4]

Mary was named as a beneficiary in her mother's will made in Margate on 20 April 1754.[5] She was to share the residue of the estate equally with her sister Elizabeth after Elizabeth had received an additional £50 to compensate for Mary having been "better advanced and provided for" by their father John. The estate included assets in Antigua.

Mary was named as a beneficiary in the will of her unmarried sister Elizabeth Sackett, made in Margate, on 9 May 1797. She was to inherit Elizabeth's tenement in Margate and was also to receive the residue of the estate after bequests to Elizabeth's nieces Mary Swan and Mary Wynn.[6]

Father	445	Captain John Sackett b. 1697, d. 1753
Mother		Elizabeth Mockett b. c 1704, d. 1797

Elizabeth Sackett, daughter of Captain John Sackett and Elizabeth Mockett, was baptized at St John in Thanet, Kent, on 28 June 1731.[1] She died unmarried aged 66 on 7 September 1797 and was buried at St John in Thanet on 13 September 1797.[2, 3]

Elizabeth was named as a beneficiary in her mother's will made in Margate on 20 April 1754.[4] She was to share the residue of the estate equally with her sister Mary after receiving a a sum of £50 to compensate for Mary having been "better advanced and provided for" by their father John. The estate included assets in Antigua.

Elizabeth made her will in Margate on 9 May 1797.[5] She left her tenement in Margate to her widowed sister Mary. Mary was also to receive the residue of the estate after bequests to nieces Mary Swan and Mary Wynn. Niece Mary Wynn would have been the daughter of Elizabeth's sister Mary. Niece Mary Swan has not been identified.

Father 474 Joseph S Sackett b. 1715/16, d. 1798
Mother Sarah Vansant b. 1726, d. 1796

Joseph Sackett, son of Joseph S Sackett and Sarah Vansant, was born probably in Wrightstown, Bucks County, Pennsylvania, about 1762.[1] He died there aged 60 on 24 November 1822 and was buried at the Presbyterian Cemetery, Newtown, Bucks County.[2, 3, 4] He married Eleanor LaRue, daughter of Abraham LaRue and Alice Vandergrift. Eleanor was born in Oxford Township, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, about 1764.[1] She died aged 90 on 25 March 1855 and was buried at the Presbyterian Cemetery, Newtown.[3, 5]

Joseph served as a soldier in the American Revolutionary War.[2]

Joseph was assessed for tax in Wrightstown in 1786 on 85 acres of land, four horses and a cow. He was also taxed there in 1788 and 1789.[6]

In 1790 Joseph was living in Bucks County, Pennsylvania. In his household were one man, two boys, and two females.[7]

Joseph was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made in Wrightstown, Bucks County, Pennsylvania, on 21 October 1793.[8]

In 1798 Joseph was taxed on his house and land in Wrightstown. His dwelling house stood on a one-acre plot and was valued at $700. He owned 168 acres of land, valued at $3,360, on which he paid tax of $6.38. He also owned a house valued at $150 and occupied by Anthony Limehouse.[9, 10, 11]

Joseph was listed in the 1800 census as a householder in New Britain,

Bucks County, Pennsylvania.[12] In 1820 he was a householder in Wrightstown, Bucks County.[13]

Joseph's widow Eleanor left a will which was proved in Bucks County on 3 April 1855 by her son Abraham. Her estate was valued at $1,328.[14]

Joseph Sackett MD, son of Joseph Sackett and Millicent Clowes, was born on 16 February 1733/34.[1, 2] He died aged 66 in New York City on 27 July 1799[1, 2] and was buried at St Paul's Churchyard, Manhattan, New York City.[3] He married on 9 April 1752, Hannah Alsop, daughter of Richard Alsop and Elisabeth Crooke.[1, 2] Hannah was born in 1735.[1] She died aged 81 in New York City on 31 May 1817.[2] Riker, in The Annals of Newtown, stated that Joseph and Hannah had twelve children, most of them dying in infancy or childhood. He named James, Peter, Elizabeth, and Joseph. A record has since been found for another daughter, Millicent.

Joseph was named in the will, made on 2 August 1780 and proved in New York on 20 September 1784, of his unmarried aunt Johanna Clowes. He was identified as her nephew and his children, James, Peter, and Millicent, were to receive jointly one-seventh of the residue of her estate.[4]

Joseph was listed in the New York directory and register of 1796. He was a physician of 261 Water Street, New York City.[5]

Joseph made his will in New York City on 12 March 1799. He left all his real and personal estate to his wife Hannah. She was to buy a book in his memory for each of their children.[6]

Joseph's widow Hannah was listed in the New York almanack and register of 1807, living at 161 Greenwich Street, New York City.[7]

Father 484 Samuel Sackett b. 1724, d. 1780
Mother Mary Betts d. 1784

Samuel Sackett, son of Samuel Sackett and Mary Betts, was born in Jamaica, New York State, on 22 September 1765.[1] He died aged 56 in Brooklyn, New York City, on 7 March 1822[1, 2, 3] and was buried at Grace Episcopal Churchyard, Jamaica.[4] He married on 9 November 1786, Elizabeth Kissam, daughter of Daniel Kissam and Mary Betts.[1] Elizabeth was born on 25 May 1766.[5] She died aged 50 in New York City on 4 June 1816[6, 7, 8] and was buried at Grace Episcopal Churchyard.[9]

Samuel was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made at Jamaica on 26 September 1780. He was to receive a sum of £700 at age 21 together with an equal share with his siblings, Richard, Augustus, and Sophia, of the residue of the estate.[10]

Samuel was listed in the New York directory and register of 1796. He was a merchant of 190 Pearl Street.[11]

Samuel was listed in the 1810 census as a householder in Brooklyn, New York City.[12]

Sackett Street in Brooklyn, NY, was named after Samuel Sackett.[13]

Samuel made his will in Brooklyn, New York City, on 23 February 1822, naming as beneficiaries his children, Edwin, Clarence, Grenville, and Elizabeth. He made special provision for his eldest son, Edwin, who evidently suffered from a disability. His needs were to be met from an annual income of up to $250 to be administered in trust by the executors (who included his three younger siblings). The remainder of the estate was to be shared equally by the three younger children, subject to an adjustment resulting in Grenville and Elizabeth each receiving $1,500 more than Clarence, he having already been given land in Onondaga County as well as having received an expensive education. The will was proved at the Surrogate's Court, Flatbush, Kings County, on 22 March 1822.[10]

Augustus Sacket (1769–1827)

Augustus Sacket, lawyer, soldier, businessman, founder of the village of Sackets Harbor, son of Samuel Sackett and Mary Betts, was born in New York City on 10 November 1769.[1] He died aged 57 in Albany, New York State, on 22 April 1827[1, 2, 3] and was buried at Lakeside Cemetery, Sacket's Harbor, Jefferson County, New York State. He married in Catskill, Greene County, New York State, on 19 January 1795, Minerva Camp.[1, 4] She was born in 1780.[5] She died aged about 57 in 1837[5] and was buried at Lakeside Cemetery, Sacket's Harbor.

Augustus was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made at Jamaica on 26 September 1780. He was to receive a sum of £500 at age 21 together with an equal share with his siblings, Samuel, Richard, and Sophia, of the residue of the estate.[6]

In 1790 Augustus was living in New York City Dock Ward, New York City. In his household were two white males.[7]

Augustus was listed in the New York directory and register of 1796. He was an attorney of 3 Gold Street, New York City.[8]

Augustus was listed in the 1800 census as a householder in New York City.[9] In 1810 he was a householder in Jamaica, Queens County, New York State.[10]

Augustus's wife Minerva was listed in the census in 1820 as a householder in Hounsfield, Jefferson County, New York State.[11]

Augustus Sacket, a New York lawyer and businessman, achieved fame when he acquired substantial tracts of unimproved land on the south-east shore of the inland sea of Lake Ontario and founded what was to become the flourishing and strategically-important village of Sackets Harbor.

In the years after the Revolution, New England Yankees viewed the forests and waterways of western New York state with a keen eye for settlement. In 1801, New York City land speculator Augustus Sacket travelled to Lake Ontario to verify reports of a naturally sheltered harbor on Black River Bay. Upon seeing the harbor, he became enthused with its potential: “There a harbor is found which is sheltered from the winds and surges of the Lake. A peninsula of limestone rock perfectly protects a sheet of water covering about ten acres.” The harbor was deep enough to accommodate boats of any size and close enough to the busy St Lawrence and Black Rivers to make it a convenient port of trade. He purchased all the surrounding land and began to build a new community. “The flourishing state of Mr Sacket’s village, its advantages of water carriage, and its valuable fishery, render it one of the most inviting objects to an industrious settler.” For his own family, Augustus built a splendid Palladian-style villa.

In 1805, Augustus became first Collector when the portion of the State bordering Lake Ontario became a US Revenue District and, in 1806, was elected the first Supervisor of the town of Houndsville which embraced the village and port of Sackets Harbor. He became the first County Judge when Jefferson County was organized in 1807. He was referred to as Judge Sackett in a newspaper announcement of his death. He was also Captain of State troops.

The strategic importance of Sackets Harbor was to become apparent during the War of 1812, when it was made the Headquarters of the Northern Army and Fleet. The town was successfully defended twice against attacks by English fleets.

But Augustus Sacket had, in 1809, sold his holdings in Jefferson County and moved to Jamaica, Long Island. He moved again, in 1812, to Meadville, Pennyslvania, returning shortly after to his birthplace, New York City. He returned to Sackets Harbor sometime after 1820 when he became interested in the islands of the St Lawrence. His last home was Newburgh, Orange County, New York, and it was while traveling from there to Sackets Harbor that he died on 22 April 1827.

William W Sackett, civil engineer and surveyor of New York State, son of William Sackett and Sarah Fish, was born on 31 August 1765.[1] He died aged 67 on 9 July 1833.[1] He married in 1790, Susan Smith, daughter of Hon Nathan Smith and Susan Mackintosh.[1] Susan was born in New Jersey in 1771.[2, 3]

In 1790 William was living in New Windsor, Ulster County, New York State. In his household were two white males (16+), one white female, three other free persons, and one slave.[4]

William was listed in the 1800 census as a householder in Newburgh, Orange County, New York State.[5]

William was assessed for tax on real estate and personal property in Newburgh in 1799, 1800, and 1801. He was both a landowner and the occupant of various lands owned by others.[6, 7, 8] In 1800 and 1801 he was also taxed as a non-resident on land owned in New Windsor, Orange County.[9, 10, 11]

William was listed in the 1810 census as a householder in Newburgh.[12] In 1820 he was a householder in Monroe, Orange County.[13] In 1830 he was a householder in Lumberland, Sullivan County, New York State.[14]

In 1850 William's widow Susan was living in Honesdale, Wayne County,

Pennsylvania, in the household of his son Nicholas, and was recorded in the census as Susan Sacket, aged 77 and born in New Jersey. Her daughter Louisa was also in the household.[15]

Father 492 Hon Nathaniel Sackett b. 1720, d. before 1761
Mother Anne Bush d. c 1746

Justus Sackett, son of Hon Nathaniel Sackett and Anne Bush, was born in 1740.[1] He died aged 86 in Greenwich, Fairfield County, Connecticut, on 15 January 1827[1, 2] and was buried at the Second Congregational Church Cemetery, Greenwich.[2, 3] He married Anna Lyon.[1] She was born on 27 September 1740.[4, 5] She died aged 96 in Greenwich on 15 February 1837[1, 4, 6] and was buried in the Second Congregational Church Cemetery.[1, 4, 7]

Justus served as a sergeant in the American Revolutionary War.[8]

In 1790 Justus was living in Norwalk, Fairfield County, Connecticut. In his household were two white males (16+), three white males under 16, three white females, and one slave.[9]

Justus was listed in the 1800 census as a householder in Greenwich.[10] The household of nine persons included a slave. It was probably this Justus Sackett who was recorded as the owner of slaves Charles and Silva, born sometime in the 1800s, respectively son and daughter of Hager.[11] In 1820 he was a householder in Greenwich.[12]

The Justus Sackett House

An article in the GreenwichFreePress in September 2017 reported a proposal by the nearby Brunswick School to purchase the Justus Sackett House at 45 Patterson Avenue, Greenwich, and to convert the single family dwelling into three apartments for teachers.
The article gives historical details: "The Federal style house, plaqued "Justus Sackett House, circa 1779," was, according to the Greenwich Historical Society, originally located facing Maple at the curved beginnings of North Street. Back then there was no Patterson Avenue – only part of the Sackett Farm which stretched backward toward the area of Perryridge.
"Justus Sackett purchased the house from Nehemiah Mead, Jr.
"In 1905 the house was moved to 45 Patterson Ave.
"The house has a charming port cochere, with a notable combination of both square and round columns. Before being moved, the house had a pitched roof.
"When William H Sackett*, who had inherited the house, sold it to James Dominick in 1851, the new owner, enlarged the house by changing the old pitched roof into a flat roof, with a comfortable third floor where the attic had been. At the time, Maher Ave existed, but was a private road."

Colonel Richard Sackett, son of Hon Nathaniel Sackett, was born between 1741 and 1750.[1, 2] He died in Tioga County, New York State, in 1799[1] and was buried at Owego, Tioga County. He married about 1769, Rachel Holmes, daughter of Isaac Holmes and Abigail Mead.[1, 3]

Richard served as an officer throughout the American Revolutionary War. He rose to become a Captain in the 2nd Midland Regiment. He was captured by the British but later exchanged. After the War he was commissioned Lieutenant Colonel Commandant of the Westchester County Regiment of Militia.[4]

In 1790 Richard was living in Bedford, Westchester County, New York State. In his household were three men and three females. He also owned six slaves.[5]

Richard made his will in New York City in 1798, naming as beneficiaries his wife Rachel, his sons Nathaniel and Caleb, and his daughters Betsey and Polly.[1] His estate was to be shared equally between his two sons after making financial provision for his wife and two daughters. Executors of the will were to be his sons Nathaniel and Caleb, together with Colonel Richard's cousin Capt Richard Sackett of Bedford.

Lieutenant Daniel Sackett, son of William Sackett and Anna Lawrence, was born in Newtown, Long Island, New York State, on 29 March 1759[1] and baptized at the Presbyterian Church, Newtown, on 13 May 1759.[2] He died aged 62 in Old Milford, New Haven County, Connecticut, on 7 January 1822[1, 3] and was buried at Milford Center Cemetery.[4] He married in Milford on 16 June 1782, Martha Green.[5, 1] Martha was born about 1760.[6] She would have been the "old" Mrs Sackett who died in Milford on 1 December 1842.[7]

Daniel Sackett served in the American Revolutionary War. On 1 July 1780 he was a Lieutenant in the 1st Regiment, New York Levies.[8, 9]

The death on 8 April 1789 of a negro boy belonging to Daniel Sackett is recorded in the Milford vital records.[10]

In 1790 Daniel was living in Milford, New Haven County, Connecticut. In his household were one white adult male, two white females, and one slave.[11]

Daniel's wife Martha was admitted to the First Congregational Church, Milford, on 25 July 1790. She transferred her membership on 27 May 1810 to the Second Church in Milford.[12, 13]

Daniel was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made in Newtown, Long Island, on 7 June 1798. He was left the farm in Milford, Connecticut, where he was already established.[14]

Daniel was listed in the census in 1800, 1810 and 1820 as a householder in Milford.[15], [16], [17]

In 1830 and 1840, Daniel's widow Martha was recorded living alone in Milford. She was aged 80 in 1840.[18], [19]

Martha was listed in the 1841 census of Revolutionary War pensioners. At the reference date of 1 June 1840, she was living in Milford and was aged 80.[20]

Father 517 Ozem Sacket b. 1736/37, d. 1801
Mother Mercy Weller b. c 1745, d. 1812

Jonathan Sacket, son of Ozem Sacket and Mercy Weller, was born in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 10 September 1763.[1, 2, 3] He died there aged 65 on 7 July 1829[3, 4] and was buried at the Old Burying Ground, Westfield.[5] He married at the First Church, Westfield, on 20 March 1788, Hannah/Joanna Sowl.[3, 6, 7, 8] Jonathan's wife is named as Hannah in the marriage record. In subsequent records, she is Joanna. They were probably the same, although the gap in the births of children between 1791 and 1799 might suggest two wives. The only later reference to Hannah is in the 1874 death record of the daughter Julana. This would support the assumption that Hannah and Joanna were the same, as would the naming of Joanna's father as Sowl in her death record. Joanna was born in Massachusetts about 1767.[9] She was baptized as an adult at the Church of Christ, Westfield, on 30 April 1819.[10] She died aged about 85 in Westfield on 28 October 1853[11] and was buried at the Old Burying Ground, Westfield.[5]

In 1790 Jonathan was living in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts. In his household were two men and three females.[12]

Jonathan was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made at Westfield on 26 June 1799. He was left various specified lands.

Jonathan was listed in the census in 1800, 1810, and 1820 as a householder in Westfield.[13], [14], [15]

Jonathan's widow Joanna was listed in the census in 1830 as a householder in Westfield.[16]

In 1850 Jonathan's widow Joanna, aged 82, was living in Westfield with her son Lester, 45, and daughter Julana, 42.[17]

Aaron Sacket, farmer, son of Ozem Sacket and Mercy Weller, was born in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 11 September 1772.[1, 2, 3] He died there aged 76 on 15 August 1848[3, 4] and was buried at the Old Burying Ground, Westfield. He married first at the First Church, Westfield, on 7 January 1801, Lydia Yeomans.[5, 6, 7] Lydia was born on 20 November 1779[8] and died aged 43 in Westfield on 2 September 1823.[9] He married second at the First Church, Westfield, on 24 May 1826, Electa (___) Miller.[10, 11]

Aaron was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made at Westfield on 26 June 1799. He was left various specified lands and the residue of the estate after bequests to his siblings. He was appointed the executor of the will.

Aaron was listed in the census in 1810, 1820 and 1830 as a householder in Westfield.[12, 13, 14]

Aaron was named as a beneficiary in his brother Ozem's will made in Westfield on 13 March 1846. He was to receive a share calculated in the proportion of $500 of the estimated $2,300 total land value.[15]

771 Warham Sackett

(1774 - 1853)

Line 3 Ozem[M], Daniel[L], John[K], John[J], Simon[I], Thomas[H], Thomas[G]

Father	517	Ozem Sacket b. 1736/37, d. 1801
Mother		Mercy Weller b. c 1745, d. 1812

Warham Sackett, farmer, son of Ozem Sacket and Mercy Weller, was born in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 4 November 1774.[1, 2, 3] He died aged 78 in Westfield on 27 August 1853[4, 5, 6] and was buried at the Old Burying Ground, Westfield.[7] He married in Chester, Hampden County, on 30 May 1799, Eunice Foote, daughter of William Foote and Ruth Smith.[1, 8] Eunice was born in Chester on 8 November 1778.[9, 10] She died aged 83 in Westfield on 26 October 1862[11] and was buried at the Old Burying Ground, Westfield.[7]

Warham was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made at Westfield on 26 June 1799. He was left a sum of $168.

Warham was listed in the 1800 census as a householder in Chester.[12]

He was listed in the census in 1810, 1820, 1830, and 1840 as a householder in Westfield.[13, 14, 15, 16]

Warham was named as a beneficiary in his brother Ozem's will made in Westfield on 13 March 1846. He was to receive a share calculated in the proportion of $500 of the estimated $2,300 total land value.[17]

In 1850 Warham was living in Westfield and was recorded in the census as Warham Sacket, a farmer, aged 72 [actually 75], and born in Massachusetts. Living with him was his wife Eunice, aged 71.[18]

Warham made his will in Westfield on 28 July 1853. He left the use of one-third of his real estate, together with his horse, pasture for a cow, farming tools, and household furniture, to his wife Eunice during her lifetime. He had apparently already conveyed his real estate to his son Warham and daughter Harriet Dewey, subject presumably to the widow's third. After his wife's death, the household furniture was to go to their granddaughters, Eugenia and Julia Whipple. The will was proved on 27 September 1853.[17]

In 1860 Warham's widow Eunice was living in Westfield and was listed in the census as Eunice Sacket, aged 81.[19]

772 Ozem Sacket

(1777 - 1846)

Line 3 Ozem[M], Daniel[L], John[K], John[J], Simon[I], Thomas[H], Thomas[G]

Father	517	Ozem Sacket b. 1736/37, d. 1801
Mother		Mercy Weller b. c 1745, d. 1812

Ozem Sacket, farmer, son of Ozem Sacket and Mercy Weller, was born in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 24 November 1777[1, 2, 3] and baptized at the Church of Christ, Westfield, on 21 November 1790.[4] He died aged 68 in Westfield on 28 August 1846[1, 5] and was buried at the Old Burying Ground, Westfield.[6]

Ozem was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made at Westfield on 26 June 1799. He was left various specified lands.

Ozem was listed in the census in 1810, 1820 and 1840 as a householder in Westfield.[7, 8, 9]

Ozem made his will in Westfield on 13 March 1846. He left his lands or the value thereof to be divided in various proportions of an estimated total value of $2,300. His brothers, Aaron, Warham, and Charles, and sister, Harriet, were each to receive a portion to the value of $500, and seven children of his deceased sister Mercy were to receive in total a portion of $300, this amount to be apportioned variously among them. He left $1 cash to each of six children of his "half-brother" Jonathan. According to Westfield registers of births, Ozem and Jonathan had the same parents, Ozem (Sr) and Mercy. The use of the term half-brother would appear to be a moral judgement based on Jonathan's birth just four months after his parents' marriage, a detail evidently still of significance more than eighty years later.[10]

Abstract of will of Ozem Sackett of Westfield, MA.
Date: 13 Mar 1846.
Proved: 1st Tue of Nov 1846.
Beneficiaries:
Brothers Aaron, Warham, & Charles, & sister Harriett Burt, shares of land in proportion $500 each.
Children of sister Mercy Sackett Brass dec'd, shares of land in proportions: Jared Brass $100, Samuel Brass $50, Elijah Brass $50, Polly Sackett $25, Sophia Sanderson $25, Charlotte Bates $25, Rebecca Bates $25.
Children of half-brother Jona' Sacket: Leicester Sacket, Dudley D Sacket, Loisa? Brown, Rhoda Packard, Huldah Whipple, Julianna Sacket, each $1 cash.
Residue: in proportion to above division of land.
Executors: Nephew Enoch Sacket, Jason Fox the husband of my niece.
Witnesses: Wm G Bates, David Morley, Lyman Root.

Father	517	Ozem Sacket b. 1736/37, d. 1801
Mother		Mercy Weller b. c 1745, d. 1812

Charles Sackett, farmer, son of Ozem Sacket and Mercy Weller, was born in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 9 February 1780[1, 2, 3] and baptized at the Church of Christ, Westfield, on 21 November 1790.[4] He died aged 68 in Westfield on 17 December 1848[1, 5] and was buried at the Old Burying Ground, Westfield.[6] He married in Boston, Suffolk County, Massachusetts, on 21 October 1810, Sarah Woods.[1, 7] Sarah was born about 1780.[8] She died aged 82 in New Albany, Floyd County, Indiana, on 12 August 1862[9] and was buried at Fairview Cemetery, New Albany.[6]

Charles was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made at Westfield on 26 June 1799. He was left various specified lands.

Charles and Sarah migrated west from Boston in 1824, settling in Louisville, Kentucky.

Charles was named as a beneficiary in his brother Ozem's will made in Westfield on 13 March 1846. He was to receive a share calculated in the proportion of $500 of the estimated $2,300 total land value.[10]

Charles died on a return visit to Westfield in 1848, his wife Sarah remaining in Louisville. He was perhaps considering moving back to Westfield and settling on the land left to him by his brother Ozem. Sarah died in 1862 in New Albany, Indiana, across the river from Louisville.

774 Harriet Sacket

(1785 - 1875)

Line 3 Ozem[M], Daniel[L], John[K], John[J], Simon[I], Thomas[H], Thomas[G]

Father	517	Ozem Sacket b. 1736/37, d. 1801
Mother		Mercy Weller b. c 1745, d. 1812

Harriet Sacket, daughter of Ozem Sacket and Mercy Weller, was born in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, in May 1785[1, 2, 3] and baptized at the Church of Christ, Westfield, on 21 November 1790.[4] She died aged 90 in Westfield on 3 July 1875.[1, 5] She married in Utica, Oneida County, New York State, on 16 January 1814, Eli Burt.[6] A death record for Eli Burt has not been found. He was listed in the census in 1820 and 1830 as a householder in Westfield. He had presumably died before 1850 when Harriet was living alone.

Harriet was named as a beneficiary in her father's will made at Westfield on 26 June 1799. She was left $100, half in household goods and half in money.

Harriet was named as a beneficiary in her brother Ozem's will made in Westfield on 13 March 1846. She was to receive a share calculated in the proportion of $500 of the estimated $2,300 total land value.[7]

In 1850 Harriet was living in Westfield and was recorded in the census as Harriet Burt, aged 64. She owned real estate valued at $1,000.[8]

In 1860 she was living in Westfield and was recorded as Harriet Burt, aged 74. She owned real estate valued at $1,500 and had personal estate of $500.[9]

In 1870 she was living in Westfield and was recorded as Harriet Burt, aged 84. Her real estate was valued at $2,000 and she had personal estate of $500.[10]

Harriet made her will in Westfield on 29 October 1849. She was by then a widow but did not have children. She owned a large farm and had other assets. She left her estate, expressed in various monetary amounts, to named children and grandchildren of her brothers and sisters. She deliberately left out other unnamed "children and grandchildren of my brothers and sisters, and my surviving brother, some of whom are well to do in the world or would not be benefitted by a legacy" to whom "I make no bequest", adding that she included this notice "to show that they are not forgotten by me."

By the time of Harrriet's death nearly sixteen years later, there had been some changes and a schedule of heirs-at-law was drawn up by the executors for presentation to the Probate Court.

The estate was valued at some $3,500, including proceeds of $1,700 from the sale of the farm.

In distributing the estate, the executors kept to the proportions set out in Harriet's will, the monetary amounts by then increasing to two-and-a-half times the original sums.[7]

Father 520 Moses Sacket b. 1743, d. 1813
Mother Eunice Cadwell b. 1749, d. 1842

Lieutenant Martin Sacket, farmer, son of Moses Sacket and Eunice Cadwell, was born in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 23 December 1776.[1, 2, 3] He died aged 85 in New York State on 7 June 1862[3, 4] and was buried at South Plymouth Cemetery, Chenango County, New York State.[5] He married in West Springfield, Massachusetts, on 11 January 1803, Miriam Bancroft, daughter of Isaac Bancroft and Mary Barrett.[3, 6] Miriam was born in East Windsor, Hartford County, Connecticut, on 29 October 1781.[5] She died aged 92 in Plymouth, Chenango County, on 21 April 1874 and was buried at South Plymouth Cemetery.[5]

Martin Sacket served in a Chenango County militia company during the war of 1812. He was commissioned First Lieutenant in the 12th Regiment, New York State Artillery, in 1816.

Martin was listed in the census in 1810 and 1830 as a householder in Plymouth.[7, 8]

Martin was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made in Westfield on 17 April 1812. He had already been provided for by his father, presumably in the form of land. He was left an amount of $40 (his brothers Erastus and Israel, not previously provided for, were left $800 each.)[9]

In 1850 Martin was living in Plymouth and was recorded in the census as Martin Sackett, a farmer, aged 73. His wife Miriam, 67, and daughter

Henrietta, 38, were living with him.[10]

In 1855 Martin was living in Plymouth and was recorded in the census as Martin Sackett, aged 78. Living with him were his wife Miriam, 73, and their daughter Henrietta, 43.[11]

In 1860 he was living in Plymouth and was recorded as Martin Sackett, a farmer, aged 83. Living with him were his wife Miriam, 77, and their daughter Henrietta, 48.[12]

Father	520	Moses Sacket b. 1743, d. 1813
Mother		Eunice Cadwell b. 1749, d. 1842

John Sacket, son of Moses Sacket and Eunice Cadwell, was born in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 30 March 1781.[1, 2, 3] He died in Westfield on 6 August 1839[3] and was buried at the Old Burying Ground, Westfield.[4] He married in Westfield on 26 November 1807, Rachel Morse, daughter of Chester Morse and Rachel Wood.[3, 5, 6] (The Sacketts of America has Rachel's father as Chester. Her death record has Nathan.) Rachel was born in West Springfield, Hampden County, on 15 April 1784.[7, 8] She died aged 72 in Westfield on 26 December 1856[9] and was buried at the Old Burying Ground, Westfield.[4]

John was listed in the census in 1810, 1820 and 1830 as a householder in Westfield.[10, 11, 12]

John was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made in Westfield on 17 April 1812. He had already been provided for by his father, presumably in the form of land. He was left an amount of $150 (his brothers Erastus and Israel, not previously provided for, were left $800 each.)[13]

John made his will in Westfield on 16 July 1839. His wife Rachel was left the usual widow's third, all the household goods, and one cow. He left each of his married daughters, Roxana and Eunice, $1. The rest of his estate was to go to his son Orren subject to Orren providing a home and maintenance for John's unmarried daughters, Anne, Cordelia A, Clarissa, and Melissa. The will was proved on 1 October 1839.[13]

In 1855 John's widow Rachel was living in Westfield and was recorded in the census as Rachael Sacket, aged 70. Also in the household were Lemuel and Lydia Sacket with their three young children. Lemuel was a son of Rachael's husband John's first cousin Russell Sacket.[14]

781 Heman Sackett

(1783 - 1851)

Line 3 Moses[M], Daniel[L], John[K], John[J], Simon[I], Thomas[H], Thomas[G]

Father	520	Moses Sacket b. 1743, d. 1813
Mother		Eunice Cadwell b. 1749, d. 1842

Heman Sackett, whip maker, son of Moses Sacket and Eunice Cadwell, was born in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 30 September 1783.[1, 2, 3] He died there aged 67 on 7 January 1851[3, 4, 5] and was buried at the Old Burying Ground, Westfield.[6] He married in Westfield on 25 November 1807, Experience Searle.[3, 7, 8] She was born in Granby, Hampshire County, Massachusetts, about February 1788.[9] She died aged 85 in Westfield on 5 August 1873[10] and was buried at the Old Burying Ground, Westfield.[6]

Heman was listed in the census in 1810, 1820, 1830 and 1840 as a householder in Westfield.[11, 12, 13, 14]

Heman was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made in Westfield on 17 April 1812. He had already been provided for by his father, presumably in the form of land. He was left an amount of $120 (his brothers Erastus and Israel, not previously provided for, were left $800 each.)[15]

In 1850 Heman was living in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, and was recorded in the census as Heman Sacket, a whip maker, aged 65 and born in Massachusetts. Living with him was his wife Experience, aged 61.[16]

In 1860 Heman's widow Experience was living in Westfield and was recorded in the census as Experience Sacket, aged 72.[17]

In 1870 she was living in Westfield in the household of her son George, and was recorded as Experiance Sackett, aged 82.[18]

Frances "Fanny" Sacket, daughter of Moses Sacket and Eunice Cadwell, was born in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 26 May 1786.[1, 2, 3] She died aged 73 in West Springfield, Hampden County, on 1 May 1860[4] and was buried at Ashley Cemetery, West Springfield.[5] She married at the First Church, Westfield, on 28 December 1815, Justin Bagg, her second cousin, son of Thomas Bagg and Eunice Sacket.[6, 7, 8, 9] Justin was born in West Springfield on 13 December 1793. He died aged 67 on 5 February 1861 and was buried at Ashley Cemetery.

Frances was named as a beneficiary in her father's will made in Westfield on 17 April 1812. She was to receive an amount of $60.[10]

In 1850 Frances was living in West Springfield in the household of her husband Justin Bagg, 55, a farmer, and was recorded in the census as Frances Bagg, aged 64. Their sons, Seymour, 30, and Franklin, 24, were living with them. There were also two farm laborers in the household.[11]

783 Erastus Sacket

(1790 - 1825)

Line 3 Moses[M], Daniel[L], John[K], John[J], Simon[I], Thomas[H], Thomas[G]

Father	520	Moses Sacket b. 1743, d. 1813
Mother		Eunice Cadwell b. 1749, d. 1842

Erastus Sacket, son of Moses Sacket and Eunice Cadwell, was born in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 16 October 1790[1, 2, 3] and died there aged 35 on 23 November 1825.[4]

Erastus was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made in Westfield on 17 April 1812. He was to receive an amount of $800.[5]

Erastus died intestate. His brother Israel was appointed administrator of his estate by the Springfield Probate Court on 7 February 1826. An inventory compiled by Israel is heavily amended but it is clear that Erastus had been cared for by family members. His estate was valued at some $600. Of this, $315 was proposed to be paid to his mother Eunice "for assisting in taking charge of the said Erastus for thirteen years before his decease." Other sums were due to "my brothers and sisters", Roxana and Frances being named, apparently relating to unpaid legacies from Erastus's inheritance from his father, and also "to taking care of the said Erastus since the decease of my father". A complication was that some undivided lands were held jointly by Erastus and Israel.[5]

784 Israel Sacket

(1792 - 1851)

Line 3 Moses[M], Daniel[L], John[K], John[J], Simon[I], Thomas[H], Thomas[G]

Father	520	Moses Sacket b. 1743, d. 1813
Mother		Eunice Cadwell b. 1749, d. 1842

Israel Sacket, farmer, son of Moses Sacket and Eunice Cadwell, was born in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 6 September 1792.[1, 2, 3] He died there aged 58 on 20 May 1851[4, 5] and was buried at Pine Hill Cemetery, Westfield.[6] He married in West Springfield, Hampden County, about 1820, Lucy Doane, daughter of Bethuel Doane and Lucy Greene.[1, 7] Lucy was born in West Springfield in 1799.[1, 8] She died aged 70 in Westfield on 12 December 1870[9] and was buried at Pine Hill Cemetery, Westfield.[6]

Israel served as a Private in the Massachusetts Militia during the War of 1812.[10]

Israel was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made in Westfield on 17 April 1812. He was to receive an amount of $800.[11]

Israel was listed in the census in 1830 and 1840 as a householder in Westfield.[12, 13]

Israel made his will in Westfield on 8 April 1844. After providing for his wife Lucy's one-third dower, he left his estate to his sons Francis and Charles, conditional on their paying one-third of the value of the real estate to their sisters Harriet and Mary. The sisters' third was to be split two-to-one in favor of the younger daughter Mary. At the time of making his will, Israel's children were not yet of age. He appointed David Moseley, executor of his will, as guardian of his sons, while Israel's wife Lucy was to be guardian of their daughters. The guardians were to supervise the payment of monies, which were due to be paid by each son within three years of reaching the age of 21.[11]

In 1850 Israel was living in Westfield and was recorded in the census as Israel Sackett, a farmer, aged 51, and born in Massachusetts. Living with him were his wife Lucy, aged 50, and born in Massachusetts, and children, Harriet, 26, Francis, 25, Charles, 21, and Mary, aged ten. Also in the household was Lucinda Randall, 17.[14]

In 1860 Israel's widow Lucy was living in Westfield and was recorded in the census as Lucy Sacket, aged 60 and born in Massachusetts. Also in the household were her unmarried children, Harriet, 36, and Charles, 31, and her son Francis, 33, with his wife Mary, 29, and their daughter Nettie, aged two.[15]

In 1870 she was living in Westfield in the household of her son Charles, and was recorded as Lucy Sackett, aged 69.[16]

Abstract of will of Israel Sackett of Westfield, Hampden County, MA.
Date: 8 Apr 1844.

809 Polly Sacket

(1779 -)

Line 3	Abner[M], Daniel[L], John[K], John[J], Simon[I], Thomas[H], Thomas[G]

Father	524	Lieutenant Abner Sacket b. 1751, d. 1808
Mother		Rhoda Kellogg b. 1753, d. 1798

Polly Sacket, daughter of Lieutenant Abner Sacket and Rhoda Kellogg, was born in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 20 or 21 December 1779.[1, 2, 3] She was probably the Polly Sacket who filed an intention to marry Samuel Tiffany in Westfield on 1792.[4, 5, 6]

Identification of the Polly Sacket born in 1779 with the marriage record of 1792 is problematic, not least because she was then apparently only twelve years old. However, another candidate for the marriage has not been found. A marriage at that age would have been unusual but not illegal. The marriage record is of an intention to marry, not of the marriage itself, and it may be that the marriage took place some years later. The birth date of 1779 is subject to verification. This is taken from a transcribed rather than an original record, which has not been found. A transcription error is always possible, and she may have been born earlier.

A genealogy, the Tiffanys of America, published in 1901, identifies a Samuel Tiffany who married a Mary Sackett. Census records give Samuel's wife's name variously as Polly (1850), Mary Polly (1855), Mary (1860), and Polly (1865). Her ages at the census dates, 76 in 1850, 82 in 1855, 87 in 1860, and 92 in 1865, are consistent, giving a birth date of about 1773, six years earlier than the Polly of the Westfield birth record.

The Tiffanys of America lists ten children of the marriage, but gives birth dates for only a few of them. These birth dates, which may have helped date the marriage, have not been found elsewhere. The dates that are known are in the 1800s rather than the 1790s, pointing to a marriage date later than 1792.

If this Samuel Tiffany family is correctly identified with Polly the daughter of Abner Sacket, then her birth is more likely to have been in about 1773 than in 1779, meaning a transcription error in that record.

Samuel Tiffany was born on 21 October 1761.[7] He died aged 89 in Delaware County, New York State, on 21 April 1851.[7]

In 1850 Polly was living in Hamden, Delaware County, New York State, in the household of her husband Samuel Tiffany, 89, and was recorded in the census as Polly Tiffany, aged 76.[8]

In 1855 she was living in Hamden in the household of her son Ezekiel, daughter-in-law Nancy, and their family, and was recorded as Mary Polly Tiffany, a widow aged 82. She had lived in Hamden for 50 years.[9]

In 1860 she was living in Hamden in the household of her daughter-in-law Lois Tiffany, and was recorded as Mary Tiffany, aged 87.[10]

In 1865 she was living in Hamden in the household of her son Ezekiel Tiffany, 56, a farmer, daughter-in-law Nancy, and their family, and was recorded as Polly Tiffany, a widow aged 92.[11]

Major Buell Sackett, son of Benjamin Sacket and Dorothy Buell, was born in Sheffield, Berkshire County, Massachusetts, on 28 July 1763.[1, 2, 3, 4] He died aged 76 in New Lebanon, Columbia County, New York State, on 19 January 1840[1, 2, 3, 5] and was buried at West Lebanon Cemetery, Columbia County.[2, 6] He married first about 1784, Sally Earl Beach, daughter of Samuel Beach and Rachel Strong.[1] Sally was born on 27 May 1761.[7] She died aged 54 in New Lebanon on 14 August 1815 and was buried at West Lebanon Cemetery.[7] He married second about 1818, Lydia Buell, daughter of John Buell and Lydia Peck.[8] Lydia was born in 1775.[1] She died aged about 57 on 8 May 1832[1, 9] and was buried at West Lebanon Cemetery.[7]

Buell Sackett enlisted at the age of 16 in the 5th Continental Regiment, and served in the American Revolutionary War. He witnessed the execution of Major André at Tappan, New York, on 2 October 1780. After the war, he joined the Columbia County Regiment of Militia, was commissioned Ensign in 1803, Lieutenant in 1804, and Captain in 1805. He retired in 1807 with the rank of Major.[1, 5, 10, 11]

In 1790 Buell was living in Canaan, Columbia County, New York State. In his household were one man, two boys, and two females.[12]

Buell was taxed in Canaan in 1799 to 1802 on his real and personal estate. His house and farm were valued at $1,045.[13] He also owned land valued at $50 in Stephentown, Rensselaer County, in 1802 and 1803.[14]

Buell was listed in the census in 1800 and 1810 as a householder in Canaan.[15], [16] In 1820 he was a householder in Lebanon, Columbia County.[17]

Aaron Sacket, son of Benjamin Sacket and Dorothy Buell, was born in Sheffield, Berkshire County, Massachusetts, on 14 January 1767.[1, 2] He died probably in Vermont, after 1820. He married in Litchfield, Connecticut, on 6 July 1786, Phebe Hart, daughter of Timothy Hart and Phebe Fenn.[3]

In 1790 Aaron was living in Litchfield, Litchfield County, Connecticut. In his household were two men and three females.[4]

Aaron was listed in the 1800 census as a householder in Litchfield.[5] In 1820 he was a householder in Wallingford, Rutland County, Vermont.[6]

There is some uncertainty in identifying Aaron the son of Benjamin with Aaron who married Phebe Hart. However, the identification is very probably correct, if only on the basis of "right time, right place"—Aaron and Phebe married in Litchfield, Connecticut, less than 30 miles from Aaron's birthplace in Sheffield, Massachusetts. Weygant, Sacketts of America, stated that Aaron was a grandson of Captain Richard Sackett of New York and Margery Slade, but no evidence for this has been found.

Isaac Sackett, farmer, son of Benjamin Sacket and Dorothy Buell, was born in Sheffield, Berkshire County, Massachusetts, on 25 October 1773.[1, 2] He died aged 80 in Colchester, Chittenden County, Vermont, on 8 March 1854 and was buried at Munsons Cemetery, Colchester.[3, 4] He married first in New Lebanon, Columbia County, New York State, on 26 December 1799, Polly Hammond.[1, 5] Polly was born in 1780.[1] She died aged 36 in Colchester, Chittenden County, Vermont, on 22 April 1817 and was buried at Munsons Cemetery, Colchester.[6] He married second in Colchester on 20 April 1818, Silence (Ames) Washburn, daughter of Ebenezer Ames and Jane Howard, and widow of Zenas Washburn.[7] Silence was born in Bridgewater, Plymouth County, Massachusetts, on 14 June 1770.[1, 8, 9, 10] She died aged 95 in Colchester on 13 April 1865.[1, 11]

Isaac was listed in the 1800 census as a householder in Canaan, Columbia County, New York State.[12] He was taxed on real and personal estate in Canaan in 1801 and 1802.[13]

Isaac served as a Private in the Vermont Militia in the War of 1812.[14]

Isaac was listed in the census in 1820, 1830, and 1840 as a householder in Colchester, Chittenden County, Vermont.[15, 16, 17]

In 1850 Isaac was living in Colchester and was recorded in the census as

Isaac Sacket, a farmer, aged 77. His wife Silence, 80, was living with him.[18]

Isaac made his will in Colchester on 14 May 1851. He left his homestead and surrounding land and an annual income of $50 to his wife Silence. The rest of his estate was to be divided equally among his five children, Mary, David, Patty, Joshua, and Nancy.[19]

In 1860 Isaac's widow Silence, aged 90, was living in Colchester in the household of her stepdaughter Mary Brownell.[20]

In 1790 Alanson was living in Egremont, Berkshire County, Massachusetts. In his household were 1 man, 1 boy, and 2 females. One of the females was presumably his wife Mary and the boy and other female are likely to have been children whose names have not yet been ascertained.[3]

Waight Sacket, daughter of King Sacket and Lydia Sacket, was born in Sheffield, Berkshire County, Massachusetts, on 23 October 1765.[1]

No further record that can be positively identified with Waight Sacket has been found. She may have died young.

However, census and tax records of a Wait Sacket appear in Butternuts, New York State, from 1800 to 1810. These would presumably have been for a male Sacket of the name. The records are included here in case a link is found. It would be possible that the child was incorrectly stated to be a daughter in the birth record. The ancestry of Wait Sacket of Butternuts is otherwise unexplained.

Wait Sacket was listed in the census in 1800 and 1810 as a householder in Butternuts, Otsego County, New York State.[2, 3]

He was assessed for tax on real estate valued at $550 and personal property of $25 in Butternuts in 1801. Further taxes were raised in 1802 and 1803.[4]

Oliver Sacket, son of Zebulon Sacket and Lucy Root, was born in Sheffield, Berkshire County, Massachusetts, on 12 December 1770.[1] He died aged 23 in the West Indies in 1794.

Although Oliver had few possessions, literally just his clothes and $8 in cash, due process was followed in settling his affairs. His mother Lucy, now Lucy Mudge of Canaan, Columbia County, New York, by a letter of 2 June 1794, declined to act as administrator, proposing instead Solomon Mudge. Solomon, a merchant of New Haven, would have been her stepson by her second marriage. He died in New Haven on 30 June 1794. Administration of the estate was eventually completed by two other appointees more than a year later. The inventory, made in New Haven on 9 October 1795, listed Oliver's clothing, including a "coat with lappels" at 18 shillings, a pair of silk and cotton stockings 9s, a striped jacket nearly new 8s, and a pair of velvet breeches valued at 15 shillings. These quality items and his presence in the West Indies suggest that he may have been an officer on a ship.[2]

Administration of estate of Oliver Sacket of New Haven, 1794.

Father	532	Ezekiel Sacket b. 1738, d. 1820
Mother		Anne Grainger b. c 1744, d. 1838

Menardus Sacket, son of Ezekiel Sacket and Anne Grainger, was born in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 3 December 1770.[1, 2, 3] He died in Cape Vincent, Jefferson County, New York State, on 3 March 1854[1] and was buried at St John's Episcopal Church Cemetery, Cape Vincent.[4] He married in 1791, Fanny Nimocks, daughter of Richard Nimocks and Zerviah Noble.[1] Fanny was born in Westfield on 13 March 1773.[1, 4] She died aged 65 on 17 September 1838 and was buried at Houseville Cemetery, Turin, Lewis County, New York State.[4]

Menardus was listed in the 1800 census as a householder in Westfield.[5]

Menardus was settled in Turin, Lewis County, New York State, by 1807 when he was listed in a census of electors there.[6] In 1810 he was listed in Lewis County, in 1820 in Turin, Lewis County, and in 1830 in Martinsburg, Lewis County.[7, 8, 9]

Menardus's wife Fanny was named as first beneficiary in the will of their son Porter made in Natchez, Adams County, Mississippi, about 1837. If she predeceased Porter, the estate, which comprised promissory notes totalling some $1,000, would go to Menardus. In the event, the will was evidently mislaid and Porter's brother Corydon was appointed administrator of the estate by the Adams County Probate Court on 30 April 1839, the court having been informed that Porter had died intestate.[10]

In 1850 Menardus was living in Cape Vincent, Jefferson County, New York State, in the household of his son Gideon and daughter-in-law Fanny, and was recorded in the census as Menardus Sackett, aged 79.[11]

A fragment of the gravestone of Fanny wife of Menardus is inscribed "æ 11 Yrs". This may refer to another, unidentified, child.

David Sackett, son of Lieutenant David Sacket and Lucretia Shepard, was born, presumably in Massachusetts, about 1776.[1, 2] He died aged 52 in Blandford, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 2 February 1829 and was buried at Hill Cemetery, Blandford.[3] He married about 1803, Anna Parke.[1, 4] Anna was born in Massachusetts about 1787.[5]

David was listed in the 1810 census as a householder in Blandford.[6] In 1820 he was a householder in Russell, Hampden County.[7]

David made his will in Blandford on 8 January 1829, naming as beneficiaries his wife Anna and children, Charlotte, Leverett, and Elizabeth.

In 1850 David's widow Anna was living in Blandford in the household of her son Leverett Sackett, and was recorded in the census as Anna Sackett, aged 67 and born in Massachusetts.[8]

Father 536 Zavan Sacket Sr b. 1751, d. 1840
Mother Abigail Bills b. c 1759, d. 1842

Zavan Sacket Jr, son of Zavan Sacket Sr and Abigail Bills, was born in Massachusetts on 11 August 1781.[1, 2] He died aged 76 in Crawford County, Pennsylvania, on 6 December 1857[1] and was buried at Greendale Cemetery, Meadville, Crawford County.[3] He married in Crawford County on 18 March 1819, Emily Weller, daughter of Jonathan Weller and Lovina Leonard.[1, 4] Emily was born in Huntington, Hampshire County, Massachusetts, on 27 April 1802.[5] She died aged 50 on 15 May 1852 and was buried at Greendale Cemetery.[6] As far as is known there were no children of the marriage.

Zavan was assessed for State and Town taxes in Huntington in 1811.[7] He removed from Massachusetts to Crawford County, Pennsylvania, in the late 1810s, probably at the same time as his brother Rolin and their father, and was there by 1819 when he married.

Zavan bought several lots of land in Meadville on 16 January 1828. (Both Zavans, father and son, were in Meadville by this date. The purchaser is likely to have been the son as he was listed as a householder there for the first time in 1830.)[8]

Zavan was listed in the census in 1830 and 1840 as a householder in Meadville.[9, 10]

He was baptized as an adult at the First Presbyterian Church, Meadville, on June 1832.[11]

In 1850 he was living in Meadville and was recorded as Zavan Sacket, aged 63 and born in Massachusetts. His wife Emily, 46, was living with him.[12]

Father	536	Zavan Sacket Sr b. 1751, d. 1840
Mother		Abigail Bills b. c 1759, d. 1842

Isaac Sackett, farmer, son of Zavan Sacket Sr and Abigail Bills, was born in Massachusetts on 26 February 1783.[1, 2] He died aged 86 in Wayne, Ashtabula County, Ohio, on 29 March 1869[1, 3] and was buried at Center Cemetery, Wayne.[4, 5] He married in 1833, Mercy Mansfield.[1] Mercy was born in Vermont on 3 March 1794.[1, 2, 6] She died aged 94 in Wayne on 26 March 1888[6, 7] and was buried at Center Cemetery.[4]

Isaac removed from Massachusetts to Mead, Pennsylvania, either with his father and brother Rolin in the late 1810s or with others of his siblings in the 1820s.

Isaac was listed in the 1830 census as a householder in Mead, Crawford County, Pennsylvania.[8]

Isaac moved farther west again in the 1830s and in 1840 he was a householder in Andover, Ashtabula County, Ohio.[9]

In 1850 Isaac was living in Orwell, Ashtabula County, and was recorded in the census as Isaac Sacket, a farmer, aged 66 and born in Massachusetts. Living with him were his wife Mercy, 56, and their children, Zaven, 16, Isaac, 13, and Caroline, aged nine.[10]

In 1860 he was living in Orwell and was recorded as I Sackett, a farmer, aged 77. Living with him were his wife Mercy, 66, and their daughter Mary, 18, with her husband John Sage, and their one-year-old daughter Carrie.[11]

Isaac made his will in Wayne on 28 September 1868. He left the use of his real estate to his son Zavan during the lifetime of Isaac's widow (unnamed in the will), subject to her maintenance. After her death, the estate was to go to Zavan's son Charles.

In 1870 Isaac's widow Mercy, aged 76, was living in Wayne, with her son Zaven and his family.[12] She was also recorded there in 1880, aged 86.[13]

Obituary of Mrs. Mercy Sacket
Died at the residence of her son, Zavan Sacket, in Wayne, Ohio, March 26th, 1888, Mrs.Mercy Sacket, at the advanced age of 94 years and 23 days.

"Mr. Editor, I cannot refrain from asking of you the privilege of occupying a little space in the crowded columns of your paper, to write as briefly as I can, some things in memory of the long and useful life of this esteemed Christian friend. She was a dear good aunt and in the long ago she lived in this neighborhood and was married by Justin Dewey, Esq. to Isaac Sacket, her second husband, a brother of Rolin Sacket, Zavan Sacket, James Sacket, Joseph Sacket and my father, Jabez B. Sacket. As intimated, at the time of this last marriage she was a widow and had one daughter, whose name was Laura Butterfield, respected and beloved by all who knew her. From here the family moved into Ohio and resided for some time in Orwell, and then moved to Wayne township and there she has lived for the last 40 years. Her husband died March 29th 1869, aged 86. By this marriage she had two sons and one daughter. Zavan, the oldest, lives on the homestead, is married, with children around him. Isaac, the second son, was killed at the battle of Bull Run; and Coralin is the wife of J.W. Covert, a well-to-do farmer, residing in Orwell, Ohio.

"At the age of 20 this cherished friend was hopefully brought into the fold and family of Christ, and every day since that happy change, she exemplified the religion of Jesus by her devoted faithfulness in his service. She had been a member of the Methodist Church for 74 years, and truly it may be said that in death her children have lost a precious mother, and her connections a true friend, and that a mother in Israel has fallen to sleep. E.B.R.S. Mead, May 25th, 1888."

Father	536	Zavan Sacket Sr b. 1751, d. 1840
Mother		Abigail Bills b. c 1759, d. 1842

Rolin Sackett, farmer, son of Zavan Sacket Sr and Abigail Bills, was born in Massachusetts in the early 1780s.[1, 2, 3] He died aged about 80 in Meadville, Crawford County, Pennsylvania, on 22 February 1863.[4] He married first in Montgomery, Hampden County, on 11 March 1807, Lovina Edson, daughter of James Edson and Lovina ___.[5, 6] Lovina Edson was born in Springfield, Hampden County, on 12 April 1786.[7] She died aged 37 in Mead, Crawford County, Pennsylvania, on 15 June 1824.[8] He married second in Meadville about 1828, Pamelia (___) Chamberlin, widow of Charles Chamberlin. Pamelia was born in New York State about 1801.[3] Rolin was father to a total of 17 children, nine by Lovina, and eight by Pamelia.

Rolin was listed in the 1810 census as a householder in Norwich (later Huntington), Hampshire County, Massachusetts.[9]

He was assessed for State and Town taxes in Huntington in 1811.[10]

He removed from Massachusetts to Pennsylvania sometime between 1811 and 1820, probably at the same time as his father Zavan.

Rolin was listed in the 1820 census as a householder in Mead, Crawford County.[11] In 1830 he was a householder in Great Valley, Cattaraugus County, New York State.[12] He had at that date recently married in New York State his second wife, Pamelia, and had been involved with her in winding up the estate of her late husband Charles.

In 1840 Rolin was again in Mead, Crawford County.[13]

In 1850 Rolin was living in Mead Township and was recorded in the census as Rowland Sackett, a farmer, aged 65 and born in Massachusetts. Living with him were his second wife Pamelia, aged 49 and born in New York, and their children, Charles, 20, Leonard, 18, Zavan, 16, Louisa, 14, Mary, 12, Henry, 10, and John, aged six.[14]

In 1860 he was living in Meadville and was recorded as Rowland Sacket, a farmer, aged 80. Living with him were his wife Pamelia, 59, and their children, Charles, 30, Leonard, 28, Eliza, 24, Henry, 20, and John, aged 16.[15]

Following Rolin's death in February 1863, his widow Pamelia suffered the further loss of her son John who died ten days later from disease contracted while serving in the Army during the Civil War. Pamelia applied for a Civil War mother's pension, citing also her need to support her dependent children, Leonard, then 31, and Eliza, 27, both described as non compos mentis. The application was supported in the Crawford County Court of Common Pleas by Rolin's nephew and near neighbor, Edward Sackett.[16]

In 1880, Pamelia was living in Mead and was enumerated as Permelia Sackett, a widow, aged 46 (sic: the enumerator probably intended 76). Living with her were her unmarried children, Rolin, 50, Leonard, 48, and Dolla (Eliza), aged 44.[17]

Father	536	Zavan Sacket Sr b. 1751, d. 1840
Mother		Abigail Bills b. c 1759, d. 1842

James Sacket, farmer, son of Zavan Sacket Sr and Abigail Bills, was born in Massachusetts in 1786.[1] He died aged about 76 in Meadville, Crawford County, Pennsylvania, on 11 January 1862[1] and was buried at Greendale Cemetery, Meadville.[2, 3] He married about 1819, probably in Huntington, Hampshire County, Massachusetts, Almena Wright, daughter of Gideon Wright and Sabrina Sheldon.[4] Almena was born in Huntington on 23 June 1798.[5] She died aged 92 on 14 May 1891[6] and was buried at Prairieville Cemetery, Barry County, Michigan.[2, 7, 8]

James was assessed for State and Town taxes in Huntington in 1811, 1813, and 1815.[9]

James was listed in the 1820 census as a householder in Norwich (later Huntington), Hampshire County, Massachusetts.[10]

James removed in the 1820s from Massachusetts to Mead, Pennsylvania, where his father Zavan and brother Rolin were already established.

James was listed in the census in 1830 and 1840 as a householder in Mead, Crawford County, Pennsylvania.[11, 12]

It would appear that James and Almena adopted James's brother Jabez's daughter Ann after Ann's mother died just two weeks after the birth in January 1832.

In 1850 James was living in Mead and was recorded in the census as James Sackett, a farmer, aged 62 and born in Massachusetts. Living with him were his wife Almina, 52, and their [adopted] daughter Ann, aged 18 [described below as "daughter"]. Also in the household was James's brother Joseph, 50, a farmer.[13]

In 1860 he was living in Meadville and was recorded as James Sacket, a farmer, aged 72. Living with him were his wife Almena, 62, and their daughter Anna, 28.[14]

After James's death, Almena removed with her daughter Anna to Prairieville, Michigan, where James's nephew Jabez Sackett was already established.

In 1870 Almena was living in Prairieville, Barry County, Michigan, and was recorded as Almena Sacket, aged 72. Her unmarried daughter Anna, 38, was living with her.[15]

In 1880 she was living in Prairieville and was recorded as Almina Sacket, a widow, head of household, aged 81. Her daughter Ann, 46, was living with her. [Earlier census records do not state relationships but, in 1880, Ann was listed as "daughter".].[16]

863 Jabez B Sackett

(1788 - 1870)

Line 3 Zavan[M], Isaac[L], John[K], John[J], Simon[I], Thomas[H], Thomas[G]

Father	536	Zavan Sacket Sr b. 1751, d. 1840
Mother		Abigail Bills b. c 1759, d. 1842

Jabez B Sackett, farmer, son of Zavan Sacket Sr and Abigail Bills, was born in Massachusetts on 14 December 1788.[1, 2, 3] He died aged 81 in Meadville, Crawford County, Pennsylvania, on 17 November 1870[1, 4] and was buried at Greendale Cemetery, Meadville.[5, 6] He married first in Norwich (later Huntington), Hampshire County, Massachusetts, on 4 July 1815, Anna Dewey, daughter of Levi Dewey and Mary Scott.[1, 4, 7, 8] Anna was born in Norwich on 2 January 1794.[4, 9] She died aged 37 in Meadville on 14 January 1832[4] and was buried at Greendale Cemetery.[10] He married second in Trumbull County, Ohio, on 15 March 1833, Emily E Eells, daughter of Ozias Eells and Phebe Ely.[11] Emily was born in Connecticut on 21 December 1796[12] and baptized at Barkhamsted, Litchfield County, Connecticut, on 5 February 1797.[13] She died aged 89 in Crawford County on 23 December 1885 and was buried at Greendale Cemetery, Meadville.[14, 15]

Jabez was assessed for State and Town taxes in Huntington (formerly Norwich) in 1813 and 1815.[16]

He was listed in the 1820 census as a householder in Huntington.[17]

Jabez removed with his family from Massachusetts to Crawford County, Pennsylvania, in 1824.[18] He was listed in the census in 1830 and 1840 as a householder in Mead, Crawford County, Pennsylvania.[19, 20]

Jabez was ordained as an elder of the Central Presbyterian Church, Meadville, in 1830 and installed in 1839.[6]

Following the death of Jabez's first wife Ann just two weeks after the birth in January 1832 of their daughter Ann, it would appear that the daughter was adopted by Jabez's brother James and his wife Almena.

In 1850 Jabez was living in Mead, Crawford County, and was recorded in the census as Jabez B Sackett, a farmer, aged 61 and born in Massachusetts. Living with him were his second wife, Emily, 52, their son Ozias, 13, Jabez's children from his first marriage, Jabez (Jr), 23, and Dewey, 21, and Jabez's siblings, Eliza, 47, and Royal, 52.[21]

In 1860 he was living in Meadville, Crawford County, and was recorded as Jabes B Sacket, a farmer, aged 71. Living with him were his wife Emily, 63, his son Dewey, 31, and Dewey's wife Sarah, 30, with their daughter Mary, aged one month, and Jabez's brother Royal, 64.[22]

Jabez made his will in Mead on 9 May 1862, naming as beneficiaries his wife Emily and children, EBR, Charles D, James W, Jabez B, L Dewey, and Ann A Sacket. He left land or equivalent cash amounts to each of his sons, with his son Levi Dewey taking over the home farm, with responsibility for the lifetime care of his father, stepmother Emily, and uncle Royal. Jabez also requested that suitable monuments be placed on the graves of his parents, sisters Dolly and Eliza, his first wife, and his son Ozias. The will was proved on 3 January 1871.

In 1870 he was living in Mead, Crawford County, and was recorded as Jabez B Sacket, works on farm, aged 81. Living with him were his wife Emily, 73, and brother Royal Sacket, 74. They were living on the family farm, now run by Jabez's son Levi Dewey in accordance with Jabez's will.[23]

In 1880 Jabez's widow Emily was living in Mead in the household of her son Dewey and daughter-in-law Mary, and was recorded in the census as Emely Sackett, aged 83.[24]

Abigail Sackett, daughter of Zavan Sacket Sr and Abigail Bills, was born at Norwich Bridge, Hampshire County, Massachusetts, on 17 December 1790.[1, 2, 3, 4] She died aged 92 in Huntington, Hampshire County, on 26 December 1882[2, 5] and was buried at Norwich Bridge Cemetery, Huntington.[6] She married in Norwich (later Huntington) on 30 April 1816, Charles Collins, son of Daniel Collins.[1, 7, 8, 9] Charles was born in Worthington, Hampshire County, on 30 December 1792.[6, 10] He died aged 32 in Chester, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 23 September 1825[11] and was buried at Norwich Bridge Cemetery.[6]

Abigail's husband Charles, styled an Esquire, was a man of means. By his will, made just a week before he died of a fever, he left $3,800 to be divided among his children when they reached 21. He was aware that Abigail was pregnant with their sixth child. He left the remainder of his estate, including his lands, to Abigail, with no restriction as to her remarriage.

Abigail did not remarry, bringing up her children, the eldest of whom was eight at the time of Charles's death, and remaining a widow for 57 years.

In 1850 Abigail was living in Chester and was recorded in the census as Abigal Collins, aged 56. Her daughter Frances and son-in-law Anson

Gleason were living with her.[12]

In 1870 she was living in Huntington and was recorded as Abigail Collins, aged 75. Her daughter Frances Gleason, 40, and grandson Howard Gleason, 14, were living with her.[13]

In 1880 she was living in Huntington and was recorded as Abigail Collins, head of household, aged 89. Her daughter Frances Gleason, 54, and grandson Howard Gleason, 24, were living with her. There was also a female servant in the household.[14]

Obituary

Mrs Abigail Collins, who recently died at Huntington at the age 92, had been for a long time the oldest person in town. Her father, Zavan Sackett, was one of the early settlers of Norwich—now Huntington. Sackett built the bouse occupied by the late Garry Munson at Norwich Bridge, and there his daughter Abigail was born. In 1816 she married Charles Collins, who, in company with his father, was proprietor of the "tavern" at Falley's X Roads, now Huntington village. Mr Sackett, with his family, removed to Ohio, when he attained the same great age of the daughter who has just died. All his seven sons lived beyond three-score-and-ten, and were eminent for piety and influence. Mrs Collins was early left a widow with six children, all of whom reached maturity. Her eldest son, Henry, a merchant in New York and a member of Plymouth church, died at his residence in Brooklyn the past year. The children who survive are: Havington C. Collins of Huntington, Mrs Charles Pitt of Pittsfield, Erastus Collins of Westfield, James Collins of Philadelphia and Mrs Frances Gleason of Huntington. Mrs Collins was one of three or four women who began holding little prayer-meetings in the Falley X Roads schoolhouse, which eventually led to the first church organization in the place. To the last she retained her interest in church and society. Mrs Emmeline Lindsey, whose funeral took place on the day of Mrs Collin's death, was scarcely less remarkable for energy and mental activity. She was the mother of Sheriff G. M. and James V. Lindsey, and was 86 years of age. Mrs Collins and Mrs Lindsey had been neighbors for many years, and were the two oldest members of the Second Congregational church.

Emily Sacket, daughter of Zavan Sacket Sr and Abigail Bills, was born presumably in Massachusetts in the 1790s.[1]

Emily Sacket is listed in The Sacketts of America as a daughter of Zavan Sacket and Abigail Bills. This is the only record found. She may have been a child who died without record, or the entry may have been in error. A further possibility is that she may have been the same as Elizabeth "Betsey" Sackett (1793–1868), whose parents have not otherwise been identified.

Father 536 Zavan Sacket Sr b. 1751, d. 1840
Mother Abigail Bills b. c 1759, d. 1842

Royal Sackett, farmer, son of Zavan Sacket Sr and Abigail Bills, was born in Massachusetts about 1796.[1] He died aged 78 in Crawford County in 1874.[2]

Royal removed from Massachusetts to Mead, Pennsylvania, perhaps with his father and brother Rolin in the late 1810s or with others of his siblings in the 1820s.

In 1850 Royal was living in Mead, Crawford County, Pennsylvania, in the household of his brother Jabez and sister-in-law Emily, and was recorded in the census as Royal Sackett, a farmer, aged 52 and born in Massachusetts.[3]

In 1860 he was living in Meadville, Crawford County, in the household of his brother Jabez and sister-in-law Emily, and was recorded as Royal Sacket, aged 64.[4]

In 1870 he was living in Mead, Crawford County, in the household of his brother Jabez and sister-in-law Emily, and was recorded as Royal Sacket, aged 74.[5]

Royal was unmarried and would appear to have been dependent upon his brother Jabez. Jabez, in making his will, charged his son Levi Dewey with responsibility for Royal's continued maintenance.

Father 536 Zavan Sacket Sr b. 1751, d. 1840
Mother Abigail Bills b. c 1759, d. 1842

Joseph Sackett, son of Zavan Sacket Sr and Abigail Bills, was born in Massachusetts on 7 March 1800.[1, 2, 3] He died aged 80 in Wayne, Ashtabula County, Ohio, on 3 February 1881 and was buried at Center Cemetery, Wayne.[3, 4] He was unmarried.

Joseph removed from Massachusetts to Mead, Pennsylvania, perhaps with his father and brother Rolin in the late 1810s or with others of his siblings in the 1820s.

In 1850 Joseph was living in Mead, Crawford County, Pennsylvania, in the household of his brother James and sister-in-law Almina, and was recorded in the census as Joseph Sackett, a farmer, aged 50 and born in Massachusetts.[5]

In 1860 he was living in Mead in the household of his nephew Edward B R Sacket, and was recorded as Joseph Sacket, a farmer, aged 60.[6]

In 1870 he was living in Mead in the household of his nephew Edward Sacket, and was recorded as Joseph Sacket, aged 70.[7]

Joseph removed late in life from Mead to Wayne, Ohio, where his late brother Isaac had settled.

In 1880 he was living in Wayne, Ashtabula County, Ohio, in the household of his nephew Zaven Sackett (brother Isaac's son), and was recorded as Joseph Sackett, aged 80.[8]

(1777 - 1831)

Line 3 Justus[M], Eliakim[L], John[K], John[J], Simon[I], Thomas[H], Thomas[G]

Father	540	Justus Sacket b. 1745, d. 1778
Mother		Naomi Weller b. c 1747, d. 1784

Justus Sacket, son of Justus Sacket and Naomi Weller, was born in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 14 June 1777[1, 2, 3, 4] and baptized at the Church of Christ, Westfield, in July 1777.[5] (He was Justus Sacket in the family bible, Justice Sackett on his gravestone.) He died aged 53 in Martinsburg, Lewis County, New York State, on 28 February 1831[6, 7] and was buried at Hogsback Cemetery, Martinsburg.[8, 9] He married in Martinsburg on 7 March 1805, Fanny Faxon, daughter of Thomas Faxon and Rachel Davis.[10] Fanny was born in Conway, Franklin County, Massachusetts, on 15 October 1778.[11, 12] She died aged 89 in Marshall, Calhoun County, Michigan, on 12 October 1868.[12]

Justus settled in Martinsburg, Lewis County, in in 1802 or 1803.[13] He was listed in the census in 1810 as a householder in Lewis County and in 1820 and 1830 as a householder in Martinsburg.[14, 15, 16]

In 1850 Justus's widow Fanny was living in Raisin, Lenawee County, Michigan, in the household of her son Morrison and daughter-in-law Mary, and was recorded in the census as Fanna Sackett, aged 70.[17]

In 1860 she was living in Marengo, Calhoun County, Michigan, in the household of her son Morrison and daughter-in-law Mary, and was recorded as Frances Sackett, aged 80.[18]

Father 541 Stephen Sacket b. 1748, d. 1830
Mother Eunice Ross b. c 1746, d. 1830

Stephen Sacket Jr, son of Stephen Sacket and Eunice Ross, was born in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 7 August 1777[1] and baptized at the Church of Christ, Westfield, on 12 October 1783.[2] He died aged 53 in Boston, Massachusetts, on 12 May 1831.[3, 4] He married first at the First Church, Westfield, on 25 October 1798, Hannah Bancroft, daughter of John Bancroft and Elizabeth Holcomb.[5, 6] Hannah was born in Westfield on 26 June 1780[7] and died aged 35 in Westfield on 27 October 1815.[8] In addition to the children listed, Stephen and Hannah had a child who died in 1802, a stillborn daughter in 1804, and in 1808 twin children who survived for one day.[9, 10, 11] Stephen married second about 1817, Ruhamah (Lyman) Sackett, widow of his second cousin Walter Sackett. Ruhamah was born about 1778.[12] She died aged 58 in Boston, Massachusetts, on 13 May 1837 listed as "city poor" and was buried at South Ground, Boston.[13]

Stephen was listed in the census in 1800 and 1810 as a householder in Westfield. In 1820, Ruhamah was listed as a householder there.[14, 15, 16]

Stephen was listed in the Boston City Directory in 1825 and 1830, described as an Indian doctor, living at 14 Myrtle. After his death, Ruhamah was listed there in 1831 and 1832. In the 1836 directory, she was described as an Indian doctress.[17]

Ruhamah was listed on 5 September 1827 as a depositor, of $50, at the Provident Institution for Savings, Boston. Her stepdaughter Hannah had been left $50 in the will of Stephen's brother-in-law Charles King and it would seem likely that this was the source of the deposit.[18]

Stephen was named as a beneficiary in his father's will, made at Westfield on 5 October 1829 and proved on 2 March 1830. He was to receive a sum of $100 plus his share of the estate already received.

Stephen was listed in the 1830 census as a householder in Boston.[19]

Stephen made his will in Boston on 12 October 1830, naming as beneficiaries his wife Ruhamah, and his children, Bancroft, Hannah, Elizabeth, and Jane. He also named his brother Daniel's widow Tryphena. His son Francis was not named. He left the $100 legacy recently received from his father to his daughters, Elizabeth and Jane, son-in-law George Noble (daughter Hannah's husband), and Charles Bullard (who is not identified as a family member but was an executor with George Noble and was evidently closely connected). Charles Bullard and George Noble were also to have three lots of land in South Hampton and Westfield and the residue of the personal estate after specific bequests. The will was proved in Boston on 14 November 1831.[20]

Father	541	Stephen Sacket b. 1748, d. 1830
Mother		Eunice Ross b. c 1746, d. 1830

Hannah Sackett, daughter of Stephen Sacket and Eunice Ross, was born in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, about 1780 and baptized at the Church of Christ, Westfield, on 12 October 1783.[1] She died aged 63 in Westfield on 7 May 1843.[2] She married at the First Church, Westfield, on 24 November 1803, Charles King, son of Aaron King and Hannah Mosely.[3, 4, 5] He died in Westfield in 1824.

Charles King made his will at Westfield on 31 December 1823. He provided for his wife Hannah during her lifetime, after which his estate was to go one-half to their son Eldad and one-quarter each to their daughters, Hannah and Lydia. He also left a sum of $50 to his wife's niece, Hannah Sacket, daughter of her brother Stephen. Executors were to be his wife Hannah and Hannah's brother-in-law Erastus Grant.

Hannah was named as a beneficiary in her father's will, made at Westfield on 5 October 1829 and proved on 2 March 1830. She was to receive a sum of $600 plus her share of the estate already received.[6]

Father	541	Stephen Sacket b. 1748, d. 1830

Sally Sackett, daughter of Stephen Sacket and Eunice Ross, was born in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, about 1785[1] and baptized at the Church of Christ, Westfield, on 11 November 1794.[2] She died aged about 68 in Westfield on 24 July 1853 and was buried at the Old Burying Ground, Westfield.[3] She married Mason Morse.

Sally was named as a beneficiary in her father's will, made at Westfield on 5 October 1829 and proved on 2 March 1830. She was to receive a sum of $1. This token sum, together with the rider "which with what she has already received is to be her full share", and the fact that Stephen refers to her not as his daughter but as the wife of Mason Morse, suggests a falling-out or an exasperation with too many past demands. However, Stephen generously left $50 to each of Sally's four children.

In 1850 Sally was living in Westfield and was recorded in the census as Sarah Morse, aged 65 and born in Massachusetts. Her daughter Eunice, 35, was living with her.[4]

Father 541 Stephen Sacket b. 1748, d. 1830
Mother Eunice Ross b. c 1746, d. 1830

Daniel Sacket, son of Stephen Sacket and Eunice Ross, was born in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 23 September 1790[1] and baptized at the Church of Christ, Westfield, on 11 November 1794.[2] He died aged 33 in Westfield on 1 December 1823 and was buried at the Pine Hill Cemetery, Westfield.[3, 4] He married in Westfield on 16 October 1811, Tryphena Loomis, daughter of Justus Loomis and Tryphena Elmer.[1, 5, 6, 7, 8] The marriage was also recorded in Suffield, Hartford County, Connecticut, on 20 November 1811.[8] Tryphena was born in Westfield on 10 October 1789.[3] After Daniel's death, she married second in Westfield on 27 November 1833, Asa Hodge.[9] She died aged 59 in Westfield on 10 September 1849 and was buried at Pine Hill Cemetery, Westfield.[3, 10]

Daniel was listed in the 1820 census as a householder in Westfield. The household comprised one male 26-44, one female 26-44, and four females under 10. These would have been Daniel, his wife Tryphena, and their daughters, Electa, Tryphena, Maria, and Julia.[11]

Daniel's widow Tryphena was named as a beneficiary in Daniel's father's will, made at Westfield on 5 October 1829 and proved on 2 March 1830. She was to have that part of the farm previously occupied by Daniel (which was presumably still in her possession). Her father-in-law also left her his "great Bible", silver teaspoons, and a bed quilt.

Widow Tryphena Sackett was listed as a householder in Westfield in 1830.[12]

880 Charles Sacket

(1783 - 1835)

Line 3 Ezra[M], Eliakim[L], John[K], John[J], Simon[I], Thomas[H], Thomas[G]

Father 542 Ezra Sacket b. 1750, d. 1834
Mother Lydia Lovering b. c 1750, d. 1831

Charles Sacket, son of Ezra Sacket and Lydia Lovering, was born in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 6 December 1783.[1, 2, 3] He died there aged 52 on 13 December 1835[4] and was buried at Pine Hill Cemetery, Westfield.[5] He married at the First Church, Westfield, on 9 February 1804, Abigail Otis, daughter of James Otis and Sarah Holmes.[3, 6, 7, 8] Abigail was born in Westfield on 12 June 1783.[9] She died aged 81 in Westfield on 20 September 1864[10] and was buried at Pine Hill Cemetery.[5]

Charles was listed in the census in 1810, 1820 and 1830 as a householder in Westfield.[11, 12, 13]

Charles was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made in Westfield on 1 March 1834. He was to share with his brother Roland all the real estate. However, the estate was found to be insolvent and it would appear that the land would need to have been sold to meet the claims of creditors. Charles's wife Abigail was left her father-in-law's brass kettle.[14]

Charles did not long outlive his father. He died intestate. His widow Abigail petitioned the Springfield Probate Court on 5 April 1836 for the grant of a widow's dower. Charles had owned land in Westfield and Russell, but Abigail "hath nothing". Charles's financial affairs were complicated, with claims from more than forty creditors totalling some $800. Among the claimants were Martin Sacket ($8.33), Harriet Sacket ($11.24), Mariam Sacket ($22.47), and Roland Sacket ($16.47). Charles's personal estate was not sufficient to meet these debts, leaving a substantial shortfall. The homestead of 42 acres was valued at $1,200 and a 10-acre "pasture upon the mountain" at $100.

An administrator, appointed by the Court, determined that two tracts of land together with the dwelling house would have a value of $433, and would represent a reasonable dower. Abigail appealed to the Court for further assistance as the residue of Charles's personal estate "will be very inconsiderable" and "wholly inadequate to the comfortable subsistence" of herself and four children. She was granted the right to select articles of his personal estate up to a value of $150.

The remainder of Charles's land was sold for $610. This sum together with the residue of his personal estate, sold at auction for some $360, was sufficient to pay his creditors.

Not all documents were dated, but the estate would appear to have been finally settled by January 1838.[15]

Charles's widow Abigail was listed in the 1840 census as a householder in Westfield.[16]

In 1850 Charles's widow Abigail was living in Westfield in the household of her daughter Sophia and son-in-law John Mallory, and was recorded in the census as Abigail Sacket, aged 66.[17]

In 1855 she was living in Westfield in the household of her daughter Sophia and son-in-law John Mallory, and was recorded as Abigail Sackett, aged 71.[18]

Father 542 Ezra Sacket b. 1750, d. 1834
Mother Lydia Lovering b. c 1750, d. 1831

Charlotte Sacket, daughter of Ezra Sacket and Lydia Lovering, was born in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, about July 1785.[1, 2, 3] She died there aged 90 on 14 October 1875[4] and was buried at Pine Hill Cemetery, Westfield.[5] She married about 1814, Horace Nelson, son of Aaron Nelson.[1] Horace was born in West Springfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, in 1779[6] and baptized there on 19 September 1779.[7] He died aged 63 in Westfield in January 1842[8] and was buried at Pine Hill Cemetery.[5, 6]

Charlotte was named as a beneficiary in her father's will made in Westfield on 1 March 1834. She was to receive a sum of $1.[9]

Horace Nelson made his will at Westfield on 10 February 1841. He left Charlotte half the household furniture and the use of half the real estate during her lifetime. Their daughters, Olive (who was later to marry her 4th cousin Noah Sacket) and Lydia, were to have the furniture after their mother's death, and son George was to have the residue of the estate. Also remembered in his will were his daughters of his first marriage, Polly who had married Marvin Sacket, and Clarissa. The will was proved at the Hampden County Probate Court in Springfield on 1 March 1842.[10]

In 1850 Charlotte was living in Westfield in the household of her son George and daughter-in-law Emeline, and was recorded in the census as

Charlott Nelson, aged 64 and born in Massachusetts.[11]

In 1870 she was living in Westfield in the household of her son George and daughter-in-law Emeline, and was recorded as Charlotte Nelson, aged 85.[12]

884 Roland Sacket

(1790 - 1882)

Line 3 Ezra[M], Eliakim[L], John[K], John[J], Simon[I], Thomas[H], Thomas[G]

Father	542	Ezra Sacket b. 1750, d. 1834
Mother		Lydia Lovering b. c 1750, d. 1831

Roland Sacket, farmer, son of Ezra Sacket and Lydia Lovering, was born in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 5 September 1790.[1] He died there aged 91 on 7 July 1882[2] and was buried at Pine Hill Cemetery, Westfield. He married in Westfield on 8 November 1813, Sarah "Sally" Phelps, daughter of John Phelps.[3] Sarah was born in Massachusetts about 1790.[4] She died aged 79 in Westfield on 23 February 1870[5, 6] and was buried at Pine Hill Cemetery.[7]

Roland was listed in the 1820 census as a householder in Russell, Hampden County.[8] In 1830 and 1840 he was a householder in Westfield.[9, 10]

Roland was named as a beneficiary in his father's will made in Westfield on 1 March 1834. He was to share with his brother Charles all the real estate. However, the estate was found to be insolvent and it would appear that the land would need to have been sold to meet the claims of creditors.[11]

In 1850 Roland was living in Westfield and was recorded in the census as Roland Sacket, a farmer, aged 55. Living with him were his wife Sarah, 56, and children, Ashmon, 27, and Marilla, aged 17.[12]

In 1855 he was living in Westfield and was recorded as Roland Sackett, a farmer, aged 69. Living with him were his wife Sarah, 63, and their children, Miranda, 35, Ashmon, 30, and Marilla, 21.[13]

In 1860 he was living in Westfield and was recorded as Roland Sacket, a farmer, aged 66. Living with him were his wife Sarah, aged 67, and son Ashmon, aged 37.[14]

In 1870 he was living in Westfield and was recorded as Rorall Sackett, a farmer, aged 80. His son Ashmon, 40, was living with him.[15]

Roland was included in a list of principal tax payers of Westfield published in the Westfield News-Letter in August 1872.[16]

In 1880 he was living in Westfield and was recorded as Roland Sackitt, head of household, a widower, aged 88. Living with him was his son Ashman (wrongly described as brother in the census), aged 55. Also in the household was Harrison Newberry, 63, a laborer.[17]

Roland made his will in Westfield on 2 May 1882. He left his estate to his son Ashmon, subject to Ashmon making cash payments to his siblings: $400 to Enoch, $300 to Roland, and $100 to Marilla. In an unusual clause, Roland directed that the bodies of several family members buried on the family farm be removed to the Pine Hill Cemetery.[18]

Abstract of will of Roland Sackett of Westfield, Hampden County.
Date: 2 May 1882.
Beneficiaries:
1. Son Ashmun, all estate, real & personal, subject to paying to son Enoch $400, to son Roland $300, & to dau Marilla Hale $100.
2. "To the children of my deceased son Augustus J and to the children of my deceased daughters Rachael and Amanda, I give nothing."
3. "I direct my executor to disinter the bodies of my son Richard, my daughter Rachael, and my mother-in-law, now buried on the farm now occupied by my son Ashmun, and inter them in the lot owned by me in the Pine Hill Cemetery."

Executor: son Ashmun.
Witnesses: Franklin B Atwater, George P Van Deusen, George W Loomis, J R Dunbar.

Olive Sacket, daughter of Ezra Sacket and Lydia Lovering, was born in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, about 1797.[1, 2] She married about 1818, Manning Blakeslee.[1, 3] He died in Russell, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 1 September 1846.[4]

Olive was named as a beneficiary in her father's will made in Westfield on 1 March 1834. She was to receive a sum of $30.[5]

Olive's husband Manning died intestate. On her application, the Hampden County Probate Court appointed an administrator of the estate on 2 February 1847. Following preparation of an inventory, Olive was granted Manning's personal estate, valued at $100.75. This included two oxen, $55, a heifer, $9.33, and a pig, $3, together with household furniture and farming implements.

In 1850 Olive was living in Russell and was recorded in the census as Olive Blakesley, aged 52 and born in Massachusetts. Living with her were her children, Henry, 31, Jehabod, 20, James, 14, and Ezra, aged twelve.[6]

In 1860 she was living in Russell in the household of her son Ichabod and daughter-in-law Maria, and was recorded as Olive Blakeslee, aged 63.[7]

Royal Sacket, son of Pliny Sacket and Elisabeth Kellogg, was born in Southwick, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 9 August 1784.[1, 2, 3] He died there aged 74 on 5 April 1859[3, 4] and was buried at Southwick Cemetery.[5, 6] He married on 25 August 1808, Eunice Hastings, daughter of Deacon David Hastings and Sabra Morley.[2] Eunice was born in Connecticut on 23 April 1789.[2, 7] She died aged 69 in Southwick on 30 November 1858[3, 8] and was buried at Southwick Cemetery.[5]

Royal was listed in the census in 1810, 1820, 1830, and 1840 as a householder in Southwick.[9, 10, 11, 12]

In 1850 Royal was living in Southwick and was recorded in the census as Royal Sackett, a farmer, aged 67 and born in Massachusetts. Living with him were his wife Eunice, 61, and their granddaughter Francene Sackett, aged five.[13]

In 1855 he was living in Southwick and was recorded as Royal Sacket, a farmer, aged 71. His wife Eunice, 66, was living with him.[14]

Pliny Sacket, son of Pliny Sacket and Elisabeth Kellogg, was born in Southwick, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 5 July 1786.[1, 2, 3] He died aged 67 in Southwick on 11 February 1854.[1, 4, 5, 6, 7] He married in 1814, Nancy Bartlett, daughter of Christopher Bartlett.[1] Nancy died in Berrien County, Michigan, in 1841.[1]

Pliny removed from Southwick, Massachusetts, to the far north-west of New York State, when a young man, and it may be assumed that he married there and that Nancy had their children there. Weygant, The Sacketts of America, records a further move west to Berrien County, Michigan, in 1838. Pliny returned to his birthplace in his last years.

Pliny was listed in the census in 1820 and 1830 as a householder in Sodus, Wayne County, New York State.[8, 9]

In 1850 Pliny was living in Boston, Erie County, New York State, in the household of Daniel Pick, a tavern keeper, and was recorded in the census as Pliney Sackett, a laborer, aged 60 and born in Massachusetts.[10]

Father	543	Pliny Sacket b. 1753, d. 1830
Mother		Elisabeth Kellogg d. 1807

Oliver Sackett, miller and stonemason, son of Pliny Sacket and Elisabeth Kellogg, was born in Massachusetts on 9 July 1796.[1, 2, 3] He died in Greene, Chenango County, New York State, on 7 February 1870 and was buried at Brisben Baptist Church Cemetery, Chenango County.[2, 4, 5] He married in Greene on 3 April 1827, Esther Wing, daughter of Samuel Wing and Esther Bennett.[6, 7] Esther was born in New York State on 2 May 1807.[1, 2] She died aged 80 in Greene on 12 June 1887 and was buried at Brisben Baptist Church Cemetery.[2, 4]

Oliver served as a Private in the New York State Infantry during the War of 1812.[5, 8]

Oliver was listed in the 1830 census as a householder in Oxford, Chenango County.[9] In 1840 he was a householder in Greene, Chenango County.[10]

In 1850 Oliver was living in Greene and was recorded in the census as Oliver Sackett, a mason, aged 54 and born in New York. Living with him were his wife Esther, 43, and their children Samuel, 19, Lydia, 18, Phoebe (listed as O E), 16, Alzina (listed as S E), 14, James (listed as Jone), 12, Rachel, 11, Mary, 8, Charles, 7, Oliver, 6, John, 4, Jane (listed as Jone), 4, and Esther, aged two.[11]

In 1860 he was living in Greene and was recorded as Oliver Sackett, a farm laborer, aged 64. Living with him were his wife, Esther, 53, and their children, Samuel, 30, James, 23, Rachel, 22, Mary, 19, George [who must surely have been Charles], 17, John, 14, Jane, 14, and Esther, aged twelve.[12]

In 1880 Oliver's widow Esther was living in Greene and was recorded in the census as Esther Sackett, head of household, a widow, aged 74. Her unmarried son John, 33, was living with her.[13]

Rebecca Sacket, daughter of Jesse Sacket and Sarah Dewey, was born in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 10 June 1746[1, 2, 3, 4] and baptized at the Church of Christ, Westfield, on 22 June 1746.[5] She married on 8 November 1771, probably in New Milford, Litchfield County, Connecticut, Salmon Carrington, son of Dr Riverius Carrington and Penelope Bordman.[1, 6, 7, 8, 9] Salmon was born in New Milford on 18 December 1747.[10] He died there aged 40 on 15 February 1788 and was buried at Center Cemetery, New Milford.[11, 12] A death (or perhaps a remarriage) record for Rebecca has not been found.

Salmon died intestate. An inventory made on 30 April 1788 valued his personal estate at some £60, including livestock (5 hogs, 2 cows, a calf, a heifer, and a yoke of oxen) at £20. His real estate comprising six acres of land, still subject to his mother Penelope's widow's dower, was valued on 9 April 1790 at £13. These sums would have been insufficient to meet claims of £91 against his estate, including medical and other expenses incurred "in his last sickness."[13]

Sarah Sacket, daughter of Jesse Sacket and Sarah Dewey, was born in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 17 April 1750[1, 2, 3, 4] and baptized at the Church of Christ, Westfield, on 10 June 1750.[5]

There were two Sarah Sackets of about the same age in Westfield, the other being Sarah Sacket the daughter of John Sacket and Rachel Church. The two Sarahs were third cousins. Two marriages appear in the Westfield records, one of a Sarah Sacket to Jared Bush on 13 August 1775 and the other of a Sarah Sacket to Justus Weller in August 1776. There is not sufficient information to determine which Sarah married each man.[6, 7]

Justus Weller and Sarah Sacket had a son, Justus Weller, born on 5 November 1776.

Children of Erastus Sacket and Elizabeth Leonard

899 Erastus Sacket Jr

(1750 - 1838)

Line 3 Erastus[M], Joseph[L], William[K], John[J], Simon[I], Thomas[H], Thomas[G]

Father 550 Erastus Sacket b. 1721, d. before 1797
Mother Elizabeth Leonard b. 1729/30, d. 1816

Erastus Sacket Jr, son of Erastus Sacket and Elizabeth Leonard, was born in Springfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 29 July 1750[1, 2] and baptized at the Church of Christ, Westfield, Hampden County, on 9 September 1750.[3] He died aged 88 in Pittsfield, Berkshire County, Massachusetts, on 28 September 1838[4, 5] and was buried at Terrace Grove, Pittsfield Cemetery.[5] He married Sarah ___. Sarah was born in 1758.[6] She died in Pittsfield on 30 April 1833[5] and was buried in Terrace Grove, Pittsfield Cemetery.

Erastus served in the American Revolutionary War.[5]

Erastus was included in a 1786 census of Pittsfield householders; his father Erastus was also listed.[7]

In 1790 Erastus was living in Pittsfield, Berkshire County, Massachusetts. In his household were one man and six females, presumably his wife Sarah and five of their daughters.[8]

Erastus was listed in the census in 1800, 1810, 1820, and 1830 as a householder in Pittsfield.[9, 10, 11, 12]

of Pittsfield for the first time on 1 October 1810 when "farmers in this County and its vicinity" were "respectfully invited to attend this first exhibition, from nine to three of the clock, with bulls, oxen, steers, and other neat cattle, Merino sheep of the different grades, as well as other improved breeds, hogs or swine of different breeds, and such useful animals as they may think proper" in the hope that "this essay will lead to permanent annual cattle shows, and that an incorporated Agricultural Society will emanate from these meetings."[13]

Erastus was appointed joint administrator, with his daughter Beulah, of the estate of Beulah's husband Jonathan Davis who died intestate in Otsego County, New York, in about 1811.[14]

In his late old age, Erastus was deemed incapable of handling his own affairs and a guardian, Calvin Martin, was appointed. The guardian petitioned the Berkshire County Court in June 1837 for permission to sell a five-acre plot of land owned by Erastus in Lenox. The land had previously been owned by the late Samuel Judd, presumably Erastus's son-in-law who had died in 1832.[15]

Father	550	Erastus Sacket b. 1721, d. before 1797
Mother		Elizabeth Leonard b. 1729/30, d. 1816

Ozina Sacket, daughter of Erastus Sacket and Elizabeth Leonard, was born in Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 18 June 1759[1, 2] and baptized at the Church of Christ, Westfield, on 29 July 1759.[3] She may have married Charles Johnson, son of Nathaniel Johnson and Anna Johns, in 1797.[4, 5] She may otherwise have been the Zina Sackett who published an intention to marry Gideon Gunn at Pittsfield, Berkshire County, Massachusetts, on 13 October 1799.[6]

There is conflicting evidence about Ozina's possible marriage. Sons of the American Revolution membership applications include a record for Elihu Johnson (1800-1883), son of Charles Johnson (no dates) and Ozina Sachett (no dates), and a similar record for Elihu Johnson (1800-83), son of "Charles Johnson (1769-1832) m. 1797 Ozinee Sackett (1769-1824)" appears in the Daughters of the American Revolution Lineage Book. Find A Grave lists a burial for Ozina Sackett Johnson at Maple Wood Cemetery, Boston, Erie County, New York, with no dates of birth or death. This record lists husband Charles Johnson and son Elihu Johnson, probably taken from the SAR and DAR records.

Ozina signed an agreement regarding the probate of her father's will on 2 May 1797. She was then unmarried.[7]

904 Solomon Sacket

(1762 - 1814)

Line 3	Erastus[M], Joseph[L], William[K], John[J], Simon[I], Thomas[H], Thomas[G]

Father	550	Erastus Sacket b. 1721, d. before 1797
Mother		Elizabeth Leonard b. 1729/30, d. 1816

Solomon Sacket, son of Erastus Sacket and Elizabeth Leonard, was born in Pittsfield, Berkshire County, Massachusetts, on 7 August 1762[1, 2, 3] and baptized at the Church of Christ, Westfield, Hampden County, Massachusetts, on 25 September 1763.[4] He died aged 51 in Pittsfield on 9 May 1814[5, 6, 7] and was buried at Pittsfield Cemetery.[8, 9] He married at the First Church of Christ, Pittsfield, on 17 January 1793, Elizabeth "Betsey" Kellogg, daughter of Nathaniel Kellogg and Hannah Barnard Hastings.[10, 11, 12] Elizabeth was born in Colchester, New London County, Connecticut, on 9 December 1772.[8, 9, 11] She died aged 76 in Pittsfield on 6 July 1849[8, 13] and was buried at Pittsfield Cemetery.[8, 14]

Solomon Sacket served in the American Revolutionary War for thirteen days in October 1781.[1, 8]

Solomon was listed in the census in 1800 and 1810 as a householder in Pittsfield.[15, 16]

Solomon and his brother Erastus were founder members, with 24 other townsmen, of the Berkshire Cattle Show, held in the Square in the Village of Pittsfield for the first time on 1 October 1810 when "farmers in this County and its vicinity" were "respectfully invited to attend this first exhibition, from nine to three of the clock, with bulls, oxen, steers, and other neat cattle, Merino sheep of the different grades, as well as other improved breeds, hogs or swine of different breeds, and such useful animals as they may think proper" in the hope that "this essay will lead to permanent annual cattle shows, and that an incorporated Agricultural Society will emanate from these meetings."[17]

Solomon's widow Elizabeth was listed in the census in 1820, 1830 and 1840 as a householder in Pittsfield.[18], [19], [20]

Elizabeth Sacket was named in the Pittsfield Sun on 10 October 1821 in a list of persons for whom letters had been received at the post office.[21]

Solomon was stated in the Kellogg Genealogy to have been childless. However, there were two children, a boy and a girl, in his household in 1800 and 1810. Their ages, between 10 and 15 in 1810, indicating births in or after 1795, would fit with Solomon and Betsey's marriage in 1793.

A candidate for the boy is Werien/Warren J Sackett, born in Massachusetts in about 1794, whose parents have not otherwise been identified.

Father	550	Erastus Sacket b. 1721, d. before 1797
Mother		Elizabeth Leonard b. 1729/30, d. 1816

Joseph Sacket, son of Erastus Sacket and Elizabeth Leonard, was born in Pittsfield, Berkshire County, Massachusetts, on 3 December 1764[1, 2, 3] and baptized at the First Church of Christ, Pittsfield, on 17 February 1765.[4] He died in Naples, Ontario County, New York State, on 17 January 1842.[5] He married in Pittsfield about 1786, Lucy Goff.[6]

In 1790 Joseph was living in Pittsfield, Berkshire County, Massachusetts. In his household were one man, one boy, and three females.[7]

He was probably the Joseph Sacket who was a householder in Weybridge, Addison County, Vermont, in 1800.[8, 9] In 1810 he was a householder in Pompey, Onondaga County, New York State.[10] In 1830 he was a householder in Bristol, Ontario County.[11] In 1840 he was a householder in Naples.[12]

Joseph died intestate. His son Zelotus petitioned the Surrogate Court of Ontario County, New York, on 25 April 1844 requesting appointment as administrator of the estate. The petition stated that Joseph had died on or about 17 January 1842 leaving surviving children, including Zelotus, but no widow. On 5 March 1845, Zelotus and co-administrator Otis Fuller petitioned the Court for permission to sell Joseph's real estate to meet debts.

The petition identified Joseph's other heirs as Huldah Sackett, Joseph Sackett of Independence, Allegany County, Erastus Sackett, and Eliza Watkins, wife of __ J Watkins of Naples. The real estate, comprising about thirty acres with dwelling house and barn in the town of Naples was sold by public auction on 5 June 1845.[5]
